ALL THREE SEAPLANES NEARING THE AZORES; NC-4 WAS 800 MILES OUT AT 3:06 THIS MORNING; HARTMANN APPEALS TO POPE TO SAVE GERMANY

POPE'S AID ASKED ON PEACE TERMS; BERLIN TALK FIRM

GERMANS DENY YIELDING

Semi-Official Announcement Made of Intention to Reject Present Terms.

STILL WANT NEGOTIATIONS

COLOGNE, May 16.—Cardinal Hartmann, Archbishop of Cologne, has requested Pope Benedict to intervene in the situation between the allied powers and Germany in order to protect Germany from the complete breakdown which menaces her.

In his appeal the Cardinal asserted that the peace conditions would mean the utter ruin of Germany, and would be a cruel violation of the rights of 70,000,000 inhabitants of the country.

Berlin Denies Submission.

BERLIN, May 15, (Associated Press.)—In consequence of veiled insinuations in the Pan German newspapers that the Ebert-Scheidemann Government intends to sign the allied peace terms, notwithstanding their severe provisions, semiofficial announcement was made today that these insinuations strike a false note and that the Government is fully united in its intentions to carry out its recently stated policy of declining to sign the compact.

Reports that lack of unity exists in the Cabinet are also denied. The announcement declares that there is complete unity between the Versailles plenipotentaries and Berlin, and that the Government knows itself to be one with the overwhelming majority of the people.

Continuing, the announcement says that the Government will not be forced into a hasty "Yes" or a hasty basic "No," and that it is determined to abide by its original stand on the unbearableness and impossibility of fulfilling the present peace terms. The announcement concludes by saying that the Government will attempt to negotiate an understanding which will culminate in a peace of justice. It is stated that Mathias Erzberger, who has been accused of differing from the Cabinet, is completely in accord with its views.

Replying to a deputation from the regions threatened under the terms of the treaty, Philipp Scheidemann, the Chancellor, said today that the Cabinet was discussing continually counter peace terms, based without restriction on President Wilson's principles.

"They must bring us the negotiations we need and to which we have a right in accordance with President Wilson's note of Nov. 8, 1918," the Chancellor said. "That is the new Germany's right, upon which the Government will insist to the last."

Allies Reply Firmly on Sarre.

PARIS, May 16.—A peremptory answer to the German note registering objections to the Peace Treaty arrangements for the left bank of the Rhine and the Sarre Valley has been drafted by the Special Commission on Territorial Affairs, presided over by André Tardieu, it was reported today.

It became known that the German delegation was preparing to send another note to the allied and associated powers concerning the treaty. The note, which has not yet been completed, is said to be in relation to Alsace and Lorraine.

As the result of conferences among the representatives of the powers, which were continued today, the text of the German treaty will probably be made public by installments. It is reported that the financial and boundaries sections of the document will be released at once.

A distinct impression among some of the subordinate members of the German peace mission that the Germans will sign the treaty is reflected in the remark of one of the secretaries, who is quoted as saying:

"What else can we do but sign? We are on the ground, your knees are on our stomachs, and your thumbs in our eyes."

Among those who arrived today from Berlin to join the German delegation

TRADE TO NATIONS THAT RATIFY FIRST

OTHER COUNTRIES TO WAIT

Clause in Terms Announced in Paris Not Covered in Wasnington Summary.

PARIS, May 16.—The German peace treaty, it developed today, contains a clause, which has not yet been made public, providing that ratification by Germany and three of the principal associated powers will bring the treaty in force between the ratifying parties, enabling the immediate resumption of trade.

It was pointed out in connection with this stipulation that any nation which withheld ratification after three of the principal powers had ratified would be at a disadvantage in a commercial way. This would follow from the fact that the ratifying powers would be able to resume trade relations with Germany at once, while the States which delayed would have no such privilege.

Washington Lacks Text of Clause.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Lacking the complete text of the peace treaty, State Department officials were unable today to throw any light on the dispatch from Paris stating that the treaty would take effect upon ratification by Germany and three of the principal associated powers, as to those powers.

The official abstract of the treaty as cabled to the department and made public May 7 said that "the treaty is to become effective in all respects for each power on the date of deposition of the ratification." It would occasion no surprise, however, if some qualification of this language were disclosed by the full text.

It is recalled that recent cable dispatches from Rome have indicated the Italian Government's belief that France, Great Britain and America had arranged to make the treaty operative upon its ratification by those powers and Germany.

AMERICA MAY MEDIATE IN ADRIATIC DISPUTE

PARIS, May 16.—Negotiations pending for the adjustment of the Adriatic controversy contemplate a direct settlement between Italy and Jugoslavia, through American mediation.

By this plan the Austrian treaty would not specify the disposition to be made of Dalmatia, Istria, or Fiume, beyond detaching them from Austria.

Wilson Message Sent by Cable; 3,000 Words on Home Topics

PARIS, May 16.—President Wilson's message, to be read at the approaching session of Congress, will make approximately 3,000 words. It is being sent forward to Washington tonight.

The message deals entirely with domestic questions. Some space in it is devoted to woman suffrage.

Appropriations and taxation are also dealt with.

The message is somewhat longer than had been expected.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—President Wilson will be officially notified by cable of the assembling of Congress when both houses convene in extra session Monday.

Congressional leaders have decided that, in view of the fact that the President is in Paris, the use of the cable is the logical method of going through with the customary procedure of notifying him. Ordinarily a committee representing both houses waits upon the President at the White House.

German Action in Letvia and Lithuania Retards Move in This Region Against Bolsheviki.

COPENHAGEN, May 15.—From a reliable source it is learned that General Mannerheim, Regent of Finland, with a Finnish army, is now standing at Bjilo Ostrow in Finland, about twenty miles northwest of Petrograd, expecting to take the city in a few days.

The Bolshevist authorities have already fled toward Moscow.

PARIS, May 15, (French Wireless Service.)—The Germans by their imperialistic manoeuvres in Letvia and Lithuania are retarding any concerted campaign against the Bolsheviki in the region of Riga and southward, according to the Warsaw correspondent of Le Temps. The effect of the coup at Libau, where the Germans overturned the Lett Government, he says, has paralyzed the anti-Bolshevist activity of the Letts and prolonged the domination of Riga by the Soviet forces. Letvia, the correspondent asserts, is politically and militarily under the influence of the Germans.

VIENNA, May 15, (Associated Press.)—Ukrainian reports indicate that the Bolsheviki are fleeing from their advanced western positions at Rovno before the army led by Simon Petlura, and are retiring in disorder, due to a lack of transportation, toward Korosteny and Sarny Junction.

It appears that there is a general uprising of Ukrainian peasants against the Bolsheviki, the town of Homel, in the Government of Mohilev, falling into their hands. The peasants are led by H. Orlovsky and are reported to have won other successes northeast of Kiev.

MISSING BLIMP C-5 GIVEN UP AS LOST

LAST SEEN ENTERING CLOUD

May Sink Through Loss of Gas or Explode Through Expansion Caused by Sun.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. JOHN'S, May 16.—Reports that the missing American dirigible C-5, which broke loose here yesterday and disappeared, had been salvaged by a British steamer having proved unfounded, American and British naval officers have given her up as lost.

All through the night the wireless operators on board the cruiser Chicago and at the British naval radio station sought eagerly for news of the "blimp," but nothing was received except bulletins from the British steamer War Nipigon, which wirelessed about 10 o'clock that she had sighted the balloon, more than 1,000 feet in the air and about three miles on her quarter. Following this came a message that the machine had settled on the water and that the War Nipigon was heading for it. Four hours later the steamer sent word that she was much off her course and regretted she could not remain longer.

The opinion of the Chicago's officers since the return of the destroyer Edwards is that the War Nipigon never saw the dirigible at all, but mistook an iceberg for the airship. Officers of the destroyer say they passed through an enormous number of icebergs and that on one occasion they saw what they were certain was the missing "blimp," but on approaching found that it was an iceberg on which the moonbeams were playing, and which under these circumstances presented a realistic appearance of the runaway flier.

Doubt C-5 Was Seen After Sundown.

The officers believe that the C-5 was never seen by any vessel after sundown. They chased it until it passed behind some clouds, and this was the last glimpse they had of it. All reports say it was going east-southeast, and the officers believe it floated away over midocean, and will probably never be sighted again, but will either sink through loss of gas during the night or explode through expansion of the gas caused by the heat of the sun.

Meanwhile the cruiser Chicago authorities are writing the machine off as a total loss and regard the experiment as ended. They are arranging to leave Newfoundland and will probably sail on Sunday. The thousand cylinders of hydrogen gas, and other supplies stored at Quidi Vidi aerodrame were being carted back to the ship today. This work will be completed by tomorrow night.

Some officers think another attempt at a flight along the same lines as the present scheme will be attempted later in the year. Others predict that the next start to cross the Atlantic will be made directly from Cape May or Rockaway to the British Isles. Those who advance this view consider that the present experiment proved the project easily feasible with the lessons gained

All in Readiness at Lisbon for American or British Fliers

LISBON, Portugal, May 16, (Associated press.)—Lisbon is all prepared for the arrival of the American transatlantic seaplanes.

Two American warships are in the Tagus River and a meteorological mission daily is studying atmospheric conditions from the observatory.

An English meteorologist also is here with stores and instruments for any English flying boats or other planes which may arrive.

FINAL PREPARATIONS MADE

Harbor Is Cleared of Craft to Make Safe Landing, and Destroyers Are in Readiness.

PONTA DELGADA, Azores, May 16, 8:30 P. M., (Associated Press.)—Final preparations were made tonight to receive the American naval seaplanes which are expected to arrive tomorrow, and the section of Ponta Delgada harbor where the planes will be moored has been cleared of all craft to allow a safe landing. The weather, which was rainy and foggy today, is clearing tonight.

If the seaplanes follow the scheduled course they will first sight land at Corvo, which is 300 miles west of Ponta Delgada. Supply boats have been stationed at Corvo and also at Horta, on the southeast coast of the Island of Fayal, in case a forced landing is necessary. Two destroyers are being held here in readiness to go to the assistance of the aviators if they are unable to find the harbor and are compelled to alight on the open sea. All the destroyers between the Azores and Lisbon are in position.

ATLANTIC CITY, May 16.—The accident to the navy dirigible C-5 at St. John's, N. F., apparentyl putting her out of the race for lighter-than-air overseas honors, has served to hasten preparations here to handle the giant British dirigible R-34, which is to come to Atlantic City in the near future.

Major Thomas S. Baldwin, U. S. A., the man who built the first army dirigible and who is recognized as America's foremost authority on dirigibles, is here in charge of the preparations. Arrangements have been completed to have 2,000 bags of sand, each weighing over fifty pounds, ready at the airport to supplement the anchoring efforts of 300 men who have been hired to help hold her down.

FLIERS' PROGRESS REPORTED TO NAVY

All Three Seaplanes Speeding Along at Good Rate, According to First Messages.

OFFICIALS ARE CONFIDENT

Relaying of Wireless Messages to Azores on Last Stage Will Delay News.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, May 17.—Reports of the progress of the NC seaplanes on their flight from Trepassey to the Azores were received by the Navy Department early this morning.

A report received in Washington at 2:50 A. M. reported that the NC-4 had passed the Meredith, Station 12, at 1:53 A. M. New York time, having traveled about 680 miles from Trepassey and more than half the distance to Ponta Delgada, the Azores.

At 1:30 A. M. message intercepted by Bar Harbor of conversation between planes: "NC-1 from NC-4. Answer." At 1:35 A. M. intercepted this message between planes: "NC-3 from NC-1. Answer." At 1:35 A. M. intercepted this message Cape Race from NC-4: "Received your call. Passed No. 10 about 4:50 G. M. T., and passed No. 11 about 5:15 G. M. T., now nearly to No. 12. Thought you had lost me."

At 2:11 o'clock this morning the Navy Department received this message from Bar Harbor:

Intercepted the following at 1:40 A. M., Cape Race from NC-4: "Great old man. See you later." At 1:41 A. M.: "NC-3 from NC-1. Answer. Have message for you."

At 1:45 A. M.: "NC-3 from NC-1. Answer." At 1:45 A. M.: "NC-3 from NC-1. Have message for you." At 1:48 A. M.: "NC-3 from NC-1. Answer." At 1:50 A. M.: "NC-3 from NC-1. Answer." At 1:51 A. M.: No. 11 from NC-1. Please give me the velocity and direction of the wind, miles per hour, and true degrees. (Signed.) NC-1."

At 1:52 A. M. NC-1 said: "Received. Thanks." At 1:53 A. M. No. 12 from NC-4: Make 4's so I can tell if you are near. Go ahead."

At 1:54 A. M. intercepted message from NC-1 saying: "Made 15 miles and 300 degrees true. (Signed) NC-1."

At 1:56 A. M. intercepted this message: "Received O. K. Finished NC-1."

At 12:35 A. M., New York time, the Nayv Department received the following message from the Bar Harbor radio station:

At 12:26 A. M., New York time, heard NC-4 tell radio station at Cape Race: "I am receiving. Interference. Go ahead again."

At the same time the Navy Department received this message from the Bar Harbor station:

At 12:27 A. M., Washington time, heard the NC-1 call No. 9 and say, "Answer."

At 12:24 A. M. the Navy Department received the following message from the radio station at Bar Harbor:

At 12:10 A. M., New York time, the NC-4 sending on 450 meters says: "Passed 4:14. Signals very weak."

The Navy Department received its first dispatches by way of the U. S. S. Melville and the Azores at 2:40 o'clock. One of them reported that the NC-4

Mechanics and Crew, Working Night and Day, Got NC-4 Ready to Start With Sister Planes; All Leave Within Three Minutes.

NC-4 in the Lead at 3:06 This Morning, Passing the Destroyer Cowell at That Time

WASHINGTON, D. C., Saturday, May 17.—The three seaplanes flying to the Azores are speeding fast toward their goal.

About 3 o'clock this morning the Navy Department received word that the NC-4, which seemed then leading, passed Station 12, (the destroyer Meredith,) at 1:53 A. M. (New York time.) The Meredith is about 680 miles out from Trepassey or more than half way to the Azores.

A little later Bar Harbor reported that the NC-1 had passed Station 13, the destroyer Bush, at 2:36 A. M., New York time. This is about 740 miles from Trepassey. She had apparently passed the NC-4.

At 3:30 this morning the Navy Department received this flash cable from the Melville, at Ponta Delgada:

"NC-4 passed Station Ship No. 14, the destroyer Cowell, at 7:06 G. M. T.," (3:06 New York time.)

This is 800 miles out from Trepassey. The NC-4 had apparently passed the NC-1 and again taken the lead.

The Cape Race station reported to Washington about 3 A. M. that the NC-4 in an intercepted message told of all three planes passing Station 11, (the Kalk.)

Many messages flying between the seaplanes came to Cape Race and were reported by the Bar Harbor station.

Soon after midnight had come word from the Bar Harbor radio station that the seaplanes were near or passing Station 9 (the destroyer Thatcher) about 12:20. One message reported the NC-1 calling No. 9 at 12:27, while just previous to that it had heard the NC-4 say: "Passed 4:14, (probably Greenwich mean time or 12:14 New York time.) Signals very weak."

About 2:40 o'clock confirmation of the passing of Station 9 came by way of the Azores. All the planes had passed Station 8 at 11:50 P. M. (New York time.) NC-3 passed Station 9 at 12:10 A. M.

The Navy Department had previously received word from St. John's that the Prairie flashed that all seaplanes passed Station No. 6, the destroyer Ward, at 10:05 P. M., New York time.

The Prairie is a tender stationed at Trepassey Bay. The message was intercepted by her while it was passing from Station No. 6, the Ward, to Station No. 7, the Palmer. The planes were making 85 miles an hour.

TREPASSEY, N. F., May 16.—The three navy seaplanes, NC-1, NC-3, and NC-4, got away from Newfoundland tonight on the long hop for the Azores, making the start almost simultaneously.

The three seaplanes made their actual starts for the Azores in the following order and time:

As the three planes rose from the water, and just as they entered the narrows leading from Trepassey Harbor into Mutton Bay, the NC-3, Commander Towers's flagplane, was leading. Then came the NC-1, captained by Lieut. Commander Bellinger, and then the NC-4, skippered by Lieut. Commander Read. They curved gracefully into the sight of the shore watchers as they cleared Powles's Head high in the air, swept to the left in a long, gentle curve, and headed to the eastward to the open sea.

For barely three minutes the three seaplanes, perhaps two miles apart, stood out on the horizon in the still bright sunlight, keeping the regular division formation. Then the leading plane, and quickly after her the other two disappeared from view, committed to the greatest journey aviators ever have undertaken.

It was not fifteen minutes after the light showed under the hull of Lieut. Commander Towers's plane that it had cleared Mistaken Point, the landfall of the departure, and five minutes later all three were above the open sea, striving mightily to gain for America and the navy the honor of being the first to cross the Atlantic by air, as well as the honor, already theirs, of being the first to start.

The voyage [illegible]s Lieut. Commander Towers's simple "Let go" set them in motion, [illegible]ced that, though they had begun their preparations weeks behind, they had triumphed over the British at least to the extent of beating their ally-rivals into the air on the transatlantic trip.

The fliers themselves generously recognized the greater dangers of the projected British landplane attempts, but could not help admitting that in flying here they had won an initial victory, despite what British fliers a few weeks ago frankly considered an insuperable handicap. A further cause of congratulation lay in getting off both before the British Navy Lieutenant Ports flying boat, which is expected at any time to start from Cape Broyle, N. F., and the British navy dirigibles which are contemplating a start from the other side.

What lies ahead of the three gallant crews? A man here cannot predict what that is beyond saying that with the static conditions favorable they should be in touch with the destroyers almost from the moment of taking a last look at Mistaken Point, and within sight of the signals.

the harbor while they are preparing to depart, there is little prospect of learning more about the progress of the seaplanes here. So far as Trepassey is concerned the transatlantic flight is over.

The weather reports received just before starting offered the finest outlook of any day since the first two seaplanes arrived here several days ago, and the tendency was for the weather to improve during the approximate twenty hours' flight to the Azores base.

The get away was not without its agonizing moments of uncertainty, and once the hearts of the watchers sank when the NC-4, after taking the water, and circling three times over Mutton Bay, landed again, and it seemed as if once more the flight was off for the night.

The decks of the Aroostook and Prairie were lined with cheering sailors, while others shouted from the rigging as the men of the fliers put off in Captains' gigs and clambered aboard the planes.

Then ensued a tedious yet tense period of seeming hours till just before 6 o'clock Commander Towers from his cockpit called across the water to know when the NC-4 would be ready.

Back from Lieut. Cmdr. Read, fighting desperately to stay in the race after once seeming to be finally out, came the cry " Ready in fifteen minutes, Sir."

Towers stood in the cockpit with his eyes on his wrist watch while the mechanics fought a harrowing battle to start the NC-4's centre forward engine, which had been installed only a few hours before.

In twelve minutes came the first false bark from the exhaust, and then for forty minutes there was a nerve-racking fight to get the balky engine going.

Amid groans and prayers every man who could gather about the stubbornly resisting engines struggled to get her started, fearing every second that Towers would give them up and leave them behind.

At last the NC-4 got going, and a moment later the NC-1 and NC-3 slipped their moorings. After taxying about the harbor to warm the engines the three craft started for Mutton Bay, where they intended to take off, then they decided to attempt the " getaway " inside the harbor, where the water was smoother, though the wind was blowing moderately northwest, which really called for a takeoff outside in order to rise into the wind, at the same time avoiding the danger of crashing against the rocks.

Moving off to the east side of the harbor, Commander Towers taxied diagonally to the southeast, pointing for the mouth of the Narrows, or as locally called the Reach. This was extremely perilous on account of the danger of crashing on Powles Peninsula, on the west side of the Narrows, or on the promontory at the end of the natural breakwater dividing the harbor from the bay, and terminating at the mouth of the Narrows.

Commander Towers could not get speed enough, and then Lieut. Commander Read, in NC-4, with Lieutenant E. F. Stone piloting, in violation of all theory and more than likely of all orders, headed directly into the Narrows and took off successfully in the cross-wind, though any seaplane pilot can demonstrate by the hour that that was almost suicide and next to impossible. Just the same up went Read, and the NC-4 first off the water, rounded Powles Head, circled Mutton Bay and came back over the harbor three times, then he landed, and perhaps, though none could hear, he apologized.

Commander Towers, convinced by this demonstration, ordered a similar take off for all three, and after skirting the west shore where the correspondents, with the waves lapping their feet, exchanged last good-bye waves of the hands, he headed into the Narrows and took off in the cross-wind.

NC-4 followed and last NC-1 got off. For a few moments the little hillbound harbor reverberated with the noise of twelve motors and the whirl of the twelve propellers until the whole atmosphere seemed to beat in synchrony, while a young pony or two galloped away, panic stricken, and a few excited fishermen fired long muzzled rifles into the air from the semaphore signal stations on the hill.

From the breakwater, where every foot of the Narrows was visible, from the roof of the telegraph office at Trepassey, and from the crow's nest of the Prairie, every move of the stirring event was bulletined for official and correspondents' records.

It was a hard night's work getting the NC-4 ready. The entire centre forward engine was removed and the spare engine brought here on the Aroostook substituted. Paragon propellers of navy design were put on her three forward engines and every bit of the mechanism was gone over and the tank and pipes steamed out and refitted. These were regarded by the authorities here as not perfect and less efficient, perhaps, than those of some other design, but were necessary on account of the heavy starting from the water. Similar propellers on the NC-1 and the NC-3, used during the vain attempt at a start in the rought water yesterday,were marked on the copper sheathing covering thirty-six inches of the tip as if rasped by a rough file, the effect of the waves through which the planes fought.

It was learned this morning that during yesterday's attempt at a start the crews of both seaplanes were severely drenched by water just at a freezing temperature, and that their clothes took all night to dry. Lieut. Commander Towers, in the forward cockpit of the NC-3, tried in vain to prevent the flooding of the compartment by standing with his back to the water. He received a severe wetting and only partly accomplished his object.

Lieut. Commander Read, commanding the NC-4, which has had the hardest battle thus far, came in with his hands in very bad condition on account of the exposure due to making repairs on the water, but he was able to continue his duties as pilot.

Lieutenant Barin, one of whose hands was injured in shoving off a buoy with which the plane threatened to collide at Halifax, was not perfectly recovered, but was able to use the injured hand. Otherwise the crews were in splendid shape.

The aviators were not well pleased with Trepassey as a starting place. Though recognizing that it was the best pickable spot, they held it inferior both to Halifax and Rockaway, and wished one of these places was located here. The difficulties were due to the rough water just outside the narrows and the rocky shores in every direction, from any possible starting place. As frequently emphasized here, the critical moment was the instant of lifting from the water, and all the seaplane commanders felt certain that the journey to the Azores was a comparatively simple matter if the take-off was successful. A further complication lay in the oil, which, as explained more fully subsequently, had to be too thick for ideal lubrication here in order not to be too thin in the warmer Azores climate. An advance warming of the lubrication systems with steam pipes from the stern of the Aroostook and the Prairie was found not to be very successful yesterday because the temperature was low, but with the warmer weather of today the experiment was repeated.

Gasoline Supply Decreased.

Next to rough water and oil complications came the uncertainty due to the shifting of the propellers. While all the authorities had full confidence in the sturdily built Paragons, their substitution here had the unfortunate effect of throwing out all of the compilations of the data of consumption obtained on the Rockaway-Halifax and Halifax-Trepassey legs, and the new propellers may make a wide difference in the efficiency result. The expedition started without definitely knowing the margin of fuel safely carried, though still most hopeful of reaching Ponta Delgado and realizing the possibility of a forced landing at Horta, where full preparations have been made.

Despite yesterday's experience in failing to get flying speed in time to take off before rough water reached the planes, Lieut. Commander Towers decided not to drop the sixth man from the crews. Instead, he lightened the NC-1 and the NC-3 by taking out 100 gallons of gasoline, weighing approximately 600 pounds. Even at that reduction the NC-1 and NC-3 weighed 28,200 pounds each.

Start Almost Postponed.

The extent to which this lightening will increase the cruising speed of the planes is uncertain, since none endeavored with a smaller load to make a speed record during the journey to the transatlantic starting point. So comparisons are difficult.

Pilot H. I. Richardson of the 3, with a boatload of fellow pilots, spent hours this morning and afternoon in reconnoitring the water in the harbor, the narrows, and Mutton Bay in order to determine the exact water conditions and familiarize themselves with the difficulties to be faced. They found the waves were six feet high where the narrows widen into the bay, and during a long conference following their return a decision not to start was very nearly reached. Just after luncheon, however, the wind, while still stiff enough to facilitate a good getaway, was less brisk and the waves died down, though the sea was still choppy. It was then decided to go.

The wireless operators on the seaplanes spent a busy morning tuning their instruments and experimenting with communications with excellent success, being able to get weather reports from destroyers on their stations 400 miles out on the course.

Captain Crenshaw, the base commander, and Captain Ghent, the Prairie's commander, decided it was useless to wait here after the seaplanes had passed the third destroyer station out, since any rescue work from here would then be impracticable, and the possibility of a return by the seaplane nearly nil.

The Prairie's men at once got busy picking up the mooring buoys and prepared to weigh anchor at daybreak tomorrow, going to a nearby port to coal and then hurrying to Newport, where the destroyers along the course rendezvous.

The Aroostook, likewise, hurried preparations to slip away, since she has been ordered to proceed at once to Plymouth, England, where the flight will terminate if all goes well. The present probability is that the Aroostook will bring back the seaplanes which complete the flight, though the question of trying to fly back has not been definitely settled.

There is some doubt in the minds of expert authorities as to whether the planes have a sufficient cruising radius to bring them back, since adverse winds are almost certain to be encountered in the opposite direction at this season of the year. Another factor is the desire of some of the reserve officers in the crews to get out of the service and resume their private interests.

Waiting for the Start.

Word that the time was at hand for the start upon one of the world's great undertakings of the air acted like a tonic upon the men the navy and all the country depend upon to add glory in a new element to the record of splendid service, although they had borne well all the anxious moments of the preparation tests and trials at Rockaway, accomplished the flight to Halifax in fine style, and withstood the ordeal of the 537-mile leg to Newfoundland without turning a hair.

The picked aviation officers had begun to fret a bit at the idleness at Trepassey which ensued upon the completion of the last detail of preparation any one concerned could think of. They crowded into the isolation ward, the sick bay, the captain's cabin, and every available spare bunk aboard the Aroostook.

The aviation details had begun to find life aboard ship a bit irksome, despite every effort by the line and staff officers aboard to make life pleasant for them, and it can be said without exaggeration that not even Lieut. Commander Towers himself took more eager interest in the job before him and his companions or more earnestly wished and planned success than did Base Commander Captain Arthur Crenshaw of the Prairie, mother ship, Captain Thombs, and every single officer and enlisted man at the base. Day and night Chenshaw and his aides toiled or studied to provide every possible assistance and guard against any probable mishap. And so, when a little while before the start word went quietly around that at last the navy's transatlantic attempt was to be a reality, the flying men, grinning, cheerful, and bright-eyed, forgot everything that lay behind them, looked what lay ahead undauntedly full in the face, and made ready with as little fuss and excitement as a New Yorker packing a bag for a Westchester week-end.

The Problems of Preparation.

In reality there was little for them to do. The seaplanes had been gone over the night before with meticulous care and groomed as finely as the most precious racehorse. Not that it was needed, but these men had formed a real attachment for the craft that had served them so well thus far—love is really hardly too strong a word—and each had determined that, should failure come as a result of some mischance, he should know in his own heart that it had resulted from no neglect on his particular part of the job.

Of all the men here, perhaps Commander Towers had had the hardest job, for upon him rested the responsibility for a dozen important technical decisions, any one of which might spell the difference between success and failure. His hardest problem—that of the take-off—kept him awake more than one night when the fishing village had gone to bed and the last boat with a liberty party had scurried over the peaceful water sparkling in the moonlight to the ship's side and all on board save a few late-tour men were sleeping in hammocks. Over and over again he checked and rechecked every available figure in weight, fuel consumption, and other details of the performance in order that not a single pound of extra fuel which might be taken along should be left behind, for he realized best of all how the last drop of gasoline in the tank in an emergency might furnish the final propulsion impulse that would mean getting there.

Yet, anxious that the start should be successful, he realized that it was vital not to overload their craft, and so over and over the dilemma he went—even when the fact that the American public had been prepared in advance for the possibility of being forced to make more than one attempt at a takeoff. Towers and all his men, with a natural pride in their undertaking, were eager for a clean getaway and no false starts. More than once, speaking among themselves, the aviators had described this feature of their tasks. Furthermore, they felt to a man that it was a thousand to one that they would get there if only the exact balance were struck between too little fuel for the safety margin and too much for a successful rise from the water and perfect traveling.

Dressed for the Flight.

Probably no " division " of naval pilots in history ever undertook manoeuvres of such pioneer magnitude so simply. Over their regular naval aviation uniforms the fliers all had donned leather suits and helmets carrying interior telephone receivers. Most of them wore ordinary shoes, with woolen socks over silk ones, it being the theory that that combination was the warmest possible. Electrical warming devices incorporated in clothing, such as the British aviators intended using in attempting the transatlantic flight in land planes, are not popular with the American fliers on this journey.

All the travelers had eaten heartily just before dressing for the flight, and once their clothes were donned, with the patent clasps which fasten them snugly with a single motion, each garment being pulled into place, they clambered down the ship's ladder to the waiting gigs and sped through the water to the two battle-gray transatlantic liners rocking slowly at the ends of their mooring ropes and making the bright red buoys bob like corks as they tugged to be free. Already aboard was a plentiful supply of generously cut sandwiches and plenty of steaming coffee in thermos bottles. They carried tabloid rations, too, but frankly did not intend eating them if avoidable.

Hundreds of sailors lined the decks of the Aroostook and the Prairie, and every officer who possibly could spare himself a few moments from his duty station took some point of vantage from which to see the NC boats off. A gig bearing Crenshaw, Ghent, and Thombs shot from the side of the Prairie a moment later and ran close to the seaplanes for the last inspection, but, warned by the experience on the arrival of the NC-1, when a collision with a launch broke one of her elevator horns, the gig kept a safe distance, the good-byes having been said before the fliers embarked upon their own commissioned vessels, the first of their kind to enjoy that distinction in the American Navy. So thoroughly were the crews of the planes indoctrinated with their precise duties, to use the navy's phrase, that orders were practically unnecessary. There had been a last moment in the ship's cabin when Towers, Bellinger, and Read ran over a few final points with their subordinates of the three seaplanes, and a few quiet words which brought about the loosening of the mooring ropes were all that were needed. Then Towers, seated in the navigator's forward cockpit of the NC-3, waved his hand as a signal to Bellinger and Read in the NC-1 and NC-4, respectively, and set the great undertaking in motion with a phrase that perhaps in time may rank with other treasured utterances of naval commanders.

"Let's Go," Said Towers.

"Let's go," he said. With that the centre forward engine of each seaplane started revolving slowly, which means that the self-starters, which had been working so well at starting cranks, had been discarded as useless weight.

At the same moment the mooring was quickly slipped, and the craft were free and actually away with scarcely a perceptible interval. The port, then the starboard forward, engine was set in motion. Then the aft engine got going and the full power plant was in motion.

Trepassey Harbor proper is a long, narrow body of water encircled at the north end by low hills neatly rounding it off. At this closed end are the mooring buoys, while the base ships are stored a bit further out toward the south and open water. There is a natural breakwater at the south end topped by a pole, hence, viewed from the eastern shore, it appears to close the harbor completely into an oblong sheet of water with a rounded north end and rocky shores shelving into low, irregular hills from the sides, most of the little clusters of houses being on the east shore. In reality the breakwater ends just short of the western side of the harbor and there is a long, narrow passageway a quarter of a mile wide which runs out, not directly, to the open sea but into Mutton Bay. This is fairly regular, U-shaped, with the breakwater forming the bottom of the letter, Powles Peninsula, the western coast line, not jutting out nearly as far as the peninsula of the eastern arm.

Towers's three planes depended entirely upon the wind. In any event he intended doing considerable running about over the surface of the water. This taxiing, it was explained, while it might appear to the uniniatiated spectators as mere playing, really was for the purpose of warming up the engine oil, this necessity being brought about by the need of carrying lubrication suitable for radically different climates. Oil that would work properly cold in the cool atmosphere here would be altogether too thin in the tropical Azores climate, and would overheat, so it was necessary to carry oil thick enough to work there, yet thin enough to work here.

Planning the "Take-Off."

After being warmed up by the engines, Commander Towers's first plan depended upon the start coming with an ideal wind, that is, a south wind blowing directly into the harbor. In any event it would be necessary to start into the wind. This, which he regarded as an ideal condition, it had been explained the day before the flight started, meant that he would taxi straight for the narrows, veering well to the right to avoid the breakwater and hoping to be in the air before the narrows were reached. Once the seaplane began to clear the water, he had planned to circle well to the left, this having the double advantage of enabling him to watch the NC-1, which would not be visible in the harbor if he turned to the right, and putting him straight on the course toward the point of departure, which was Mistaken Point; at the south end of the east coast of Newfoundland. With a northerly wind blowing south down the harbor toward the bay, a take-off inside the harbor directly into this would have meant starting directly toward the rocky hills closing the harbor end at the north.

It was this contingency which led Towers to plan that, with such a wind, he would start in Mutton Bay. One slight advantage of this getaway lay in warming up the oil during the taxiing out through the narrows into the bay, thus avoiding the necessary running about the harbor. This take-off meant leaving the water with the nose pointed toward the breakwater, or heading toward the mouth of the narrows, so that if he failed to rise he could avoid the breakwater and taxi back into the harbor. This plan, too, involved swinging to the left as the seaplane rose from the surface of the water, so that there should be no danger of crashing on the pole in the peninsula. The getaway for the NC-1 was planned precisely like that for the NC-3 and NC-4 in every particular.

Natives See the Start.

What was for Trepassey a tremendous crowd witnessed the start. Newfoundland is fully inoculated with the aviation fever, which reached it many years after other nations had got over the first thrills, for the Hawker-Raynham trial flights only a few weeks ago were the first flying ever seen on the whole island, while a jitney flying boat and the NC boats are the only flying craft ever seen here. If St. John's newspapers, the only ones published in the colony, may be taken as a criterion, the American enterprise has stirred the inhabitants far more deeply than the British preparations at St. John's and the later coming of the Handley-Page to Harbor Grace.

The papers gave far more space to the Americans from the moment the Aroostook poked her nose into Trepassey harbor than they did to the British rivals at any stage, and this despite the fact that in a country of leisurely journalism hustling after a story more than a hundred miles away is not a common experience. Perhaps it is because this is a seafaring nation, living by its fishing, so that a vast majority of the men in the whole colony are accustomed to go to sea time and again each year after cod and herring, and once each year after seals, that a naval enterprise, carried out with something that at least resembled a boat, appealed far more to their imagination than did the—to them—uterly strange and not understood craft planning to dare the passage, though unable to live in the water.

For days the crowd in Trepassey had increased gradually, though the town is practically void of accommodations for visitors.

Comparatively few came from St. John's, the colony's only real city, but many came long distances afoot or by sailboat from the outports. At night these men, with a sprinkling of women, despite the fact that the ships were anchored a mile and a half from them and there was nothing stirring on shore, were contented to walk quietly up and down the narrow street that is really little more than a path along the beach, staring seaward as the blinker lights on the Prairie and the Aroostook chattered back and forth or listening respectfully to any sailor lad willing to tell them what he knew—and, alas! it is to be feared, sometimes what he did not know about the forthcoming venture. If Newfoundland did not wish the United States, its navy, and the individuals immediately concerned luck and success, certainly those who came here were consummate actors, and they are a simple people of whom that is not to be believed; and if there was any jealousy and regret, that, despite the late coming and the belief two months ago that the "Yanks" were hopelessly out of the race, it was the United States' and not Great Britain's unofficial representatives who were destied to have the first try at the new thing in exploration, no such sentiment was ever whispered even anywhere near this correspondent.

Crews Sure of Their Luck.

The safe journey of the C-5 to St. John's was taken as a good omen by the seaplane crews, the feeling among them just before the start being that the event was one more evidence that things were destined to break the navy's way.

"We don't ask for good luck, we just don't want bad luck," was the way they felt and, though these particular aviators are notably unsuperstitious, they couldn't help feeling an inner conviction that things were going their way.

No event in the whole preparation stage did more to give them confidence, strange as it may seem, than the fire at Rockaway. Instead of interpreting that as an ill-omen they felt to a man that the saving of the NC boats when they seemed destined to destruction was a veritable sign from Fate. That the dirigible's feat was similarly received was due largely to the fact that not one of the transatlantic voyagers knew or even suspected that the lighter-than-air machine was coming, perhaps to rival them. So the news of her success, coming so shortly on the heels of the announcement of her departure, reached them almost out of a clear sky.

Reverting to the aviators' lack of superstition, this is illustrated by the absence aboard the seaplanes of a mascot of any sort. It is true Lieut. Commander Bellinger, Captain of the NC-1, for a time thought of taking a silver fox from the farm at Portugal Cove, near here, but that idea was abandoned. Bellinger did carry a four-leaf clover, but he met with a noncommittal grin inquiries as to whence it had come. If any others carried personal tokens, they were kept well hidden away.

Before the crews left here an impressive air of confidence, lacking entirely any element of reckless boastfulness, pervaded the whole company. The aviators knew exactly what faced them; they had done all that was humanly possible to prepare to meet every difficulty, and, short of mechanical breakdown, which itself had been reduced to a minimum chance, were quietly confident that once they rose into the air the United States Navy was well on the way toward accomplishing the first Atlantic air crossing.

It is just to say that one large element of this confidence should be attributed to Lieutenant Commander R. E. Byrd, who was in charge of navigation for the whole expedition during the preparation period. Byrd it was who invented the aerial sextant, which has driven every experienced navigation officer here almost frantic with desire to possess one for his own ship, for it makes the taking of observations possible despite wind, rain, fog, snow, or any other obstacles to be encountered. This is but one of four special instruments for which Byrd is very largely responsible, and which, incidentally, thus far he has refused to patent, though they promise to prove immensely valuable. There is not a man aboard either air liner but is willing to admit Byrd's instruments have meant a tremendous lot to him personally and the whole project.

No Fear of Night Flight.

It was the intention at the moment of departure to follow exactly the course laid down in the flight orders, unless forced out of the course by weather conditions. This course, from Mistaken Point to Corvo, is 1,239 land miles. Thence the shortest route to Horta is 130 land miles, and to Ponta Delgada 171 miles further. The total distance from Trepassey to Ponta Delgada is 1,540 miles, the first port of landing depending on the weather on arrival at Corvo, or on some emergency arising on the planes that may require landing before reaching Ponta Delgada; but every effort is bent to get to Ponta Delgada base without delay.

Averaging the time of the NC-1 and the NC-3 from Halifax to Trepassey gives 77.1 miles an hour. If the same rate should be maintained all the way across, the seaplanes would sight land at Corvo in a little over sixteen hours after the starting time and reach the Azores base at Ponta Delgada three and a half hours later.

A night flight at the journey's start worried the commanders and their men but little, though they were well aware of the danger that would be entailed in the event of a forced landing. Judging the distance above the water at night is extremely difficult, and there is ever present the danger of "pancaking" on the sea, like a small boy making a bad dive. This is particularly true of the big NC boats, because it is difficult to manoeuvre up again fast enough to avoid disaster if it is discovered that the landing has been misjudged. All seaplanes are fitted with landing flares, with a magnesium base, sending a bright light over the water at the touch of an open switch in the navigator's cockpit.

The commanders of the two boats face their worst time from the standpoint of exposure, since, while they can kneel in the compartment behind the seat to calculate their chart position and can work the sextant sitting down, they must stand full face to the wind to take drift observations. All the members of the crews, particularly the pilots and engineers, are likewise confronted with the difficulty of getting about in the narrow, tunnel-like passageways and on the outboard rigging, though the latter is used only under exceptional circumstances, and then with the aid of a special harness, to prevent falling overboard.

CREWS OF THE SEAPLANES.

Six Men on Each of the Three Fliers.

TREPASSEY, N. F., May 16, (Associated Press.)—Lieut. Commander Towers announced that the planes would start with the following crews:

The NC-1.

Lieut. Commander M. A. Mitscher, pilot.
Lieutenant L. T. Barin, pilot.
Lieutenant Harry Sadenwater, radio operator.
Chief Machinists' Mate C. I. Kesler, engineer.

The NC-3.

Lieut. Commander John H. Towers, commander.
Lieut. Commander H. C. Richardson, pilot.
Lieut. Commander R. A. Lavender, radio operator.

NC-4.

Ensign Charles Rodd, radio operator.
Lieutenant J. L. Breese, Jr., engineer.
Chief Machinists' Mate E. S. Rhodes, engineer.

Speedier Blimp All Ready at Rockaway if Ordered to Make Trip.

There is still a chance that America will have an entry in the lighter-than-air machine race to cross the Atlantic. If the Navy Department orders it, the dirigible C-4, at Rockaway Beach Air Station, can leave on short notice to take the place at Newfoundland of the C-5, its sister "blimp."

Lieutenant J. J. Quinn, commander of the C-4, said yesterday:

"We are standing by and are ready to go when and where the Navy Department orders. A number of flights by the navy dirigibles are contemplated, one to the Pacific Coast and another to the Panama Canal, but we have received no definite orders."

by the twenty-four-hour flight from Montauk to St. John's.

An additional reason for this belief is the feeling that before another American expedition of this kind can be organized some of the British machines planning the trip from St. John's, either the two-seated airplanes, Handley-Page machine, or Porte's flying boat will probably succeed in getting across, and that world interest in a flight from here would then be trifling, whereas a flight from New York to London would be a really spectacular event.

Nothing, of course, is yet known by naval men as to the attitude of the Navy Department on the matter, nor is it likely to be determined until a full report of the trip from Montauk to St. John's and of the facts attending the loss of the airship are received by the department.

Coil to Ask Another Chance.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., May 16, (Associated Press.)—Commander Coil, who commanded the C-5 on the flight here from Montauk Point, announced tonight his intention of asking the Navy Department immediately for permission to make another attempt at a transatlantic flight in a dirigible.

"Our trip from New York to St. John's, rough as it was, proved that a dirigible can stand any kind of weather," he said. "Except for minor details, such as strengthening the fabric in some places, I can think of no improvements to recommend on ships of the C type. I shall ask for immediate assignment to one of the C ships with the crew of the C-5, with the idea of making an overseas cruise."

Commander Coil said the question whether the flight should be continued from here or be begun again from Rockaway Point had not been considered. He added that it was not possible to attempt to assemble one of the big balloons here without shelter.

"We realized when we planned the flight to Newfoundland that the biggest question was the safety of the ship during the lay-over here," he said, "as it was impossible to build a shed in time. Just how we can obviate such a danger again has not been determined."

The union jack flying today from the mainyard of the cruiser Chicago, the dirigible's mothership, announced that a board of inquiry was sitting. Its deliberations were secret, but it was stated that it was simply a routine procedure necessary to consider the loss of the dirigible and to place responsibility. Commander Coil and members of his crew were heard before they left on the destroyer Edwards for Boston. Lieutenant Charles G. Little and members of the landing crew also were called.

"Steaming at from twenty to twenty-five knots an hour," he said, "we played hide-and-seek all night with icebergs in the arctic current. Bergs were thick on all sides of us, and two of them were almost as high as Signal Hill."

OFFICIAL REPORT OF MISHAP.

Unavoidable, Due to Wind Conditions, Commander Coil Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt issued the following statement today concerning the breaking away and disappearance of the dirigible C-5 at St. John's yesterday:

"The Navy Department early today received a dispatch from Trepassey stating that the British steamer War Nipigon had reported sighting the dirigible C-5, which broke from her moorings yesterday afternoon and drifted to sea. The C-5 was reported in latitude 47.50 north and longitude 50.37 west in the water. The destroyer Edwards, the dispatch added, had been ordered to proceed there. The War Nipigon reported that she was steering for the C-5 and would save her if possible.

"The department also received the following official report from Commander Coil, commanding officer of the C-5, regarding the breaking away of the C-5 from her moorings:

"'The new Navy dirigible C-5 broke adrift from moorings at 3:45 P. M. yesterday afternoon and drifted to sea in a northeasterly direction, wind velocity approximately 40 miles per hour and stronger in gusts. No persons injured and none on board.

"'The C-5 was preparing to rip due to impossibility of remaining at mooring. Rip cord failed at the breaking junction at outside patch nose, bridal suspension carried away followed by preventer loop on nose of car, which permitted mooring lines to car to take all the strain.

"'These two three-inch lines parted. Dirigible rose in air, held only by two forward handling lines held by men of ground crew. These were jerked from hands of crew by the C-5 rising, crashing and rebounding into the air. The U. S. S. Edwards put to sea to follow the C-5.

"'Lieutenant Little was in the car of the C-5 at the time of the breakaway and escaped uninjured by jumping from a height of about 20 feet.

"'All possible precaution had been taken by landing party. The accident was unavoidable, due to wind conditions.

Sixty Destroyers, Five Battleships, and Several Auxiliary Ships Direct Seaplanes.

ALL READY FOR S O S CALL

Detailed orders to the units of the destroyer force patrolling the course of the navy seaplanes disclose that, under the plan formulated by Commander Towers and the other navy officers in direction of the flight, the three planes were to have started on their hop from Trepassey Bay to the Azores one hour before sunset on Thursday, May 14. The date was set so that the planes would have the benefit of the full moon during their long night flight to the Azores.

It was pointed out in the orders that the fixed date for the start was not inflexible and that the planes might start from Trepassey on any day after May 10 "if the planes are ready and the weather is exceptionally favorable." In informing the destroyer commanders of the course selected for the planes from Trepassey Bay to the Azores, the orders say:

"Departure about one hour before sunset. Mercator's course from Mistaken Point to Corvo as a landfall, thence shortest route to Horta or Punta Delgado, the first port or landing being dependent on weather on arrival at Corvo, or on some emergency arising on planes that requires landing before reaching Punta Delgado. If weather and other circumstances are favorable, landing will be at Punta Delgado, otherwise planes land at Horta, wait good weather or completion repairs, then proceed to Punta Delgado. Planes will refuel at Punta Delgado as quickly as possible and if practicable will stop there only one night."

In flying from the Azores to Lisbon, the planes will start early in the morning and follow "Mercator course to the mouth of the Tagus." Leaving Lisbon for Plymouth, the machines will take wing in the morning, skirt the coast to Cape Finisterre, fly across the Bay of Biscay to Brest, and thence to Plymouth. Concluding its information to the destroyers upon the course of the planes, the order says that "the estimated speed through air is sixty miles an hour, which will make speed over ground greater or less than sixty miles by the amount wind component is with or against seaplanes."

Under the details of the orders none of the planes will be out of sight of some ship in the patrol force that is to be scattered along the course at intervals of about fifty miles. Each ship was ordered to take aboard radio sets of about 425-meter wave length and Aldis searchlights, so that they would be able to communicate with the seaplanes overhead during the darkness as well as in the daytime. A special number, assigned to each ship, was ordered displayed on its deck by illumination at night and by painted canvas during the day. Each ship also was ordered to "smoke" heavily and exhibit flares and star signals to guide the planes, and, as each plane came overhead, to steam slowly along the prescribed course to the next station, so that the air pilots would be able to verify their own courses.

Five Battleships Along the Route.

In addition to the force of more than fifty destroyers and ships of other types along the route, five battleships were designated to take up stations in the Atlantic to supply meteorological data for the seaplane commanders, to guide them on their course with flares and lights, and to give them assistance in case of accident. Upon notification that the planes had sailed from Trepassey the Arkansas was to have sailed from Plymouth, England, to a station at lat. 48.00 N., long. 12.00 W., so that she would be able to transmit her data to the Shawmut, stationed at Lisbon. The other battleships in the meteorological detachment that were to have taken up their positions on May 7 are:

	Lat. N.	Long. W.
Utah	50-25	39-40
Texas	36-00	42-00
Wyoming	40-00	52-00

Each one of these battleships, under the orders of Captain Laning, was to have been a pivot for destroyer patrols, so that the entire fleet of guide ships was directed to work in five divisions.

One or more destroyers in each division also was detailed to remain near the station ship in reserve so that it might give assistance to planes alighting upon the ocean in distress. One destroyer in each division also was instructed to gather meterological data for transmission to the station ship, although all other ships also were to supply these data in lesser detail. The instructions to the destroyers and station ships follow:

In addition to indicating track to seaplanes, destroyers will render every assistance to planes that may be necessary. Destroyers designated "in reserve" on the station lists will normally be in company with centre ship of group to which assigned, and during flight will follow motions of that ship except they will not use searchlights, fire star shells, "torch" or make smoke. The destroyer in reserve will be utilized at discretion of station of patrol of group to replace a destroyer leaving station or to render assistance to seaplanes.

After arrival on stations the control of the destroyers in each group, as indicated in deployment lists, will fall to the station of patrol of the group, where it will remain until stations are finally vacated after the flight. After arrival on stations and until flight starts, destroyers may steam back and forth within a radius of twenty miles of station position, on such courses as may be most comfortable. When flight starts, take exact position and maintain it accurately until flight passes, unless called away by station of patrol or other emergency.

Whenever a station ship is passed by one or more seaplanes it will immediately inform next ship to eastward by radio. When a station ship receives report that plane has passed next station to westward it will commence smoking in daytime and continue to smoke until last plane passes or is accounted for. At night ship will "torch" and searchlights will be turned on at once and kept on, trained directly into the true wind, until planes have passed or been accounted for. In case of mist or thick weather searchlights sweep heavens in vertical plane into true wind until plane reports vessel has been sighted, when beam will be steadied level. At night ship will also commence to fire star shells from three-inch guns at five-minute intervals and continue firing until plane reports sighting; star shells to be fired to north on maximum (75 degrees) elevation, with fuses set for five seconds, unless plane requests otherwise.

Knowing time of start of flight, station ships should be able to approximate time of arrival, even should a plane miss the station ship to westward and notice of passing be not sent out. Therefore, in case station ship next to westward does not sight or report planes, the next station ship shall commence to smoke, show lights, use searchlights, fire star shells, &c., three-quarters of an hour before probable time for arrival of planes as estimated from information received as to progress of flight.

Should a station ship be "off station" during flight due to answering an S O S or for some other emergency, it will make smoke or "torch" and fire star shells as above directed, but will inform planes that it is out of position. Upon being notified that it has been sighted by planes, or when planes are sighted by a station ship, station ship will immediately stop smoking or "torching" and firing star shells, put herself on exact course to next station, and proceed slowly on that course to enable plane to check course and determine leeway or drift. When a plane has passed from sight of naked eye, station ship will return to position for benefit of planes not passed.

When an S O S call is received from a plane, the two station ships nearest to indicate position of plane proceed to her assistance with all possible speed unless notified otherwise. Upon arrival, if repairs are possible lend all assistance; if repairs are not possible, group station of patrol designate one destroyer to take plane in tow and proceed to nearest port. If plane is too damaged to be towed, destroyer, after rescuing personnel, use every effort to salvage engines and equipment. Utilize destroyer in reserve to best advantage in an S O S emergency.

If S O S call comes at night, destroyers will keep brilliantly illuminated while proceeding to plane, with "torch," will keep searchlight sweeping heavens, and will keep bright lookout for Very's signals, the color of which will indicate character of forced landing and condition of plane. If while off station for any purpose a destroyer sights a plane in air, it will signal duty it is on, and if requested will send to plane in air the true bearing and distance, from destroyer's then position, to next station. In proceeding to assistance by day destroyers will make heavy smoke.

Twenty-five destroyers were ordered to sea from Trepassey Bay so that they would be able to take up their appointed stations at dawn on May 10. The vessels were to operate in four groups, with one detailed to supply meteorological data and another to be held in reserve. The ships and their stations follow:

Ships designated to take the meteorological data for the flight from Lisbon to Plymouth, under the orders, are required to take their positions on the morning of May 15, but the other vessels to aid them will not steam to their places until they have received word that the seaplanes have left the Azores. These ships and their stations are:

Ship.	Lat. N.	Long. W.
Breckenridge	43-57	8-35
Barney	44-47	7-56
Chew (met.)	45-38	7-16
Hazelwood	46-31	6-32
Elliott	47-22	5-48
Blakely, (reserve.)

Minute directions also were given to the destroyers upon the methods to be used by them in signaling to the seaplanes and in illuminating the course during the night. These instructions follow:

During the flight, signal or radio calls for any ship on a station will be by the number of the station and not by ship call letters. Messages sent between planes and destroyers and between destroyers during the flight will be signed with the number of the station the ship is occupying.

During the flight each station destroyer will show the number of the station it is marking in such a way as to be plainly visible from aloft at a height of 2,000 feet or less. For daylight zones, numbers eight feet high painted black on a white background stretched across forecastle deck on awning ridge ropes or painted on forecastle deck well forward of bridge will answer. Illuminated numbers eight feet high will be displayed by destroyers in the night zone during darkness. Destroyers will improvise these numbers. They will be placed so as to be read by seaplanes coming from astern.

Destroyers marking line will remain on stations and be ready to answer a call or render assistance until last plane has passed station next to eastward, unless called on to render assistance, in which case they may leave regular station. When flight has started from a base no radio messages, other than those pertaining to the flight, will be sent except in cases of emergency until planes arrive at next port. Keep air free for the benefit of the flight. All messages must be as brief as possible.

The seaplanes also are equipped with searchlights so that they may signal to the patrol ships during the night flight from Trepassey Bay to the Azores, and the bulletin of general information to the patrol ships says that they will use their lights, their radio sets, and torches and flares if they are compelled to alight on the surface of the water for repairs. Showing of a green light by a plane on the water will convey to the patrols the information that the aircraft needs no assistance, and will be able to take to the air again. A red light will be the signal for assistance by the patrols. If one of the planes is forced down the others will stand by until the disabled machine has assistance. Captain Laning's orders stipulated that, if one of the planes were wrecked, the first patrol to reach it should take off the crew of the seaplane and then try to salvage the motors and as much of the plane as possible. The bulletin of information continues:

"In case of failure of material that necessitates immediate or eventual forced landing, planes will send out an S O S call, giving position and, if time permits, cause of landing. If immediate landing is not necessary, planes will ask for directional radio signal from the nearest station vessel, and will fly toward that vessel, keeping vessel informed of position. If immediate landing is necessary, plane will continue communications from the water.

"All planes will be equipped with radio direction finders and will rely largely on them for navigation purposes. In order to insure successful use of radio direction finders, destroyers marking stations will, so far as practicable, have five-kilowatt spark radio sets."

A note on the orders instructs all the ships to use Greenwich mean civil time, and advises that all timepieces be checked frequently. Radio messages to be sent from the ships to the planes, as well as from ship to ship, will be marked with the time in seconds as well as in minutes.

Detailed orders also were given to the ten ships designated to act as tenders for the seaplanes and to carry fuel for the destroyers. The Shawmut was instructed to take 10,000 gallons of gasoline, 600 gallons of aviation oil, with spare parts and moorings, so that she would be able to establish a base at Lisbon for the seaplanes before May 16. The Columbia was instructed to be at Horta by May 12, with supplies and moorings to establish a base there for the probable use of the seaplanes in case they did not alight at Punta Delgada. The Melville went to Punta Delgada. All these ships, with others in the patrols and meteorological stations, were ordered to return to their stations in this country upon completion of the flight.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., May 16.—While the American naval aviators were making preparations for their flight, Harry G. Hawker and Frederick P. Raynham, the British airmen, announced that mid-Atlantic weather conditions forbade a start with their machines.

passed Station 8, the destroyer Walker, at 11:29 P. M., New York time. All the planes had passed Station No. 8 at 11:50 P. M., New York time.

Another report stated that the NC-3 passed Station 9, the destroyer Thatcher, at 12:10 A. M. New York time.

The NC-1 at that time was calling on the Thatcher to answer, but naval officials stated that this did not indicate that the seaplane was in any trouble. It was the usual navy signal when communication was desired. The Bar Harbor radio station had been instructed to listen at 450 and 1,500 meters.

The distance between Bar Harbor and the point where the NC-1 was flying at the time is about 1,000 miles, and the feat is considered a remarkable one.

The "4:14" was interpreted by navy officials to mean 4:14 Greenwich time, which is 12:14 New York time. There was nothing to indicate the position of the NC-4 when the message was sent.

There was nothing in any of the messages, in the opinion of naval officials in charge here, to indicate that either the NC-1 or the NC-4 was in trouble or that the flight was not progressing favorably.

The first official report received by the Navy Department on the progress of the three NC planes was received just before midnight from St. John's, and indicated that all three planes had passed the destroyer Ward, Station No. 6, at 10:45 New York time.

The earlier advices had been to the effect that weather conditions were most favorable, and the experts here had figured out by charts that by midnight the planes had covered approximately one-third of their journey to the Azores.

It is stated here that the destroyers have been instructed not to send messages other than distress calls, except by a route which carries a message from destroyer to destroyer along the course to the U. S. S. Melville at Ponta Delgado in the Azores. This message would then be relayed back by cable to this country. Tests made today showed that it probably would require from five to six hours after the seaplanes passed the first of the destroyers before such a message would be received in this country.

The Navy Department considered that no news before midnight was good news, as it carried with it the probability that all went well and that the destroyers had not found it necessary to send out any distress calls, which undoubtedly would have been picked up and relayed back to this country. It is confidently believed here that up to midnight at least the seaplanes have had a successful flight and that they are proceeding at from sixty to seventy miles an hour toward their destination.

The destroyers have been instructed not to send out indiscriminate wireless messages unless there is a grave emergency in connection with the flight because such messages would interfere with the carefully prepared plan to prevent disruption of essential air messages.

The battleships, which have powerful sending apparatus on board, and which are stationed on either side of the route at a distance of about 200 miles to the north and south of the lane of destroyers, are therefore not receiving advices except such as are sent to them by stations in this country or on the other side of the Atlantic which are tuned up so as not to interfere with the wireless sending of the destroyer fleet.

While this plan leaves the position and safety of the planes somewhat in doubt, it was considered essential in order that there might be nothing to interfere with the transmission by wireless of essential information to the seaplanes.

The navy seaplanes passed out of sight of land at 6:20 o'clock tonight. Here is the log of the transatlantic flight up to that hour:

4:53 P. M., American time, (20:53 Greenwich mean time,) NC-1 began taxiing for Azores flight.

5:53 P. M., American time, (21:53 Greenwich mean time,) NC-4 landed Trepassey Harbor after circling harbor.

6:20 P. M., American time, (22:20 Greenwich mean time,) seaplanes NC-1, NC-3, and NC-4 passed from sight on historic voyage.

The Navy Department instructed the seaplane commanders to use Greenwich mean civil time for the purposes of the flight in the following order, issued today:

"Greenwich mean civil time shall be used for all communication purposes. Greenwich mean civil time is the civil time of the meridian of Greenwich, the day commencing at midnight and the hours numbered from one to twenty-three. All radio operators shall keep their watches and clocks set at Greenwich mean civil time."

The normal difference in time between New York and Greenwich is five hours, which is equivalent to saying that when it is noon in New York it is 5 o'clock in the afternoon in Greenwich, but due to the daylight saving system in effect in this country now, the difference is reduced one hour.

Here is a comparative table reducing Greenwich mean time to Washington Summer time which is the same as New York Summer time:

G.M.T.	Wash. and N. Y. Time.	G.M.T.	Wash. and N. Y. Time.
0	8 P. M.	12	8 A. M.
1	9 P. M.	13	9 A. M.
2	10 P. M.	14	10 A. M.
3	11 P. M.	15	11 A. M.
4	12 midn't.	16	12 noon
5	1 A. M.	17	1 P. M.
6	2 A. M.	18	2 P. M.
7	3 A. M.	19	3 P. M.
8	4 A. M.	20	4 P. M.
9	5 A. M.	21	5 P. M.
10	6 A. M.	22	6 P. M.
11	7 A. M.	23	7 P. M.

The seaplanes were under instructions to proceed at about sixty miles an hour at the start unless the wind conditions were found to be most favorable. Under those conditions the speed was to be increased quickly, especialy as gasoline was consumed and the load carried by the seaplanes was lightened.

Reports concerning the wind conditions were most favorable, and the officials believe that the final records will show that an average speed of from seventy to eighty miles an hour was made throughout the trip.

The arrangements for wireless communication established by the Navy Department were most elaborate. The United States steamship Aroostook, which was at Trepassey Bay as a tender for the seaplanes, was under instructions to send information of the start to the destroyer Greer, the first of the ships forming the chain between Trepassey and the Azores. It was then to start for Plymouth, England.

The wireless apparatus on the various ships used in the wireless system were tuned so that none would interfere with the free transmission of messages. The destroyer Greer was under instructions to send the message received from the Aroostook to Station Ship No. 2, the Aaron Ward, and thus the message was to be carried from destroyer to destroyer, twenty in number, along the route, until it was delivered to the Melville at Ponta Delgada, in the Azores. Messages concerning the flight were to be relayed in the same manner by the destroyers and were to be sent from Ponta Delgada to Fayal, and thence on by cable back to Nova Scotia and on to New York.

HINDENBURG URGED PEACE ON SEPT. 29

And on Oct. 3 He Wrote Prince Max That Germany's Case Was Hopeless.

FRENCH HAVE THE LETTER

The Marshal's Warning Was Immediately Followed by German Overtures for an Armistice.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 14.—According to the following letter, Hindenburg was demanding on Sept. 29, forty-three days before the armistice, that Germany secure peace, and in a repetition of that demand to Prince Max of Baden on Oct. 3, he admitted that the case was hopeless. This Hindenburg letter will appear in an appendix to a document soon to be published by the French War Office under the title "Why Germany Capitulated." Hindenburg wrote to Max of Baden:

"The Supreme Commander of the Armies adheres to his request, formulated on Sunday, Sept. 29, 1918, for the immediate offer of peace to our enemies.

"In consequence of the collapse of the Macedonian front and the diminution of our reserves for the western front which has resulted therefrom, and in consequence also of the impossibility we find of making good the very serious losses that have been inflicted on us in the combats of the last few days, there no longer remains any hope, so far as it is possible for man to judge, of compelling the enemy to make peace.

"The enemy on his part is daily throwing fresh reserves into the struggle. Nevertheless, the Germany Army remains firm and is triumphantly repulsing all attacks. The situation, however, is becoming more critical every day and may force the High Command to take decisions involving very serious consequences.

"Under these conditions it will be better to cease the struggle to avoid useless losses to the German people and their allies. Every day lost is costing us the lives of thousands of brave soldiers."

MINISTERS DISCUSS AUSTRIAN FRONTIERS

Austrian Credentials Will Probably Be Presented to the Allies Next Tuesday.

PARIS, May 16, (Associated Press.)—The Council of Foreign Ministers continued work today on subsidiary details of the Austrian treaty having to do with the new Austrian frontiers.

It is considered unlikely that the treaty will be ready for presentation to the Austrian plenipotentiaries before Wednesday of next week at the earliest.

The Council of Four yesterday discussed the military, naval and aerial terms of the treaty.

Premier Lloyd George was absent today to bid good-bye to a Welsh regiment that is leaving France for home, and the Council of Four will not meet again before Saturday. President Wilson improved the opportunity to meet a number of persons with whom he had appointments. Mr. Wilson yesterday afternoon drove in an automobile to the neighborhood of St. Germain, but he did not encounter any members of the Austrian delegation.

TO REORGANIZE AUSTRIA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, May 14.—The Christian Socialist Party today submitted a bill to the Austrian Assembly for a new constitution for the Austrian Republic. The bill provides for the creation of a cantonal organization on the Swiss model, each cantonal State to have practically full internal autonomy, and the Central Government to be limited mainly to the departments of Foreign Affairs, Joint Finances, and Military Establishment.

According to the scheme the City of Vienna is to be a separate cantonal State, independent of Lower Austria.

PARIS, May 15, (French Wireless Service.)—The Austrian Government is planning the reorganization of the currency system of the country, it appears from a Government report published by the Neues Wiener Zeitung of Vienna. The monetary standard will be readjusted, according to this plan, and the franc substituted for the crown.

OUR RHINE ARMY HOME IN AUGUST

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, May 15.—The last of the American Army of Occupation will probably be on the seas nearing home by Aug. 1. General Pershing has told the men of the 1st and 2d Divisions, which hold the Coblenz bridgehead, that he will take them home with him, and the Commander in Chief says he expects to get home about Aug. 1. Such a program means that the Americans will all be away from the Rhine by July 15, which is six weeks earlier than was contemplated before the speeding-up schedule was suddenly put into effect this week.

The good news of the early home-going put new life into the Americans on the Rhine, who were finding life here very irksome, and who had begun to fear the outcome of the Peace Conference would be that United States troops would be kept in Germany for years. All that is changed now, and the spirit of the doughboys matches the glorious weather of the last three or four days.

Marshal Foch arrived here this morning and had a reception at Lieut. Gen. Liggett's headquarters. It is stated that the Marshal's visit is made unofficially. This is the first time he has been in the American bridgehead. He goes from here to visit the British at Cologne, and then to the French headquarters at Mayence. General Pershing welcomed Marshal Foch here.

The Germans, after violent outbursts against President Wilson and the Americans, on hearing the terms of the peace treaty, are now busy assuring the Americans that they dislike only Wilson and not the rest of the Americans. This does not get very far with our soldiers, who, to tell the bald truth, are not worrying about the whole situation since it has become evident that, whether the Germans sign the peace treaty or not, they are going home.

The Interallied Rhineland Commission, which will exercise supervision in the occupied territory over matters other than strictly military, but which still have an interest for the Allies, will be located at Coblenz. Some of its officials have reached here and are arranging for offices and quarters.

There is much discussion here over the new orders that no more women workers are to be brought to Coblenz. I believe, however, that this order has no other significance than that the get-away plans have been speeded up, and the movement of personnel will be in the other direction.

COBLENZ FOOD PROBLEMS.

State Aid for Poor and Distribution by Americans Suggested.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, May 15.—The authorities are trying to arrange for a reduction of the price of American food to the poorer classes of Germans who, because of the decline in the value of the mark, find it very difficult to pay such prices as 8 marks a pound for bacon. One plan suggested was to make the rich pay more, so that the poor might pay less; but the plan apparently more favored is to pay part of the cost of the food from public funds, thus making it lower in price for consumers buying it at German retail stores.

Some Germans have petitioned the Americans to distribute the American food even after the army goes away, on the ground that the German officials are not fair toward the poor. They say that the rich got most of the food during the war, and they fear a repetition of this. Investigation by the American army officials, however, fails to reveal any unfairness on the part of the German officials now charged with the food distribution under the watchful eye of the American officers.

ROME ACCLAIMS THE OMEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, May 15.—Under the prevailing acute stress of national anxiety respecting the imminent decisions of the Peace Conference in regard to Italy the ancient Roman belief in omens has been revived with remarkable vigor. When Gabriele d'Annunzio lately unfurled on the heights of the Capitoline Hill the sacred banner brought from Dalmatia, in which had been wrapped the bodies of heroes, it was observed that its embroidered border descended to lap the water in the antique fountain underneath. Then the black band of mourning with which the warrior-poet had draped the banner was twice blown away, as if in displeasure, by sudden gusts of wind.

"Two first-rate good omens!" exclaimed d'Annunzio. "But our faith must await from this hallowed hill a perfect third."

Surely enough, this was vouchsafed yesterday, when the sacred wolf Haragott, caged on the Capitol, gave birth to a litter of five. The Roman populace is wild with joy, for the latest bulletin announces that the mother and her new offspring are all doing well.

BLISS TAKES BIGGER SHARE IN COUNCILS

AMERICANS ADMIRE DERBY

Suggestion That British Ambassador Be Transferred from Paris to Washington.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 15.—It is remarked that General Tasker H. Bliss is taking an increasing share in the work of the Peace Conference. He was one of the wheel horses in the Supreme War Council at Versailles, and gained a position there second to no other member. He carried out the President's insistent policy for the unification of military command in the Spring of 1918 with such wisdom and tact as greatly to promote the plan. He is not only a scientific soldier but has a full understanding of the political and civil side of European questions. President Wilson has found his aid most valuable, and is using it more and more in the closing weeks of the conference.

There is a widespread feeling that Germany will accept the peace terms. While she groans over what she considers their severity, it is believed that she will sign because there is no other way out for her. Until she thus accepts the principle of defeat and expiation it will be impossible to consider any measures for her recovery and restoration to commercial and political relationship with the world. With the slightest suspicion of pro-Germanism in dealings with her it would apparently have been impossible to set up standards of abstract justice. What could not be accomplished in the peace terms, and what must necessarily be measurably accomplished in order to enable Germany to produce and pay, can be worked out under the elastic provisions of the treaty and the supplementary methods of the League of Nations. Germany's reception of the terms of the treaty showed the need of bringing that country to a sense of realities. The acceptance of the treaty will give Germany a point of view which may enable the Allies to consider her future claims with less repugnance and put her in a position to meet her obligations and eventually to recover industrial and economic solvency.

There are many indications that what has been considered the policy of "muddling" in Russia has had much wisdom in it, and may work out comparatively satisfactorily. The situation in Russia appears to have admitted of positive measures at no time since the armistice. Inherent weaknesses in the Bolshevist position have been developing one after another, and there is a growing belief in the ability of the Allies to overcome adverse influences in Russia in stabilizing Europe under the treaty and the League of Nations.

Nobody has yet solved the mystery of Italy's action. Orlando attends the Big Four meetings, but the question of Fiume has not been raised since his return. The best informed do not believe that there will be any change in essentials of the position enunciated by Wilson.

Quotations from the American press which have reached here, are accepted as showing that public opinion is favorable to the treaty terms. The French are deeply gratified at the small amount of criticism regarding the military agreement. The more the provision is studied the more it will appear that President Wilson has carefully safeguarded America against any committal that could draw her into an unnecessary war. If the agreement should be made effective it would not constitute an obligation under which America need be restive.

The vacancy in the British Ambassadorship at Washington has been much discussed here, and an interesting suggestion was made today. The admirers of the Earl of Derby have drawn Lloyd George's attention to that nobleman's availability and fitness for the Washington post. Lord Derby has made a fine impression here as Ambassador to Paris, but Americans who have met him believe that he would be even more successful in Washington. He is not only the highest type of the British peerage, but he is what is popularly termed "a good mixer," and Americans find themselves peculiarly at home with him. America has never had just this type of Englishman as Ambassador. Those who know Lord Derby intimately say that he would quickly become an institution in Washington. He is the representative of one of the oldest families in England, but entirely ignores any claim which that may give him to the regard of his fellow men. He is as modest and unpretentious as he is hearty. His influence with the masses in Liverpool and Western England is well known. He is very much liked by President Wilson and all the other Americans with whom he has come in contact, and his admirers say no man could be selected who would better represent or more surely promote Anglo-Saxon fellowship.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS EMIR'S ASSASSINATION

Ruler of Afghanistan Was Sleeping in Heavily Guarded Tent When Shot in the Head.

LONDON, May 7, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Latest reports received here regarding the murder of Habibullah, Emir of Afghanistan, on Feb. 20, indicates that the assassin is still at large. The body of the Emir was taken to Jellalabad and buried in a grave on the royal golf course, but it is assumed that the remains will be exhumed and reinterred in one of the palaces at Kabul.

Meanwhile there have been rival claimants to the succession. The new Emir is Amarullah Khan, third son of Habibullah, the dead monarch. He is 26 years old and has never been out of the country, but he is described as having "an active brain and a keen intelligence."

Details of the assassination of Habibullah now to hand confirm the cable reports that he was killed in his sleep while on a hunting expedition.

Habibullah was a lover of sport and was grouse shooting when fate overtook him.

According to a Calcutta newspaper, about two days before his death the Emir was seen at Ghalat-ul-Seraj, a palace about twenty-five miles from Jellalabad, by a European engineer engaged in work there. His visit was a surprise and no lunch had been prepared. The European engineer saved the situation by giving his lunch to Habibullah, who ate it all, and presented the cook with $10. To the engineer he handed a cigarette.

"Good-bye," he said as he departed. "I shall see you again in three days on my way back."

When the motor car returned two days later it contained the dead body of the Emir.

He had proceeded about twenty-seven miles beyond Khalat-ul-Seraj and camped at a little place known as Kollagosh. He slept in a large tent well guarded by soldiers. Four or five page boys, also in the tent, took turns in watching. About 3 o'clock in the morning a pistol shot was heard, and when the Emir's brother and eldest son rushed into the tent they found Habibullah lying dead in his bed, shot through the head.

BRITISH FLEET OFF MEMEL.

Said To Be About to Occupy East Prussian Port.

LONDON, Saturday, May 17.—A British fleet is anchored outside of Memel, East Prussia, close to the Russian frontier, and the British are expected to occupy the place in a few days, according to a Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company quoting Berlin advices.

was Professor Weber, a financial expert. While the war was in progress Professor Weber gained notoriety by calling the attention of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg to the fact that the figures submitted by Admiral von Tirpitz on the sinking of merchantmen by German submarines were false.

ALLIES IN UNIFORM AVOID BERLIN STREETS

Wear Civilian Clothing Outside Hotel to Avoid Outbreaks—Police Warn Crowds.

LONDON, May 16.—American and British officers in Berlin have been ordered to wear civilian clothing outdoors, lest they incite the population to demonstrations, according to a dispatch from the German capital to the Exchange Telegraph Company under date of Thursday.

American couriers in uniform have been forced to remain in the Hotel Adlon, and there is a general feeling in the hotel that there will be trouble within the next few days.

BERLIN, May 14, (Associated Press.)—Condemnation of the demonstrations before the Reichstag and in Unter den Linden on Tuesday against the Allies, the United States, and President Wilson is voiced by several newspapers, especially the Tageblatt.

Theodor Wolff in the Tageblatt ascribes the outbreak to the "alley element" and says it was caused by unripe youths, whose conduct he denounces as "childish and unseemly." He says that no sensible and decent person could desire that the great seriousness of the present days should be misrepresented by undignified howling. The demonstrations, he also says, did not appear to be serious to the allied representatives living in the Hotel Adlon and the crowd outside did not interfere with or speak to the foreign newspaper correspondents when they left the hotel and wakled down the street.

The police authorities of Berlin have issued a proclamation warning the public against demonstrations hostile to foreign residents of the city. The proclamation says:

"We are fighting against the nefarious policy of imperialism, not against individuals, who are not to blame for the policy of their Governments. It has been determined to punish such excesses with the utmost severity, and any who instigate disorders will also be punished."

The Vossische Zeitung in this connection prints a letter criticising the Government for permitting "foreign elements" so to dominate Berlin that signs and placards are posted in the English and French languages, and that many foreign actors are permitted to appear on the stages in Berlin. The communication rails at stores which display notices in English inviting American officers to have their portraits painted as souvenirs of their stay in Berlin.

OFFER SARRE ALTERNATIVE.

Germans Propose Coal Deliveries—Ask for Proof of War Blame.

BERLIN, May 14, (via London.)—The note which Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the German Peace Mission at Versailles, handed on Tuesday to Premier Clemenceau as President of the Peace Conference, dealing with the question of reparation and responsibility for the war, declared that Germany had obligated herself to give compensation based on Secretary of State Lansing's note of Nov. 5, independently of the question of responsibility for the war.

The German delegation, the note set forth, could not recognize that from any responsibility of the former German Government for the origin of the war there could be deduced on the part of the allied and associated powers the right to claim indemnification for losses suffered through the war.

The note asserted further that the peace terms provided no proof of Germany's responsibility for the war, and requested that the reports of all the allied commissions which investigated such responsibility be communicated to the German delegation.

Another note of the three handed in on Tuesday, that dealing with territorial questions, declared that the portion of the treaty dealing with territorial annexations was not in accordance with President Wilson's fourteen points.

Under the financial and economic conditions of the treaty, it was further set forth, it seemed that it would be impossible for Germany to have enough gold on hand at the end of fifteen years to repurchase the Sarre Valley mines from France, and that if she did the indemnification commission which would still dominate Germany would not permit this gold to be used for such a purpose.

The note suggested negotiations with the Entente with a view of effecting an alternative arrangement to meet France's just claims by the delivery of coal from both the Sarre and the Ruhr regions.

BERNSTEIN SEES MODERATION.

Points Out That Many of the Allied Demands Are Temporary.

PARIS, May 16.—Eduard Bernstein, the German Social Democratic leader, in an article in the Vorwärts of Berlin, transmitted here, says that the peace terms show evidence of compromise on several points and that a sense of moderation is evident.

He points out that many of the demands on Germany are only temporary in character, but says that amelioration of some of the terms ought to be obtained through oral discussion. Herr Bernstein reaches the conclusion that Germany must say "No" to the actual conditions, but that this "No" must leave "the road open for the Allies."

SOVIET CONFERS ON TERMS.

Move to Combine Both Wings of German Independents.

BERLIN, May 15, (Associated Press.)—The Soldiers and Workers' Council met yesterday in an attempt to discover means for combining the right wing of the Independent Socialists with the left wing.

Carl Kautsky, one of the Socialist leaders, sent a letter to the meeting in which he favored the project, but said he doubted the possibility of such a combination. He added that he would be unable to work with Herr Noske, Minister of Military Affairs, or the Communists.

Speakers at the meeting said that the danger threatened by the peace terms of the allied and associated Governments made the desired combination necessary. Eduard Bernstein warned those present to forget all differences in view of the situation which Germany was facing.

The council is to meet again soon to vote on the question of the peace terms.

NEW GERMAN PLOT AGAINST BELGIUM?

Geneva Gets Report of a Systematic Plan to Bolshevize the Country.

IDEA IS TO VOID THE TREATY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, May 15.—The declarations of Berlin statesmen leave not a shadow of doubt that when the Germans sign the peace treaty they will do so with rage in their hearts and secret plans of revenge. What are, exactly, these schemes by which Germany hopes to render the obligations she accepts by signing the Treaty of Versailles illusory?

One of the German plans, and perhaps not the least important, I am able to reveal on the authority of information received from a particularly reliable source. About five weeks ago, when the decisions of the Paris Conference concerning the settlement of the Sarre question were first published in outline by the allied press, several Cabinet councils were called in Berlin, at which all members of the Government and influential party leaders assisted. All aspects of the problem, as well as the possibility of continued military occupation of the left bank of the Rhine by the Allies were exhausttively discussed. Extremely important decisions were adopted, about which the strictest secrecy has been observed. It was unanimously resolved to provoke a revolution in Belgium by every means in the power of the German Government, and therefore to concentrate all the energies of the vast apparatus of Bolshevist propaganda which the new rulers of Germany inherited from the Kaiser's General Staff on the propagation of Bolshevism in that country.

A glance at the map will explain why. Germany's calculation is that if Belgium goes Bolshevist, the greater part of the German territory occupied by the allied troops would be almost completely isolated, and the position of the Entente armies of occupation placed between hostile Germany and Belgian Bolshevism, would at once become extremely critical, even if the Belgian contingent remained reliable, which the Berlin statesmen, of course, cannot imagine. They calculate that the movement would rapidly spread through Luxemburg to the Sarre district, and thus create a situation of general anarchy, forcing the Allies to evacuate the entire occupied region.

This German plot reveals the usual German misunderstanding of psychology. But it is the actual plan sanctioned by the present German rulers, and I can only repeat that my source of information is absolutely above suspicion. Nor has the scheme since been abandoned. On the contrary, new conferences have take place in Wilhelmstrasse recently in which all the practical details were drawn up and the organization of a special department for the Bolshevization of Belgium was decided upon. The difficult labor conditions existing in Belgium at present are no secret to the Germans, and they intend to exploit them to liberate the Sarre district and Rhine cities as soon as possible.

The general recrudescence of German Bolshevist propaganda may be expected immediately after the conclusion of peace, but its sinister activities will be chiefly concentrated on Belgium, Germany's first innocent victim.

DUNNE TELLS OF IRISH TRIP.

Says 75 Per Cent. of People Favor Immediate Founding of Republic.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 16.—In a cablegram from London to the Chicago Daily News, Gordon Stiles gives the substance of a conversation he had with former Governor Edward F. Dunne of Illinois on the eve of his departure for Paris after his trip to Ireland with Frank P. Walsh and Michael F. Ryan, his associates on the American delegation. Mr. Stiles quotes Governor Dunne as saying:

"I found that 75 per cent of the Irish people favor the immediate founding of an Irish Republic. That is what counts most of all. In President Wilson's Fourteen Points much stress is given to the self-determination of peoples, and Ireland furnishes a glaring example to the contrary.

"In Ireland we were received everywhere in the most enthusiastic manner. We unhesitatingly told the people that we lived under a Republican form of Government in America and favored such a Government. We promised to do all we could to have their case presented to the League of Nations."

Mr. Stiles asked Mr. Dunne if in his opinion the trip of himself and his colleagues to Ireland would make for harmony between America and England. He replied that it meant strengthening the good feeling between the two countries because England would soon realize that the independence of Ireland would be the best thing for the British Empire.

THE GOLDEN MEAN

Dietitians generally agree that an all-meat diet is harmful to the human system.

They are equally unanimous in the opinion that an all-vegetable diet is inadequate.

SMYRNA IS TAKEN AWAY FROM TURKEY

DAY OF RECKONING NEAR

Intimation in Paris That Peace Terms Will End Ottoman Rule in Europe.

PARIS, May 16.—An extensive allied naval concentration has been begun at Smyrna in connection with a mandate to Greece to administer the city.

The British and the French both have fleets on the scene with landing parties, the Greeks have a battleship and five gunboats, and the Italians have five large warships. The United States naval forces are the battleship Arizona and four destroyers. The various allied naval contingents are drawn from the forces in the Adriatic and the Black Sea.

Troops are also being concentrated from Saloniki. It is understood that British and French forces are co-operating with the Greek administrative mandate. The Italian attitude has not been disclosed, but the recent landing of Italian troops at Adalia, on the southern coast of Asia Minor, and the presence of an Italian squadron at Smyrna lead to the belief that Italy is seeking to safeguard her interests in Asiatic Turkey.

The Intransigeant says that the concentration at Smyrna is being taken against the day when the peace conditions imposed on the Turks will be put into effect and when the Turks may be invited to leave Europe.

ATHENS, May 14.—Greek forces landed today at Smyrna, the news being received here with great enthusiasm.

As early as March 27 the Athens press published a communiqué from Premier Venizelos, dated Paris, to the effect that the Council of Ten had authorized him to dispatch troops to the Smyrna region to the number of 50,000.

Ever since the armistice two factions have been at work in Smyrna attempting to organize a plebiscitum: one for union with Greece by Greek agents, the other for a British protectorate by the British Chamber of Commerce at Smyrna.

At Adalia, the Attaleia of classical geography, the Italians landed troops on March 26 in order to restore peace, for on March 6 about 200 civil prisoners, having killed their guards, escaped from prison and attacked citizens, robbing and murdering them. On April 14 British marines were landed at a point opposite Rhodes, between the Greek and Italian zones.

Withdraws Charge Against Baron.

Baron Alexandre De Stachelberg of 14 West Fifty-fourth Street, who was held in $200 bail in Jefferson Market Court on May 5, charged by Jean Barrere, manager of the Hotel Brevoort, Fifth Avenue and Eighth Street, with having given to him a worthless check, was discharged yesterday in the same court by Magistrate W. Bruce Cobb. The complainant stated that the check had been made good and he received permission from the Magistrate to withdraw the charge.

TRANSPORT ARRIVES WITH 73 WAR BRIDES

RED CROSS WOMEN RETURN

Two Workers Tell of Service at Archangel — Miss Bonner Honored in Belgium.

Seventy-three brides, sixty of them wives of American soldiers and thirteen married to sailors, arrived yesterday at Hoboken on the transport Plattsburg, which has been nicknamed "the bridal ship" because it has brought 160 brides in four trips. The transport had on board 2,593 passengers, the majority of them men of the 322d Field Artillery of the 83d Division.

One of the brides on the Plattsburg was Mrs. George Logan, Jr., a Scotch girl, who wore a medal awarded by the Serbian Government. Mrs. Logan would not talk about her decoration, but admitted it was given to her for work she had done with the Red Cross in the war.

The troops were in command of Lieut. Col. Sam R. Hopkins, who wore the Croix de Guerre with a star for bravery under fire in the Meuse offensive. With the 322d Artillery was Lieutenant Edward Streeter of Buffalo, author of "Dere Mable" and similar books. Major Newell Garfield, a grandson of President Garfield and a son of James R. Garfield, the former Secretary of the Interior, also returned on the transport.

Officers of the 322d Artillery declared that the unit had the distinction of firing the last artillery round over the German lines. At 11:30 on the day the armistice went into effect, they said, the battery stopped firing. A few minutes later a German shell burst over the battery, killing eight men and wounding twenty-five.

Nineteen Americans who had fought under the British flag returned on the steamer. One stowaway was discovered when the ship was three days out from port. He was Nelson Oldfield, Jr., of Buffalo. He was put to work on the boat to pay his passage.

The Cunarder Royal George, which arrived yesterday from Liverpool, brought back several Red Cross and welfare workers who had seen service in Northern Russia and France. The steamer brought 1,600 Canadian troops, who landed at Halifax.

Two of the Red Cross workers, Miss Beatrice M. Gosling of 2 East Twelfth Street and Miss Elma Forster of 5,946 West Side Avenue, Chicago, had been at Archangel. They left the United States on Sept. 2 on the Ascutney, which carried a cargo of supplies for civilians in Northern Russia.

"We supposed we were going on civilian relief work," Miss Forster said, "but when we got to Archangel we found 6,000 American soldiers to be taken care of, so we stayed there. We came away on an icebreaker, which took us as far as Murmansk and had to break through ice from two to six feet thick. From Murmansk we came to England by way of Norway."

Miss Kate Bonner, a daughter of Robert E. Bonner of Lenox, who went abroad in July, 1917, as a Red Cross nurse, returned on the Royal George. Miss Bonner for a time was attached to the hospital conducted by Dr. Joseph E. Blake in Paris. For the past year she has been doing work in the Queen of the Belgians Hospital at La Panne. For her heroic work among the sick during an epidemic of influenza and after the second battle of Flanders Miss Bonner was decorated with the Order of Queen Elizabeth by the Queen herself.

The Rev. Brother Thomas A. Rahilly of Cork, who was a passenger on the Royal George, was detained by the New York immigration officials, acting, it was understood, on a complaint made by Canadian officers on board, who took exception to certain statements the clergyman was alleged to have made regarding the British Government on the way across. Brother Rahilly was on his way to Canada, where he said he had established schools in French Canadian parts of the Dominion to instruct children in the French language. When the Royal George stopped at Halifax the Canadian officers registered their complaints with the authorities there against the priest being allowed to land. They charged that he had announced his intention to spread Sein Fein doctrines among the French-Canadians. The priest denied these charges, it was said, and asserted that his visit to Canada was purely in the interests of education and private business.

HONOR DEAD IN WAR.

Y. M. H. A. Holds Memorial Exercises for Its Fallen Members.

Memorial services were held last night at the Y. M. H. A., Ninety-second Street and Lexington Avenue, in honor of the men of that organization who made the supreme sacrifice in the war. Addresses were made by Judge Irving Lehman of the Supreme Court and Dr. Samuel Shulman of Temple Beth-El. The sentiments were read by Sanford H. Cohen, Chairman of the committee.

Judge Lehman in his address said: "By their deaths they have put on us a solemn obligation. They have bought with their lives the opportunity for democracy to develop in the finest way. Their bodies are dead, but their spirit must live, and we must keep their memory fresh in order that we may ever be reminded of what they have done and what we still must do."

A bronze tablet is to be erected in the building to the men who lost their lives in the war. An entertainment will be given this evening in honor of the men who returned from the war, and a dinner tomorrow night. Among the speakers at the dinner will be Judge Samuel Greenbaum, Jacob H. Schiff, and Judge Irving Lehman.

CROWDER TO STAY IN ARMY.

Cables to Baker He Hopes to Tell Congress About Courts-Martial.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Secretary Baker today made public a cable message from Maj. Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, Judge Advocate General of the Army, in which the general emphatically denied that he would resign from the army to accept a position as political adviser to the Cuban Government.

General Crowder said that, far from any intention of retiring, it was his desire to appear before the committees of Congress respecting any investigation which Congress may conduct touching the administration of military justice.

TO KEEP GERMAN SHIPS.

Lansing So Expects, Though Case is Still Open in Paris.

LONDON, May 16.—Secretary of State Lansing, talking with American correspondents today with regard to Germany's ships, said:

"There has been no agreement in Paris on the allocation of the German ships, but do not think there is any doubt that we will keep our German ships."

MORMON CASE CITED FOR BARRING BERGER

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—In the proposed procedure against the seating of Victor Berger, it was decided today by the House Steering Committee to follow the precedent established by the House in 1900, when it refused to seat Brigham H. Roberts of Utah. In that case a motion was made against the member-elect being allowed to take the oath of office at the opening of the session, and his case was then referred to a special committee of ten, which after a hearing reported against his being seated.

Mr. Berger, who was elected a member of the House of Representatives from the Fifth Wisconsin District, after he had been indicted under the Espionage Act, has arrived in Washington and is prepared to make a fight for his seat. He will be asked to step aside when he walks up to take the oath in the House. It is likely that he will have an opportunity to state his position to the House. Mr. Berger asserted today that if he is unseated he will seek re-election.

After the Steering Committee had informally decided as to the procedure in Berger's case the Socialist editor issued a statement in which he reviewed the charges against him and the conditions surrounding his election.

In the course of his statement he said:

"The finding of a packed jury, every member of which prior to his selection was approved by the 'American Protective League,' that means the 'Secret Service,' and the sentence of a prejudiced court are not binding upon me, nor should they be binding upon or carry weight with Congress. I have appealed from the judgment of that jury and that court to the Appellate Court.

"I am aware that the Roberts case is cited as a precedent to justify denying a member a seat or permitting him to take the oath, but there is a fundamental difference between my case and the Roberts case. In the latter case the Congressman-elect at the time he presented himself made no denial of the fact that he had and was then openly violating the law. He confessed to having many wives.

"I have violated no law. Because twelve men may have said differently, so far as I am concerned, does not change the fact. I deny any such violation. I claim to have been within my constitutional right in printing these five editorials."

SENATORS FOR QUICK RESTORING OF WIRES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Postmaster General Burleson is to lose control of the telephone and telegraph systems on July 31 next, if the program agreed upon today by Senators Cummins of Iowa and Kellogg of Minnesota is carried out. After a conference today these Republican Senators decided to introduce a resolution in the Senate at the first opportunity, possibly as early as Tuesday, fixing this date.

The present plan is to have the resolution referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce, of which Mr. Cummins will be the Chairman. It is felt that the necessary legislation can be prepared and action assured in both branches of Congress in time to get the properties back into the hands of their former owners by July 31.

There is possibility of a short delay in bringing about consideration of the resolution and the other necessary legislation, because of the desire in some quarters to have the matter referred to the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, but the desire to get the systems out of the hands of Mr. Burleson is so general that it is believed that this point will be settled without dispute.

Sentiment in the Senate seems to be almost universal in favor of meeting as quickly as possible Mr. Burleson's expected recommendation that the systems be returned to their former owners.

House leaders, both Republicans and Democrats, are prepared to join in such an effort, it is said, and the only obstacle to immediate action apparently is the period of time required to take the legal steps.

JERSEY REPUBLICANS FAVOR GENERAL WOOD

TRENTON, N. J., May 16.—Major Gen. Leonard Wood is the choice of Republicans generally throughout New Jersey for the Presidential nomination in 1920, it developed at a conference of the Republican leaders here today. When a poll of preferences as to the Republican Presidential nominee was taken without preliminary discussion sixteen of the nineteen leaders present named General Wood, two Senator Harding, and one ex-President Taft.

The conference, called by Republican Chairman E. C. Stokes, was held at the Republican Club. Nineteen of the twenty-one county leaders were present.

National Chairman Will H. Hays, it was announced, may attend the State convention of the New Jersey League of Republican Clubs here on June 14. Representatives Watson and Fess have also been invited to address the convention.

The leaders discussed the liquor question and other issues at the conference this afternoon, but no decision was reached as to what attitude the party should assume on prohibition. It was announced that the party's policies would be made known at the June convention.

CHINA'S CABINET OUT IN PEACE TANGLE

RECONCILIATION PLAN FAILS

PARIS, May 16.—The Chinese Cabinet has resigned, but the President has refused to accept the resignation, according to a telegram from Peking to the Peace Conference here.

A local peace conference at Shanghai betwen representatives of Northern and Southern China, the telegram adds, nas broken up.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The effort of the Chinese Cabinet to resign is believed by Chinese officials here to have been inspired by failure of the negotiations in the peace conference at Shanghai to reconcile he Northern and Southern elements. Hope of a final agreement has not been abandoned here, however.

It is pointed out that in March the conference broke up in disord, only to be reassembled through the efforts of neutral Chinese officials. It is assumed that the Presiden's refusal to accept the Cabinet's resignation indicates his purpose to renew the effort for a compromise.

The Chinese Cabinet was reported to have decided to instruct the delegation at Paris not to sign the peace treaty, in a dispatch from Peking on May 7. There has been no confirmation of that report from official sources. It is not unlikely the proffered resignation of the Cabinet, which was reorganized on March 3, has some connection with the Chinese feeling over the decision of the Peace Conference concerning Shantung.

Represenatives of Northern and Southern China have been in session at Shanghai for several months, but the conference has been deadlocked for most of the time. The main conflict is over the constitutionality of the Parliament sitting in Peking under conrol of the Northern Government. Recent reports have been that a compromise appeared imminent.

WINNIPEG IS TIED UP BY GENERAL STRIKE

Movement Approved by Returned Soldiers—Mayor Asks Government's Help.

Special to The New York Times.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, May 16.—The general sympathetic strike ordered yesterday by the Winnipeg Trades and Labor Council to aid the building trades and metal workers, and which involves sixty unions with 30,000 members, is in full effect. Moreover, it has the approval of the returned soldiers, a factor which is said to be receiving consideration by the Government at Ottawa. Mayor Gray, who has been striving to effect a settlement, wired the Government tonight that the situation was precarious and urged the Minister of Labor to come west at once.

All troops in the city have been detailed for duty by General Ketchen, and mounted forces from outside will be brought in if necessary. The firemen are out, but the police so far remain on duty.

The tie-up was made almost complete today when all the telephone girls left their switchboards and the web pressmen and stereotypers joined the strikers, leaving the city without telephones or newspapers.

The Canadian Pacific telegraphers go out tomorrow, or will at least refuse to handle Winnipeg business, the object being to isolate Winnipeg from the outside world. All unions except the Typographical are now out.

Following a conference between the City Council and the Strikers' Committee today it was announced by the latter that they had instructed the opening of restaurants and the organization of bread and milk depots to prevent undue suffering.

R. B. Russell, business agent of the strikers, said:

"There will be no more newspapers until we decide to let them appear. We know the effect that a newspaper has in molding public opinion, and that in the past such opinion has been molded against our class. We realize that had we left the press open it would have taken advantage of the hard situation by trying to show the public that the strikers were weakening in their position by the opening of food depots. We want the civic authorities to realize that there is no indication on our part of weakening. We intend to keep the strike effective, but we are also willing to do anything toward eliminating undue hardship."

There has been no disorder up to tonight, but many Winnipeggers were in the bread and milk lines today. Nearly all the department stores remain open, but there has been a great rush for food supplies. Automobiles are in great demand owing to the absence of street cars. The city is still supplied with electric light, gas, and water. The staffs of theatres and movie houses received permission to return to duty from the Trades Council.

OPPOSES REMOVAL OF GEORGE GOULD

HOW THE FAMILY STANDS

William A. W. Stewart, chosen by George J. Gould as guardian ad litem for Gloria and Edith Gould and Mr. Gould's grandchildren in the accounting proceeding by the Gould trustees, conceded yesterday under questioning by Supreme Court Justice Whitaker that certain of Mr. Gould's acts required his removal as trustee under the will of his father, Jay Gould. At the same time he insisted that George Gould's removal would not be to the advantage of the George Gould descendants because he would be succeeded by Frank J. Gould.

Mr. Stewart made this statement during the closing argument in the application by Frank and Anna Gould, now Duchesse de Talleyrand, for the removal of their brother because of improper acts with respect to the trust estate. Justice Whitaker sought to find where the twenty-three attorneys in the case stood in respect to the application, and after Mr. Stewart made his statement he was listed as "not opposing and not in favor."

Mr. Stewart told the court he expected that the decree in the accounting proceeding would direct, in any event, that the six separate trusts provided for in the will be set up, and in that event Mr. Gould could not act as a trustee for his own children and grandchildren, and they were little concerned with the petition for his removal for that reason. Mr. Stewart, who was suggested as guardian for the Frank Gould and Anna Gould children when the accounting proceeding was expected to be friendly, but who was rejected by them, said:

"Improper" Acts, but No Bad Faith.

"I have listened with the greatest interest to Mr. Stanchfield [counsel for the grown children of George Gould] and Mr. Wallace, [personal counsel for George Gould,] and I agree with them that in so far as the separate trusts were not created, that is not sufficient for his removal. Some investments undoubtedly were made improperly, but I don't think any bad faith was shown. Technical points of the law have been violated with regard to investments, and the trustees' accounts should be surcharged. The admitted fact is that George Gould made a secret profit in the Western Union transaction, and that was an improper action. It would probably justify his removal.

"It has also been shown that he mingled the estate funds in his own speculative accounts. This was a most highly improper action. It has been shown that in many instances he took personal profits on estate transactions. If George should be removed it would result in the appointment of Frank as a trustee to take his place, and I hardly think that would be to the advantage of my wards. If I represented any other branch of the family I would favor George's removal."

"You think your interests would not be in jeopardy by George Gould remaining as a trustee?" asked Justice Whitaker.

"I do not."

"You think the interests of the others require his removal?"

"I do."

Urge Accounting First.

Alton B. Parker, attorney for Edwin Gould, said he appeared to oppose the motion. "Edwin's position is justice to the estate and to George J. Gould," said Mr. Parker. "He thinks this matter for the accounting should be disposed of first so the court will understand the situation."

Henry W. DeForest, attorney for Mrs. Helen Gould Shepard, said: "Mrs. Shepard is neutral, and does not desire to take any position against George or Frank, and is anxious to have the accounting proceed."

Robert B. Knowles, for many years one of the counsel for the Gould trustees, read a message from Howard Gould which said: "You may quote me as saying that I am strongly opposed to the removal."

Judge Seabury, for Frank Gould, immediately asked that the message be put into the record because one point against the removal of George Gould has been that Howard Gould is a necessary party to the proceeding but has not appeared. Mr. Knowles then said he did not represent Howard, and the message did not go in. Counsel for Kingdon Gould said he opposed the removal.

In his closing argument, Judge Seabury said that efforts were being made by George Gould to "shift the blame on the dead and on his sister Helen." He said that Judge John F. Dillon, for many years Jay Gould's counsel, and Guy Phillips, the bookkeeper who sent out many of the statements alleged to have been untrue, both of whom are dead, are being blamed.

Charges Attempt to Confuse Issue.

"An attempt is made to smother these charges in a mass of figures," he said. "George Gould is trying to qualify Helen as a railroad expert and legal adviser and to prove that she was just as cunning and sharp as he was. The court will be amazed at this attempt to prove her an authority on railroads and the law. She has been named by him to make her partly responsible for any surcharge.

"Explain as you will, there is no doubt that George Gould sold short. If the security went down, he could regard it as his personal account, and if it went up it was an estate matter. He waited for the wisdom that comes after the event in these matters. A short sale is a gambling transaction, and no trustee has a right to make such deals."

Judge Seabury insisted that nothing was shown to prove that George Gould could pay a surcharge of $25,000,000 for the alleged loss to the estate if it is charged against him finally, except from his share of the estate. He said: "The fact that Frank and Anna Gould are living lives of pleasure is immaterial. It would be just as proper for me to inquire into the private life of George Gould."

Insisting that George Gould's retention of $600,000 profit on the Western Union stock sale was grossly improper, Judge Seabury said that Thomas L. Chadbourne who got the commission and later shared it with George, was in his employ at all times, and "it established the existence of embezzlement." Judge Seabury added:

Cites Retaining of Commission.

"The other side says the act was not criminal because no pre-existing agreement was shown. It is proved that George did not pay back the money to the estate until eight years later, when Mr. Chadbourne asked him if he had done so. If a thief steals a loaf of bread and forgets it until the policeman's hand is on his shoulder, the court will not listen to his plea that he intended to return it, but forgot. If justice reigns in equity, these petitioners cannot be turned away empty-handed. No court can tolerate the acts this trustee has committed."

John B. Stanchfield in reply said Judge Seabury's language had been of a "very intemperate character." He argued that in such a case, counsel "ought to be held to the standard imposed upon a person seeking to prove a crime, and must show guilt beyond a doubt."

"This is a civil, not a criminal proceeding, and the attorney is not held to such a degree," replied Justice Whitaker.

The attorneys agreed they would furnish the court with their briefs on June 1. Ten days later, each will reply to the briefs of the other, and the court will then consider the entire case.

B. R. T. DROPS 272 WOMEN.

Officials Give New Law as Reason —670 More to Go.

The Lockwood Bill, which became a law with the signature of Governor Smith on Wednesday and which was intended as a measure for the improvement of the working conditions of women employed on traction lines, was given as the chief reason for the release of 272 women from their positions by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company yesterday. Most of them were conductors and guards on the surface and subway lines.

It is said that 670 more are marked for dismissal, 370 being guards and 300 ticket agents. A few station agents and ticket choppers whose hours of work and conditions do not violate the new law will be retained in service by the company. The places of all others are to be taken by men.

The measure provides that women employes of transportation lines should work not more than nine consecutive hours a day, between the hours of 6 A. M. and 10 P. M., and no more than six days in each week.

Officials of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company expressed regret that it was necessary to let the women employes go because of the operation of the new law. At the offices of the company it was said that the women had given satisfactory service, but that the railroad had no recourse but to release them and that in a few days all affected by the law would be out of the company's employ.

Actuarial Society Ends Meeting.

The Actuarial Society of America closed its thirtieth annual meeting at the Hotel Astor yesterday. Papers discussed included: "An Analysis of Claims for Total and Permanent Disability Benefits," by Arthur Hunter; "Valuation of Bond Holding of a Life Insurance Company," Frederick H. Johnston; "Note on Mortality by Habits Representation," Percy H. Evans; "Some Remarks on the War Clause," Alexander T. MacLean; "Note on Mean Population," John H. Thompson.

BAKER FOR TRAINING WITH EDUCATION

Secretary Is Expected to Lay a New Military Plan Before Congress.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Secretary Baker is expected soon to make a public announcement of a definite stand in favor of universal educational military training, with a statement of his reasons. It is assumed here that President Wilson has approved his plan.

The plan understood to be favored by Secretary Baker contemplates the use of the military establishment as a medium for training the youth of the nation, first along academic and vocational lines and, as an entirely separate and subordinated feature, in rudimentary military science. The Secretary's suggested program is said to be based initially on the benefits which will accrue to the country from the higher average of intelligence and the improved standard of physical well-being of the young men who would be taken annually into the training machine.

The favorable results of the operation of the A. E. F. university system are believed to have figured largely in bringing Mr. Baker to his opinion. Not only have the thousands of soldiers in France shown great eagerness to avail themselves of the opportunity of exchanging "guns for books," but the progress made under the specially selected instructors and with carefully designed schedules has been so rapid as to surprise prominent educators connected with the work. Moreover, the comparatively short time given to military routine has proved ample to keep the individual soldier in trim for field service should emergency require.

While the Secretary's announcement is expected to be entirely an exposition of his personal views, it is assumed here that his advocacy of a form of educational military national training will mean the inclusion of some such plan as a basic part of the military policy to be laid before Congress.

GOVERNMENT SUES POSTAL FOR TAXES

CLAIM GOES BACK 10 YEARS

Suit Brought "for a Purpose," Says Secretary Deegan — Burleson Controversy Not Involved.

The Federal Government filed a complaint in the District Court for the Southern District of New York yesterday, in which it charged that the Commercial Cable Company filed "incorrect, misleading, and false" income returns for the years 1909 to 1916 inclusive. The amount in dispute is $54,654.07, and the Government asserts that a penalty of 5 per cent. with interest at 1 per cent. per month from the date on which the original payments were due should be paid.

At the office of the Commercial Cable Company it was said that the case grows out of a dispute between the Government and the company as to the amount of depreciation in the value of submarine cables that the company was entitled to charge off in filing its income return. The company contends that it is entitled to a 7 per cent. reduction for depreciation, while the Government holds that 2 per cent. is the limit.

The Government complaint alleges seven causes of action, the first being that during the year 1909 the Commercial Cable Company in making its "return of net income for the year ending Dec. 31, 1909," filed a return that "was incorrect, misleading and false, and failed to set forth and to show its true net taxable income for the said year, within the meaning and intent of said act of Congress."

There is a separate cause of action alleged for each year up to and including 1916, the wording of the complaint in each cause being practically the same.

William J. Deegan, secretary of the Commercial Cable Company, when shown a copy of the Government complaint, said:

"This claim is ten years old, and is now trotted out for a purpose. It is merely a difference of opinion as to the amount of depreciation to which we are entitled. We took 7 per cent. on our submarine cables, but the Government claims we are entitled to only 2 per cent. The income tax people have no experience with submarine cables, and we are sure that the testimony of experts will prove conclusively that 2 per cent. is a ridiculously low figure on such property as submarine cables, and every business man knows what a difficult problem that is.

"This is really a test case instituted by the Government to determine what depreciation shall be allowed on submarine cables, because this has never yet been determined judicially. The first year involved in this suit is 1909, which is ten years ago. It has taken the Government a long time to find out that it objects to our depreciation. The intimation that there was any concealment is absolutely false, because the amount of depreciation which was taken by us in each year was very plainly shown in the income tax forms, as called for by such forms."

District Attorney Caffey said it was ridiculous to connect the case in any way with the controversy between the cable company and Postmaster General Burleson. The Post Office Department, he added, knows nothing about the case and has had no part in bringing the action, it being a Treasury Department matter.

Four Hundred Meet to Consider Reorganization of National Guard.

Four hundred officers, representing every unit in the old New York National Guard and the new State Guard forces, met in the 71st Regiment Armory yesterday to consider reorganization of the National Guard upon the plans laid out at the convention of the National Guard Association of the United States in St. Louis on May 5 and 6. All the resolutions adopted at the St. Louis meeting were approved by the convention here.

One of the resolutions of the convention provided "that we throw the doors wide open and invite all men who have served overseas or who have served in any capacity in any organization during the great war, to unite with us." It added that "we call upon them in the name of the people, whose wishes we now faithfully interpret, to join with us in the reorganization of the National Guard, to the end that a strong, aggressive, united organization may place the Empire State in the foreground, to which position its population and resources entitle it."

One of the speakers at the convention was Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, commander of the 27th Division in France and Belgium, who has been requested by Governor Smith to take up his former duties as commanding officer of the State troops, with the special task of reorganizing them along the lines proposed in the report of Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt and other officers of his commission last December. General O'Ryan said that places could be found in the State troops for all the officers and men who wished to join.

Special 5 MAPS Feature

SHOWING AT A GLANCE THE GREAT CHANGES MADE THROUGHOUT THE WORLD BY THE PEACE TERMS

One map presents the new Europe, giving not only the frontiers laid down in the peace terms but also showing by dotted lines the probable or possible boundary lines to be determined upon, thus affording an approximate idea of the future European frontiers.

Another map contrasts in a striking way the great Germany of 1914 with its shrunken self of today, telling more plainly than words of the downfall of the arrogant Empire of the Hohenzollerns.

The fifth map shows the Chinese city of Kiaochau which is awarded to Japan, and its geographical relations to Peking, Korea, and the Japanese archipelago.

These five maps, which are included in THE LITERARY DIGEST for May 17, will make clear to the reader in five minutes what the war has accomplished in five years.

"Undiluted Americanism" the Message of THE DIGEST

The final echoes of the guns of the great war are now dying away into silence and the peoples are settling down again into the pleasant paths of peace. And, so doing, it behooves us to take to heart the vital lessons this supreme world-tragedy has taught us. Among the most important of these is the necessity of solidarity, of community of aims and ideals, of absolute unanimity. The war has proved over and over again the inherent weakness of the house that is divided against itself. We, in this country, must see to it that one language, one purpose, one high conception of life animates our teeming millions from sea to sea. Only by so doing can we hope to steer our ship of state safely through the perilous shoals of political unrest, anarchy, Bolshevism, and the like. As a teacher of Americanism, which included and typifies all that is best in national life and aspiration, THE LITERARY DIGEST stands pre-eminent among the periodicals of the day. It epitomizes all that the fathers of this republic sought to make permanent on our shores. It brings to your home and to your heart the message of an all-embracing humanity, of an abundant charity, of equal fellowship and impartial consideration. Get a copy now, read it through, and pass it along to your family and friends. You will be a better man and a better citizen if you make this a weekly habit.

ATTACK EDSELL FORD IN FATHER'S SUIT

Libel Case Defense Points to War Service by McCormick, of Defendant Newspaper.

PLAINTIFF'S COUNSEL OPENS

Lawyer for Henry Ford Asserts Five "Lies" in Alleged Libel by Chicago Tribune Editorial.

MT. CLEMENS, Mich., May 16.—Opening statements of counsel in the libel suit of Henry Ford against The Chicago Tribune occupied the entire day in Judge Tucker's court here today. Weymouth Kirkland, of counsel for The Tribune, who spoke in the afternoon, had not concluded when court adjourned until Monday. He will resume then, after which the important question of scope of evidence will be argued by counsel.

Former Judge Alfred J. Murphy of Detroit, of counsel for the plaintiff, occupied the forenoon in stating his case, in the course of which he alleged that The Tribune's advocacy of intervention in Mexico was due to pro-Germanism and a desire to aid the International Harvester Company and the Standard Oil Company.

Mr. Kirkland in his remarks ridiculed these claims, and said The Tribune claimed not only justification of its comment on Mr. Ford, in which he was called an anarchist and accused of ignorance, but asserted that as Mr. Ford's wealth, position, and pacifist propaganda had made him a public character, it was the plain duty of the newspaper to call him to account for a policy which, in The Tribune's opinion, would render the country impotent while Europe was in flames and anarchy reigned south of the Rio Grande.

Ford in Court With His Son.

Mr. Ford and his son Edsel were spectators while Mr. Murphy spoke, but in the afternoon, when Mr. Kirkland looked over to where they had sat, he found their chairs occupied by others.

In discussing the military career of Colonel R. R. McCormick, publisher of The Tribune, the lawyer said:

"When the European war broke out Major McCormick, being over 33 years of age, did not claim exemption, but went to France and saw 180 days of actual fighting."

As he spoke he turned his eyes where Edsel Ford, who was exempted on industrial grounds, had been, and then let them rest on Attorney Alfred Lucking, chief of the Ford counsel. Mr. Kirkland made no further reference to the subject.

Mr. Lucking, who asked that the Judge hear arguments as soon as possible on scope of the evidence, suggested that if both sides presented evidence and testimony as suggested by the opening statement, court would be in session till midsummer.

The evidence prepared, it is said, may be judged for quantity by the fact that the bringing of twenty witnesses from Texas and New Mexico by The Tribune is merely an incident of the preparations which have been making for the suit for the last two years.

It is also asserted that in the course of preparations of the plaintiff's case, 100 Mexicans were brought to Detroit and interviewed.

Defense Cites Pershing as Example.

Mr. Kirkland referred to General Pershing and to Marshal Haig and Generalissimo Foch as among the soldiers on whom Mr. Ford would emblazon the word "murderer." He was on the subject of Colonel McCormick's military career when the point came up.

"McCormick got to be a Lieutenant Colonel," said Attorney Kirkland, "and General Pershing, one of the professional soldiers that Judge Murphy says Mr. Ford said should have the word 'murderer' embroidered on his breast, made him a Colonel. And when they tell you that you cannot put more than one meaning on the word 'anarchist' I want you to remember the mental gymnastics that Judge Murphy did here this morning in trying to make you believe that Henry Ford, when he advocated the brand 'murderer,' did not mean the boys who joined the army in 1917, but professional soldiers, soldiers like Pershing and Haig and Foch, who have been professional soldiers all their lives."

Mr. Kirkland told how the news item on which the alleged libelous editorial was based had its origin. The National Guard, he said, was being recruited for service on the Mexican border, and many employers were publicly announcing that the pay of their men who joined the colors would be continued and their jobs held open for them. It was at that time in Chicago that The Tribune, he said, made its criticism of Mr. Ford.

Charges that The Tribune sought to embroil the United States in war with Mexico so that munitions would not be shipped to the enemies of Germany, Mr. Kirkland said, were answered by the fact that The Tribune had advocated Mexican intervention since 1912, or for two years before the beginning of the European war.

The relationship by which two big corporations were said to influence The Tribune policy was ruled by Judge Tucker, on objection by Attorney Elliott G. Stevenson of counsel for The Tribune, to be irrelevant, as given by Attorney Murphy earlier in the day.

Ford Counsel on Tribune's Owners.

Former Judge Murphy, who occupied the entire forenoon in outlining the contentions of Henry Ford in bringing his million-dollar libel suit, read several editorials from issues of The Tribune published in 1916, and sought to show that The Tribune's advocacy of American intervention in Mexico was due to selfish reasons.

Mr. Murphy said that witnesses and evidence for the plaintiff would show the influence of the Standard Oil and the International Harvester Companies in shaping The Tribune's policy regarding Mexico. He said the influence could be traced to a relationship between the McCormick family of The Tribune and the McCormick family of the International Harvester Company.

Attorney Elliot G. Stevenson of counsel for The Tribune objected on grounds that the relationship was so distant as to be irrelevant, and Judge Tucker said that he also failed to infer any relevancy.

Cutting short his remarks on this point, Mr. Murphy said that Harold McCormick, President of the International Harvester Company, is a cousin of the father of R. R. McCormick, who is President of the Tribune Company, and that Harold McCormick is the husband of Edith Rockefeller McCormick, a daughter of John D. Rockefeller of the Standard Oil Company. He pointed out that the Standard Oil Company gets one-fifth of its crude oil from Mexico.

For that reason, he said, the Tribune was interested in bringing about conditions in Mexico favorable to the Standard Oil Company. He also declared the International Harvester Company was similarly interested because of the immense amounts of sisal which it imports from Yucatan, which importations had been greatly hampered by chaotic conditions in Mexico.

Von Bernstorff's Name Mentioned.

Plaintiff would produce evidence, he continued, to show that Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, who with her sister, Mrs. Katherine McCormick, controls the stock of the Tribune Company, maintains a residence in Washington, and that in 1916, when the alleged libelous editorial was published, Mrs. Patterson was on friendly social terms with Ambassador Von Bernstorff, and was not on such terms with Ambassador Spring-Rice nor with the ambassadors of countries allied with Great Britain in the war.

He pictured Mr. Ford, who, with his son Edsel, was present, as one who, while he hoped for the abolition of war, gave all the resources of his great plants without profit to the Government and, the lawyer said, thus did much to aid in the winning of the war.

Mr. Murphy stated that the Solomon News Company was named a codefendant solely for technical reasons and that the plaintiff did not seek damages from the Solomons.

In his statement Mr. Murphy asked the jury to remember that at the time of publication of the alleged libel, June 23, 1916, the United States had not entered the European war, and did not enter until April, 1917.

"We had, while a neutral, the right to sell munitions of war, and we were trying to keep out of the war," said Mr. Murphy.

"A few days before this editorial was published, on June 18, 1916, in fact, the Secretary of War ordered the mobilization of the National Guard for service on the Mexican border.

"That was the situation at the time the libelous editorial was published."

Sees Five "Lies" in Alleged Libel.

Mr. Murphy then read the editorial headed "Ford Is an Anarchist." The article said that Ford would not hold open the places of his men who responded to the call of their country, nor would he pay their salaries while absent, nor care for their families. Ford in the editorial was referred to as an "ignorant idealist" and one "incapable of thought."

Concluding the reading, Mr. Murphy continued:

"Gentlemen, we shall prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that these statements are a tissue of falsehood and libel. We shall in particular disprove the following five lies:

"Lie No. 2.—That no provision would be made for their dependents.

"Lie No. 3.—That their families could get along as best they might.

"Lie No. 4.—That when they returned they would have to apply for their old jobs as strangers.

"Lie No. 5.—That this rule applied to the Ford plants everywhere."

Referring to Mr. Ford as "the greatest humanitarian in the world," Judge Murphy walked over once and shook his finger at the plaintiff so vigorously that, without his words, it would have seemed to the spectators an accusation. Mr. Ford sat quietly, his chin resting on one hand.

The lawyer took up the accusation that guardsmen employed by Ford would lose their places.

"On the contrary," he said, "we will show that these men were assured that their positions would be held for them, and each one who joined the guard was given a numbered disk to identify him when he came back."

Judge Murphy explained the workings of the famous minimum wage of $5 a day at the Ford plants. He said that an employe received $2.72 a day for the first six months of employment, after which he received a share of the profits, amounting to $2.28 a day.

"One of the Ford employes joined the National Guard after he had been an employe for only three weeks," said Mr. Murphy, "but it was arranged that his probationary time should go on, while he was absent, so that if he returned after six months' absence, he would be immediately entitled to a share of the profits. That, gentlemen, we shall show, was the Ford policy."

ROCKEFELLER SETTLES SUIT

Boy Gets $1,500 for Auto Accident and Father $1,000.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., of Pocantico Hills, through his lawyer, Lee Parsons Davis of White Plains, settled yesterday the suit brought against him by Pasquale Tornillo, the ten-year-old son of Tony Tornillo of North Tarrytown, for injuries received when the boy was run over by one of Mr. Rockefeller's automobiles, for $2,500. Through Rosenthal & Halperin the plaintiff sued for $25,000, it being alleged that in March, 1919, the boy while crossing the street in North Tarrytown was bowled over by Mr. Rockefeller's big limousine which was taking home members of his family to his mansion at Pocantico Hills.

Mr. Rockefeller, rather than be brought into court to fight the case, directed Lawyer Davis to make a settlement. The boy receives $1,500, while his father gets the $1,000 for medical expenses and the loss of the son's services.

McGraw's lads won their fourth straight victory over the cubs at the Polo Grounds, and at the same time Cincinnati was beating Brooklyn. So the Giants hopped right over Brooklyn and now occupy the sky parlor suite in the fervid frolic for the taffeta streamer. It was the first shut-out the Giants have handed out this season and the good news was 3 to 0.

The Giants and Cubs yesterday played the kind of baseball which made their contests famous ten or a dozen years ago. Instead of Matty and Miner Brown on the mound as in the old days, there were Jesse Barnes and Lefty Tyler. Behind these two flingers, scintillating fielding, bold base running, and sharp timely hitting kept the crowd of 8,000 keyed up to a high pitch of impatient excitement. Barnes's pitching contribution was a work of art. Four harmless hits constituted Chicago's entire batting effort. Behind Barnes, the Giants fielded with exquisite finish. Benny Kauff and George Burns made catches which made Manager Fred Mitchell's hair stand straight up in the air.

Reach Tyler in Sixth.

For five innings Tyler's flinging was faultless. He zipped the ball over with a tricky little spin which made it hop under and over the Giants' bats. Tyler had the New York batsmen worried, but in the sixth they rose to the occasion and broke through the mystery of the southpaw's tosses. In the sixth, and also in the seventh, the Giants solved Tyler, but outside of these two rounds the lefthander was invincible. In these two sessions the Giants made five hits which they coined into three runs.

The widely heralded Chicago pitching staff has received a humiliating thumping since the Cubs came to this town. The Giants faced Alexander, Vaughn, Douglas, and Tyler in succession and thrashed each one of them. This accomplishment is a big boost for the Giants' attack, while the fact that the Cubs were unable to bat out a single victory would make it appear that the New York pitching staff is not coming along as slowly as it seemed when the season started.

The first hit of the game bounded off Pick's bat in the fifth inning. It was a roller through second which Doyle was unable to reach in time to throw out the runner. Deal forced Pick on the next play and Bill Killefer hit into a double play.

McCarty made the first hit off Tyler in the sixth when he slapped a single to left. Barnes coaxed him along with a sacrifice and Burns ballooned to Hollocher. Ross Young banged a single to centre field and McCarty rode home on the hit. Barber fumbled the ball just long enough to allow Young to get to second. Chase fouled to Merkle for the third out.

Zim Starts a Rally.

The Giants left no doubt of their superiority over the Cubs. In the seventh, after Doyle had poked a hot liner into Flack's hands, Kauff was safe on Hollocher's error. Zimmerman cracked a single to right, sending Benny to third, while Heinie romped to second on Flack's toss to head off Benjamin. Fletcher rolled an easy grounder between first and second. Pick fielded the ball and could easily have tossed Fletcher out at first only Merkle failed to cover the bag. Pick stood there in deep meditation, wondering what one could do with a ball when one has no one to throw it to.

The bang went as a hit for Fletcher, and a mighty lucky hit it was, for Kauff and Zimmerman raced home. McCarty hammered a single to centre and Barber threw Fletcher out as the shortstop was trying to stretch his way to third base. Pick tossed out Barnes and ended the inning.

The second hit the Cubs got off Barnes was a single by Merkle in the seventh, after two were out. Pick opened the eighth with a two-bagger. After Paskert, batting for Deal, skied to Burns, O'Farrell, batting for Killefer, whanged the ball into deep left. Burns raced toward the fence, turned quickly, and grabbed the ball just as it was about to flatten itself against the stockade. It was a gorgeous grab.

Benny Kauff made a nerve-tingling catch in the third inning when he galloped far in the general direction of the Harlem River and cruelly robbed Charley Hollocher of a home run.

Defeat Phillies for Third Time by Score of 8 to 3.

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—Opportune hitting enabled Pittsburgh to defeat Philadelphia today, 8 to 3, giving them three games out of four. Cooper held the Phillies hitless for six innings. Manager Bezdek of Pittsburgh was suspended for three days, and Stengel was fined $50. Both were put off the field yesterday by Umpire Harrison for disputing a decision.

SUPERBAS BLANKED BY REDS IN FINAL

Luque Allows Only Five Hits, While Reds Bunch Hits in Fifth and Win by 1 to 0.

Adolfo Luque, whose name is not pronounced "Lucky," but who pitches just as if he was oversupplied with good fortune, caused a lot of sadness yesterday at Ebbets Field when Pat Moran's Cincinnati Redlegs concluded their Spring visit to the home of the Dodgers. Adolfe, who is a Cuban protégé of Mike Gonzales, absolutely refuses to permit any familiarities from strangers. Adolfo gave a practical demonstration of his shyness in the Reds' closing clash with the Robins when he shut out the Dodgers as a farewell shot by 1 to 0.

The Cuban twirler had a merry time of it repulsing the advances of Brooklyn batters. He served up a variety of shoots, hooks, slants, and curves which had the Flatbush ballplayers swinging in the air about the plate, but seldom on the old horsehide. Five wallops the Cuban allowed the fretful Robins, but they were widely distributed and failed to produce anything resembling a run. Luque occasionally flashed his teeth in a wide grin at the futile swings of his rivals, but mostly he stood stolidly on the Flatbush hillock baffling the Robins with his varied offerings.

While the Dodgers were being humbled the Giants were scattering the Cubs at the Polo Grounds and assuming the National League leadership. The Robins' reverse caused the Flatbush baseball machine to skid into second place, a scant four points ahead of the threatening Reds. Thus the Dodgers' league-leading career is ended, at least for the present, and all Brooklyn is sad.

Opposed to Luque was Rube Marquard. The Rube got himself into a jam in the third inning, when a pass to Rath and a single by Neale almost resulted in a tally. A delayed steal was upset, however, and Cincinnati's efforts to score were temporarily frustrated.

In the fifth three blows were made off Marquard, which proved enough to give the invaders the victory. Daubert started by beating out a hit to Lee Magee, and took second while Malone threw out Kopf. "Whoa Bill" Rariden, a former Giant, punched a single through short to centre, scoring Daubert. Luque raised a fly to Zach Wheat, and then Rath sent Rariden to second with a dribbling hit along the third base line. Neale forced Rath at second for the third out.

With visions of a score in the seventh and doubts as to Marquard's effectiveness, Manager Robinson lifted the Rube to make room for Pinch Hitter Ray Schmandt. Konetchy drew a pass to open the frame, and went to second on Malone's sacrifice. After Neale caught Krueger's long fly, Konetchy raced to third. Then Schmandt, batting for Marquard, got a free ticket to first, and Jimmy Hickman was rushed in to run for the convalescing infielder. All this strategy was wasted and Brooklyn's hopes sent down in the dust when Ivan Olson was thrown out by Groh.

Leon Cadore finished the game for the Robins, and prevented any further scoring, although Eddie Roush nicked him for a solid single in the ninth.

Konetchy opened the ninth with a single to right. Jimmy Johnston was sent in to run for the big first baseman, and took second when Luque threw out Malone. Rath threw out Krueger for the third out.

COLUMBIA WINS IN RALLY.

Columbia, by a rally in the eighth inning, defeated Amherst at South Field yesterday by a score of 7 to 5. It was a game that the Blue and White should have won by an overwhelming score, but poor base running and poorer play in the field held their own score down and enabled the Berkshire nine to score enough runs to make it interesting.

Columbia piled up a five-run lead in the early innings and seemed bent on winning by a big score until errors in the field let Amherst score one run in the fifth and four in the sixth. In the eighth, however, the Morningside Heights nine took advantage of a sudden lapse of control by Clark. Farrell walked and was moved along to second by a sacrifice by Schnaars. Houlahan drove out a hit and both he and Farrell scored on Hauck's drive to deep left.

GARDINER WHITE IS BEATEN BY MARSTON

Playing sound golf in both his matches, Max R. Marston of Baltusrol had little difficulty in working his way to the semi-final stage of the Spring tournament at the Garden City Golf Club yesterday. As a result the former New Jersey champion will meet Cornelius J. Sullivan, President of the Metropolitan Golf Association, while on the other side the survivors were John M. Ward of baseball fame, and W. H. Follett, the English taught player from Fox Hills.

From a standpoint of interest all other matches were placed in eclipse as a result of the meeting of Marston and Gardiner W. White of Nassau in the afternoon. Three years ago White was runner-up there to Henry J. Topping at Greenwich, who was off his game in Thursday's qualification test.

From the moment White over-approached at the first hole he was always giving himself more to do after the second shot than Marston, but despite the steady golf of the last named the men reached the turn all square. Ability to bring off long putts and save strokes previously wasted saved White on five holes going out.

At the first, for instance, the Nassau golfer supplemented a neat chip shot that left his ball five feet beyond the pin by sinking the putt and actually winning the hole when his opponent took three gentle strokes from a distance of eight yards.

Marston squared accounts at the short second, his opponent pulling to the rough, but at the fourth and fifth White saved himself by bringing off long putts and got halves. Par 4s by the Baltusrol man at the tenth and eleventh placed him 2 up, and when he won the thirteenth and fourteenth he had the match practically won. It was finally settled on the sixteenth green, his margin being 3 and 2.

The summary follows:

First Sixteen.—First Round—John M. Ward, Garden City, beat A. S. Bourne, National, 5 up and 3 to play; Hamilton K. Kerr, Greenwich, beat James R. Hyde, South Shore, 3 up and 2 to play; A. W. Brand, Garden City, beat A. R. Palmer, Knickerbocker, 3 up and 1 to play; W. H. Follett, Fox Hills, beat James C. Parrish, Jr., National Links, 3 up and 2 to play; W. B. Rhett, Garden City, beat Max Behr, Garden City, 1 up; Cornelius J. Sullivan, Garden City, beat E. B. Knowlton, Garden City, 4 up and 2 to play; Gardiner White, Nassau, beat R. F. Mundy, Ardsley, 7 up and 5 to play; Max R. Marston, Baltusrol, beat John N. Stearns, 3d, Nassau, 4 up and 3 to play.

Second Round—Ward beat Kerr, 7 up and 5 to play; Follett beat Brand, 1 up, (19 holes;) Sullivan beat Rhett, 3 up and 1 to play; Marston beat White, 3 up and 2 to play.

Second Sixteen.—First Round—Don Parker, Garden City, beat G. A. Dixon, Jr., Nassau, 2 up; C. F. Watson, Jr., National, beat A. E. Ranney, Greenwich, 3 up and 2 to play; C. Van Clief, Richmond County, beat H. A. Steiner, Hollywood, by default; Malcolm Stevenson, Piping Rock, beat S. Olney, Rockaway, 6 up and 4 to play; B. T. Allen, Fox Hills, beat William Watson, Baltusrol, 1 up, (19 holes;) Percy R. Pyne, 2d, Garden City, beat W. L. Hicks, Nassau, 3 up and 1 to play; Ellis Adams, Essex County, beat L. G. Spindler, Fox Hills, 5 up and 3 to play.

Second Round—Parker beat Watson, 5 up and 4 to play; Stevenson beat Van Clief, 1 up; Pyne beat Allen, 2 up and 1 to play; Adams beat Fearey, 2 up and 1 to play.

Third Sixteen.—First Round—H. C. Berner, Nassau, beat Henry J. Topping, Greenwich, by default; C. Timpson, Rockaway, beat A. L. Sands, Newport, 2 up and 1 to play; J. K. Van Vranken, Cherry Valley, beat W. R. Nicholson, Wykagyl, 6 up and 5 to play; L. A. Hamilton, Englewood, beat G. G. Bourne, National, 6 up and 5 to play; W. C. Van Clief, Richmond County, beat S. H. TITLE GOLF AT BROOKLAWN.

The Metropolitan Golf Association last night issued its program for the nineteenth amateur championship tournament to be held over the links of the Brooklawn Country Club, Bridgeport, Conn., June 4, 5, 6, and 7. The meeting will consist of a qualifying round at thirty-six holes, the sixty-four players making the lowest scores to compete at eighteen holes in all match rounds with the exception of the final, which will be at thirty-six holes. Those with the first thirty-two scores will compete for the championship and prizes, the defeated sixteen of the main division to play for the President's Cup, and the third and fourth sixteens to compete for prizes.

GUILFORD BEATS ADAIR.

Wins Second Round Match at Woodland by One Up.

NEWTON, Mass., May 16.—Jesse Guilford, State golf champion, defeated Perry Adair of Atlanta, one up, in a second round match today in the Woodland Golf Club Spring tournament. Guilford's accurate short game was responsible for his win.

At the eighth Adair had a six-foot putt for a three. The ball rested on the edge of the cup for nearly a minute and dropped in just as Guilford was about to halve the hole by sinking a short putt for a four.

VERMONT BEATS WESLEYAN.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., May 16.—The University of Vermont defeated Wesleyan in an eight-inning game on Andrus Field this afternoon before the annual Junior Prom crowd by a score of 2 to 1. Furman, the visiting pitcher, a southpaw, struck out nine men and allowed only two hits.

Bowman of Vermont was the individual star, getting a three-base hit and two singles out of four times at bat. Wesleyan had a chance to score in this inning with two men on bases and only one out, but Captain Boote flied out to centre field and Watson was caught on bases.

The score:

HERMAN SCHAEFER IS DEAD.

Baseball Comedian Passes Away Suddenly at Saranac Lake.

Herman Schaefer, the ball player, who was engaged this season as scout for the Giants, died suddenly at Saranac Lake yesterday morning. He was on his way to Lake Placid and suffered a hemorrhage while in a New York Central train. He was hurried to a hospital at Saranac Lake, but died within an hour.

Schaefer was one of the most popular figures on the diamond. He was known as "Germany" and "Dutch" and his antics on the coaching lines furnished amusement for baseball fans for nearly a dozen years. Schaefer got his first start in the big leagues with the Chicago Cubs in 1902 under Frank Selee. He went back to the minors and afterward joined the Detroit Club. Schaefer played with the Tigers for several years.

Yanks Sell Leonard to Tigers.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, May 16.—The transfer of Pitcher Hubert Leonard from the Yankees to the Detroit Tigers is regarded as a matter of only a few hours. President Frank Navin of the Detroit Club today accepted the terms named by the Yankees for the pitcher, and he is now in communication with the holdout player. The sum involved in the transfer was not announced.

JAPANESE PLAYER BEATEN BY TILDEN

WINS IN STRAIGHT SETS

Steadiness of Winner Important Factor in Close Victory Over Oriental.

For the second time in his career, William T. Tilden, Jr., of Philadelphia, yesterday won the annual open tournament of the Harlem Tennis Club, defeating Ichiya Kumagae in the final round in straight sets, 6—4, 6—4, 6—4. It was one of the best exhibitions of early season tennis that New York has ever seen, both players hitting hard throughout, and fighting for every point. Tilden's lame knee held up well under the circumstances, although he limped conspicuously after the first set.

Kumagae seemed a trifle handicapped by the occasional soft spots in the clay surface, which gave him many a bad bound, and affected the accuracy of his driving. His defeat, however, was primarily due to weakness in volleying, and to his inability to gauge the constant changes of pace employed by the brilliant Philadelphian. Although the Japanese star did not succeed in winning a set, he was always dangerous, and the margin of victory was slight.

Kumagae won the toss and began the service in the south court, with Tilden facing the sun. Louis Bry was in the umpire's chair, and the linesmen included Beals Wright, Allen Behr, Vincent Richards, and Harold Taylor.

Japanese Wild at Start.

At the start Kumagae was wild, continually overdriving the baseline, while Tilden devoted his efforts to chopping the ball from side to side. The clay court champion broke through Kumagae's delivery, and then won his own, finishing with a fine volley after a quick jump to the net. The little Oriental then broke into the score sheet with a good volley on his own service, but Tilden responded by serving a love-game, two close decisions going in his favor. The Philadelphian increased his lead to 4—1 with a terrific smash and a wonderful drive from the far corner, Kumagae also contributing a costly double fault. But the left-hander recovered sufficiently to break through Tilden's next service, the decisive point coming when he followed a fine drive with an adequate volley.

In the next game Kumagae began to follow his service to the net, flubbing one volley, but winning on the next. He was beaten by an accurate lob to the base line, but hung on gamely and brought the score to deuce by fast court-covering. Two successive drives topped the net, and then a splendid recovery, with a decisive volley, accounted for the game, making it 4—3. Tilden increased his lead to 5—3 with versatile serving, but Kumagae came back with another on his own delivery. During this game the winner's knee failed him for the first time as he jumped for a difficult volley close up, and Kumagae quickly won by chasing him around the court. Running into a lead of 40—30 on the final game, Tilden missed a chance at the set when Kumagae made a spectacular return of a hard smash. But after getting the vantage point on an error he closed the argument with a clean service ace of terrific speed.

Tilden began the second set successfully with a ferocious forehand wallop, at which Kumagae merely smiled, without moving from his tracks. But the break in service was equalized when Tilden's delivery failed to win. The Philadelphian showed characteristic sportsmanship in driving the ball out for the next game, after Kumagae's good serve had been overlooked by a linesman. In a remarkable exchange of volleys, Tilden brought the score to 2-all, and then rushed into the lead with two successive love games.

Tilden Plays Steady Game.

Kumagae took off his cap and got down to serious work again, with the result that he made it 3—4 by a series of high-bounding serves. Tilden outsteadied his opponent, however, and once more forged ahead to 5—3, with two close shots to the back and side lines going in his favor. A long deuce game fell to Kumagae, and at 4—5 he still had a good chance to square the set. But after deuce had been called again, he failed to kill a short lob and flubbed Tilden's return, losing at 6—4, as before.

The third set found Kumagae still rather unsteady, and he threw away an easy kill for the opening game. Tilden then made it 2—0 with a pair of speedy serves, but Kumagae's answer was a love game on his own delivery. The following session went to deuce, and was won by Tilden with a marvelous back-hand three-quarter volley of a rising ball, making the score 3—1. Kumagae again pulled up, although in the hole with two double faults, and an exceedingly hard hit ball, close up, decided the issue. The southpaw continued his fast driving, and succeeded in tieing up the set at 3—all, and then for the first time went into the lead at 4—3, a net-cord shot doing the trick. Tilden handicapped himself with a double fault, but managed to serve out the set—squaring game. He acquired his final advantage by way of an elusive back-hand chop, which just slid over the net and stayed very close to the ground, a love game making it 5—4.

The finish was sensational, Kumagae making a great get-off service and a sizzling drive down the side-line. Then Tilden reached match-point with a close placement shot, helped by two errors. Kumagae netted the ball once more, in trying to drive, and it was all over, 6—4, 6—4, 6—4.

Only three doubles matches were played at the Harlem Club yesterday, and this event, even with unusual activity today, can scarcely be finished before Monday. The keenest battle was put up by J. H. Steinkampf and Allen Behr against H. H. Bassford and Elliott Binzen, the former pair winning after three hard sets at 6—1, 4—6, 6—4.

WARLOCK WINS OVER JUMPS.

Fifth Race in Succession for Ral Parr's Good Fencer.

PIMLICO, Md., May 16.—Ral Parr's Warlock continued his winning streak over the jumps today, capturing the Crickmore Steeplechase from a field which, although small, contained considerable class. Warlock had the race well in hand all the way, and easily disposed of J. E. Davis's Brooks at the finish. It made Warlock's fifth successive victory, and he has not been beaten this season.

The Clabaugh Memorial Cup, for two-year-olds bred in Maryland, Virginia, or Pennsylvania, was taken by the Quincy Stable's Anniversary, a son of Celt, that found little difficulty in disposing of Murray and two other juveniles. That the exodus to the Metropolitan tracks has already begun was evident from the small fields in most of the events. The meeting will close tomorrow with the running of the Pimlico Oaks, for which most of the best fillies in the East have been named.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For two-year-olds; claiming; four and a half furlongs. Lonely, 112 pounds, (Johnson,) $4.10, $3.10, and $2.50, won; Sweet Apple, 112, (Sande,) $6.70 and $4.20, second; Toucanet, 107, (Fator,) $5.50, third. Time—0:55 2-5. Fastep, The Wit, Sedgegrass and Hello Pardner also ran.

SECOND RACE. — For three-year-olds; claiming; one mile and a sixteenth. Houdini, 114 pounds, (Rice,) $22.30, $11, and $5.30, won; Dottie Vandiver, 104, (Wida,) $18.20 and $7.90, second; Bath, 114, (Kelsey,) $3, third. Time—1:49 2-5. Mother-in-Law, Wilfreda, Toddler, Frizeur, Frank Shannon, and Searchlight III. also ran.

THIRD RACE.—Crickmore Handicap Steeplechase; for four-year-olds and upward; two and a half miles. Warlock, 146 pounds, (F. Williams,) $4.30, $2.60, and out, won; Brooks, 147, (Nicklaus,) $3.10 and out, second; Trumpeter, 142, (Blake,) out to show, third. Time—5:02 2-5. Kingstown Pier also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—Clabaugh Memorial Cup; for two-year-olds; four and a half furlongs. Anniversary, 118 pounds, (Rice,) $3.80, $2.50, and out, won; Murray, 120, (J. Ryan,) $2.80 and out, second; Ireland, 115, (Johnson,) out to show, third. Time—0:54 4-5. Titania also ran.

FIFTH RACE.—Stafford Handicap; for three-year-olds and upward; six furlongs. Louis V., 112 pounds, (Sande,) $15.80, $5.60, and out, won; Quietude, 121, (Ryan,) $2.30 and out, second; Cobalt Lass, 113, (Richcreek,) out to show, third. Time—1:13 4-5. Pride of India also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—For three-year-olds and upward; selling handicap; one mile. Lord Herbert, 104 pounds, (Richcreek,) $6.40, $3.60, and $2.30, won; Flittergold, 103, (Wida,) $4.90 and $2.70, second; King Herod, 113, (Sande,) $2.50, third. Time—1:40 3-5. Tommywaac and Galley Head also ran.

SEVENTH RACE.—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; six furlongs. Thornbloom, 120 pounds, (Sande,) $8.40, $4.40, and $2.60, won; Sister Emblem, 115, (Rice,) $5.70 and $2.70, second; Onico, 115, (Richcreek,) $2.40, third. Time—1:14 3-5. Zouave, General, and Sosius also ran.

IMA FRANK THRILLS CROWD AT JAMAICA

After Running Away for Mile Makes Startling Set Record to Win Arizona Handicap.

There were more thrills for the spectators on the second day of the Metropolitan Jockey Club meeting than are usually crowded into an afternoon's sport, and the visitors to the Jamaica track yesterday had a delightful and profitable time, as three favorites were successful in addition to a well-played equal choice.

J. J. Maher's six-year-old mare, Ima Frank, provided the prize sensation, and although her performance was not crowned with victory, it stood out as one that taxed the memories of old-timers to recall its equal. Ima Frank was one of a speedy field of ten that started in the Arizona Handicap at five and a half furlongs, in which R. F. Carman's Startling carried off the honors after Ima Frank had led until the last few strides under circumstances that rendered her performance of infinitely more merit than the winner's.

Ima Frank was quoted at 20 to 1 in the betting when the field paraded to the post. She was so full of life that little Frach could not hold her, and taking the bit in her teeth, she raced off at top speed while the others were walking quietly past the stand. Once under way there was no stopping the mare, and she made a full circuit of the mile track, only to pass the stand as full of running as when she started. She continued for another half mile before Frach managed to guide her into the chute at the far turn, and the rest of the field had to wait some time before she walked sedately back to the barrier.

That a sprinter could travel such a distance at racing speed and have any chance in the race was almost unbelievable. Any old odds could have been had against her finishing in the money, and the spectators were dumfounded when the mare that should have been leg weary dashed out in front of some of the speediest horses in training. Jack Hare, Jr., Bully Boy, and Startling hung fairly close to the unconventional mare as she winged her way around the turn in a manner that suggested a fresh horse must have taken her place when she disappeared into the chute. Frach was hunched well up on her back as she turned into the stretch, with Bully Boy lapped on her and Startling only half a length back. It was a situation that aroused all the chivalry to be found in a race track crowd, and sympathetic yells greeted Ima Frank as she struggled to hold her place in the van. Bully Boy dropped back beaten by the speed of the plucky mare, and the cheers for her were renewed when it was seen that she held a length's advantage at the furlong pole. The real danger loomed up in Startling, which came with a terrific rush on the outside. There was no denying that burst of speed as Walls urged Startling to his utmost, and a sigh of regret broke out as he ranged alongside of Ima Frank less than fifty yards from the Judges. Startling won by a short length, and the remarkable mare had forced him to run the five and a half furlongs in the track record time of 1:05 2-5 in order to beat her.

There was another thrill for the crowd in the second race at five and a half furlongs when W. C. Clancy's Ting-a-Ling, which had a rough journey all the way, came round the outside of the field at the home turn and, after a brilliant stretch run, failed by a nose to catch E. Seitas's Elected II.

The card for today includes the King's County Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth. In order to give the large crowd expected time to reach the track the first race will start at 2:45.

TOMLIN LEADS AT SHOOT.

Captures Class A Prize in New Jersey Title Tournament.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., May 16.—What is going to happen shortly in the world of sports was illustrated at the New Jersey Trapshooters' Tournament on the grounds of the Arrowhead Rod and Gun Club here today. Shortly before it was time for the first gunner of a field of 100 nimrods to be called to the firing line a Curtiss ninety horse power plane came sweeping out of the skies and landed in the automobile parking place. Out jumped Lieutenant E. E. Ballough of the 89th Aero Squadron and T. K. Apgar, son of Nief Apgar, the well-known professional shot.

As though it was the usual way to attend a shoot, the army officer and his friend unpacked their guns and reported for the championship.

The largest field that has ever shot for the title was on the firing line today. The conditions call for 300 targets. The first 150 were trapped today, the high gun being Fred Tomlin, the present champion, who had a total of 144. He was the winner of the Class A prize today.

In Class B the winner was Dr. W. H. Mathews of Trenton. He had a total of 141. W. H. Raub, Sr., of Easton, N. J., was high gun in Class C with a total of 136. In Class D the winner today was H. T. Thompson of Morristown, N. J., with a card of 132.

'VARSITY OARSMEN FIT FOR HARD TEST

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 16.—All three of the 'Varsity crews that will meet here tomorrow in the annual Childs Cup race on Lake Carnegie had their final workouts this afternoon. The Columbia and Penn shells arrived here yesterday afternoon in time for the oarsmen to take trial spins, and both the visiting eights were out on the water early this morning.

The Tiger crew, however, did not put in an appearance until this afternoon and then indulged only in a few trial starts and a short spurt.

In spite of the reputation of the Philadelphia eight, and the Quakers' record this Spring, experts here are inclined to think that tomorrow's contest will be hard fought and close. Columbia showed a powerful stroke today and a finish that was lacking in the Blue and White eight that came here last Spring, and the Morningside Heights oarsmen impressed observers as having a latent power that would make them formidable.

The Penn eight used a long, driving stroke in its final practice that carried the boat through the water in great style. In a close race the weight of the Quaker crew is likely to count in their favor. They outweigh both the Tigers and the Blue and White oarsmen, the latter by an average of five pounds to the man.

Coach Spaeth, the Princeton rowing mentor, while unwilling to venture an opinion on the outcome of the race today, appeared satisfied with the condition and form of his charges, and confident that they would give a good account of themselves. While not as heavy as Princeton eights of the past, this year's combination shapes up as one of the strongest that the Tigers have ever put on the water.

On past performances, Penn is a favorite. The Quakers have lost only to the mighty Navy crew, and have defeated Yale, while the Tigers were disastrously defeated by the Annapolis eight and were also beaten by a length on the Housatonic.

This is Columbia's first appearance and nothing is known of the actual power of that boat. The Blue and White oarsmen, however, have made remarkably fast time in their trial spins on the Harlem.

In the preliminary races of the day the freshman eights of Princeton, Penn and Columbia will meet. The second freshmen eight will meet the crew of the Central High of Philadelphia.

TENNIS TITLE TO BROCKMAN

BOSTON, May 16.—Herman Brockman of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology tennis team won the New England intercollegiate singles championship on the Longwood Cricket Club courts today from his teammate, William Barron, in straight sets, 6—4, 6—4, 6—3.

Fordham Prep Wins on Court.

Fordham Prep School's tennis team registered its sixth victory of the season yesterday on the Maroon courts by vanquishing the Loyola School team, 5 matches to 0. All of the victorious teams successes came in straight sets, the majority of them comparatively easily.

CHIEFLY AMONG LAWYERS.

It is all very well for Republican leaders to believe that opposition to the League of Nations will be unanimous on their side, and that they will get some Democratic votes, too. Let them cherish this delusion until Congress meets, and maybe for a time after. Senators are not different from other politicians in their attention to the voice of the people. Presently they will discover this phenomenon, which Senator POMERENE brings back from Ohio:

> The only opposition to the League of Nations that I found was among lawyers, who seem to find intense delight in attempting to discover constitutional flaws in it.

Certainly. It is the lawyer's day. Every Republican lawyer in the Senate has constituted himself counsel for the defendant, and is busy preparing an answer, drawing up a demand for a bill of particulars, and filing a demurrer. If the demurrer is overruled, if the bill of particulars is denied, if the answer is incomplete, then the Republican Senate will request the court for thirty days in which to file an amended answer, and possibly will file an application for alimony and counsel fees. That is the glorious and noble spirit in which the lawyers on the Republican side approach the question of the future of the world, the United States being a part thereof.

Of course, Senator POMERENE may be a prejudiced witness. He is a Democrat, and some time or another he may expect to be re-elected. But if we disregard his testimony altogether we shall find that in every State the people bear witness to the same effect. Everywhere is heard an expression of the desire that the treaty be signed and ratified, that the war be ended.

Do the lawyers of the Senate expect to keep the public delightedly dancing to their music while this is going on? They will learn what we tell them now, that the people of the United States, not to speak of several other countries, are deadly tired of war, high taxes, and unsettled business conditions. Let them quarrel over Article X. if they like, but it won't be popular.

THE SKODA WORKS.

Skoda is to be demobilized as were the Krupp works; in Austria as in Germany, munitions plants hereafter are to turn from swords to plowshares. In the case of Skoda, at least, this is something more than figurative, since plows were an important part of the product of the company's industrial department before the war, and are likely to be still more important hereafter. While, as dispatches say, there are Skoda plants at Vienna and Prague, the principal one is at Pilsen, which, like of course the one at Prague, is now in the territory of the Czechoslovak Republic. According to a Prague newspaper, the Pravo Lidu, the Pilsen works, which before the war employed 8,000 people, had 37,000 at work when Austria collapsed; "workers gathered not only from the "immediate district but from all "parts of the Austrian Empire; this "enterprise was not merely a pro"ducing centre for implements of "murder, but was truly a slave "camp."

From the Skoda plant at Pilsen came the big howitzers which upset all existing theories of fortification at the beginning of the war by blowing to pieces the forts of Liége and Namur. Other guns of all kinds were produced in enormous numbers; among the pieces under construction last Fall were long-range cannon to be used in bombarding Paris from the Aisne and Venice from the Piave. But the Czechoslovak revolution of Oct. 28 put an end to all war production, leaving on hand a large supply of completed or half-completed artillery which presumably passes to the Czechoslovak Government.

The Pravo Lidu says that some 6,000 people are still employed more or less irregularly, and that the industrial department, which produces locomotives, motors, tools, machinery, and structural steel, could employ 10,000 if it had sufficient orders and material. During the war the buildings and equipment were enormously expanded, and the Czechs hope that if sufficient coal can be obtained it will be possible to keep up the plant, which is the centre of the industrial life of Pilsen and vicinity, on business which can be won abroad.

WORSE THAN ALCOHOL.

From the neurologists and psychiatrists of the New York Academy of Medicine comes a certain irony or poetry, natural to men both severely scientific and full of human sympathy, about the terrible increase of the powers of evil inevitably consequent on liquor prohibition. It seems that "neuroses" and "psychoses" are greatly to be increased. The human, fraternal, and sympathetic side of drinking is evident and easy enough to be understood of all people except the Anti-Saloon League. It is probably true, as Dr. A. A. BRILL said, that persons who drink to excess are abnormal or defective. They are bound to get into trouble anyway; and if they cannot express their deficiencies in alcohol they may do it in some form more injurious to themselves and more troublesome to the peace and good order of the community.

These possible followers of the alcohol habit, however, are not the worst that the academy apprehends. The coming of the Dry era means a reversion to Gargantua, apparently means still heaven-higher prices for food. Dr. BRILL tells us darkly of persons who gave up drinking only to fall into unimaginable excesses of overeating. He knows of a man rescued from alcoholism only to go on "what his "family call 'roast beef jags,' fol"lowing the eating of six or seven "pounds of roast beef at a sitting." And worse remains. There was a frail, ethereal female creature weighing only ninety pounds. She gave up alcohol. "Within half an hour" she devoured "three pieces of toast with "strawberry jam, an egg, half a "pound of ham, six pieces of pastry, "shrimp salad, two veal chops with "tomato sauce, and several other "entrées." We may not be able to stand alcohol. It is only too clear that we cannot stand a fragile feminine world which eats up most of the food in it at one meal. On the whole, the counsel of wisdom seems to be, "Don't drink and don't eat!"

FARMS FOR VETERANS.

Republican and Democratic leaders in conference with Secretary LANE on Thursday agreed to give their support to a bill to provide land settlements for soldiers and sailors who served in the war. There is so much to be said in favor of helping the veterans to jobs, land, and a home that the only question is how it can best be done. The whole country would benefit by the success of a plan which would, figuratively speaking, make two blades of grass grow where one grew before. There are millions of acres of arid land that can and should be irrigated for production, other millions of acres of swamp land that should be reclaimed for the same purpose, and still other millions of acres of cut-off land that should be cleared and plowed for sowing. Some of the land, if Secretary LANE is heeded, could be used for stockraising. His plan is to put soldiers and sailors to work at current wages on a great reclamation scheme, and afterward sell them farms and implements to be paid for in installments.

In his last annual report the Secretary said that farms for returning veterans of the war would solve several problems. During the period of reclamation the soldiers would have a job; the industrial labor market would be protected from oversupply; a large part of the best citizenship of the country would become attached to the soil; and great areas of land of no present value would be made productive for the benefit of all the people. "Would it be unreasonable," said Secretary LANE, "to ask that we "spend in the next two years on these "veterans of the great war as much "as it cost us to conduct that war for "a single week?" There is only one answer, and all will agree that "there "can be no surer insurance for the "nation than to put its men upon the "soil."

Do returning soldiers and sailors want to find occupation and homes on the land if the Government will assist them to proprietorship and independence? The question has already been answered in the affirmative by thousands of men at home and abroad, men still in the service or discharged. They have filled in cards of inquiry sent out by the Department of the Interior to determine the interest of the army and navy in the Secretary's proposals. Attached to each card was a pamphlet made up of questions and answers to explain his plan. If the veteran was interested he tore off the card, filled it in, and mailed it to the department. In a recent paper on the subject Mr. LANE says:

> A perusal of the letters already filed in the Department of the Interior will convince the most cynical critic of the plan that land hunger is today as unsatisfied as it was after the civil war; that hundreds of thousands of our virile American citizens will welcome the opportunity to continue working for Uncle Sam and help him build the necessary dams and canals, dig the drainage ditches, blow up the stumps, erect houses and barns, and construct roads and lay out town sites.

Community settlements on the order of farm villages are a feature of the Secretary's plan, for he realizes that without a social element to relieve the monotony of existence on the lands redeemed from wildernesses his plan would not be practicable. He has no intention of risking failure; therefore he would keep the soldier and sailor on the land in touch with society and its educational and recreational opportunities. "Canada," he says, "with less than 7,000,000 peo"ple, is offering to each man 130 acres "of land and $2,500 with which to "improve it. Surely the United "States, which has escaped with so "slight a comparative loss in life, "would do no less."

At the meeting in Washington on Thursday Representative MONDELL, Republican floor leader, announced that he would soon introduce a bill appropriating $500,000,000 to provide farms for soldiers and sailors, to be paid for by them in a period of years. Senator SMOOT is to look after the bill in the Senate. As a beginning this will be promising, but it is of the first importance that the measure should become a law without the usual delays that attend social and economic legislation. Returning soldiers and sailors, and those whose luck it was not to go overseas, cannot live long on prospects. They must show an active interest in the plan proposed for their welfare, or it may not get far beyond the stage of discussion.

THE CHINESE CONSORTIUM.

China has had a narrow escape from foreign control through its exploiters. No longer ago than last March Japan was negotiating a loan of 100,000,000 yen on the security of Chinese territory, including great iron mines. Instead, there is now announced a new consortium by the banks of England, France, the United States, and Japan. The significance of that reconsideration of the policies of this country as well as of Japan is that the conquest of China through "spheres of influence" and railways and banks is ended. Germany was formerly leader in that form of commercial enterprise, yet she was a member of the international arrangement which failed after our objection to it in the time of Mr. BRYAN as Secretary of State. Before that similar and earlier arrangement each nation so inclined marked out a sphere of influence in China upon which other nations did not trespass.

We had our place as well as others, but it is to our credit that we did not monopolize it, nor misuse it. We practiced respect toward China's sovereign rights and unselfishness in our economic interests in China. Some other nations made their concessions an excuse for translating economic interests into political encroachments, and regarded their spheres as exclusive preserves. The British practice resembled ours respecting the "open door" for trade, British policy being by "most favored nation" clauses to enjoy such privileges as other nations had, and no more. The negotiation of the principle of the open door as a general policy, binding on all, by Secretary HAY checked the practical partition of China by pledging the several Powers not to interfere with any vested interest in the respective spheres, not to collect any customs other than the Chinese tariff, and not to levy higher harbor dues on the commerce of other nations than its own.

Advantageous to China as this was, it left in effect the system of "spheres" by which the several Powers developed their interests competitively instead of co-operatively. The spheres were too small for units corresponding to the size of China, and there was no harmony in the systems of development. Under a consortium there should be less jealousy, greater enterprise, and an end of political encroachment under cover of trade. Thus Japan in its arrangement regarding Shantung concedes full sovereignty to China, but retains only Germany's economic interests. Japan secures by direct arrangement with the associated Powers the economic privileges which she sought to insure by the loan mentioned above and now abandoned. The future of iron mines as important as those of Alsace-Lorraine is thus settled, and Japan's admission to the consortium ranks her with the world's great Powers in a manner soothing to her pride, ruffled by the restrictions on her emigration. The world's peace is further assured by an arrangement by no means limited in its bearings to the nations immediately concerned.

THE NEGLECTED TORPEDOPLANE.

In an article in the United States Naval Institute Proceedings discussing the torpedoplane, HENRY WOODHOUSE quotes from an English newspaper this statement: "Among many new "devices which the armistice pre"vented the Royal Air Force from "putting into use against the enemy "was the torpedo-airplane. It is con"sidered to be of even greater poten"tial value than the submarine." Admiral RODMAN, commander of the American battle fleet at Scapa Flow, shared the secret of "the mystery airplanes of the British Navy," which would have been used against the German fleet in Kiel Harbor if hostilities had not been brought to an end by the armistice. Upon his return to the United States Admiral RODMAN brought the torpedoplane to the attention of the House Committee on Naval Affairs. He said:

> The British have developed a plane to carry a torpedo. If we had in our fleet ships equipped to carry fifteen planes fitted with torpedoes, there is no question that if we could get in close proximity to the enemy's fleet, we could operate very successfully, especially against battleships.

Although Rear Admiral BRADLEY A. FISKE in the Winter of 1910-1911 suggested a torpedo-carrying airplane as a means of defense in the Philippines and in July, 1912, took out a patent upon a torpedo attachment and mechanism to discharge the explosive, the United States Government has allowed the British Admiralty to be first on the sea with an equipment of airplanes designed to fire torpedoes at warships. There is no seaplane in our navy with the device patented by Admiral FISKE, or with any similar means of carrying and firing a torpedo. What Mr. WOODHOUSE has to say upon the subject in the Annapolis official publication is therefore timely. The truth is that the Fiske invention was not taken seriously here in America. There seemed to be an impression that the torpedoplane would not be able to reach its target and could hardly escape destruction by the enemy warship's guns. This impression arose from a misunderstanding of the method of attack by the torpedoplane. Let Admiral FISKE himself explain:

> The aviator approaches his target from a great distance and high up in the air; and when, say, six or seven miles away, he volplanes toward the water, runs above the surface of the water a short distance, heading toward his target, and when ready simply pulls a lever. The action of pulling the lever releases the torpedo, which is rigidly held under the airplane, and at the same time throws back the starting lever, with the result that the torpedo falls on the water in exactly the same way as if it had been dropped from a destroyer instead of from an airplane.

This was written in 1917, about the time the United States entered the war. If Admiral FISKE had been heeded and the Navy Department had taken up his proposal with energy it might have been the good luck of American aviators to destroy the German fleet at Kiel. As the war was closing the British, who are alert to adopt inventions which Americans plume themselves upon and neglect, were getting ready to use torpedoplanes in aggressive tactics against the High Sea Fleet. It may be true that British officers were, in point of time, not far behind Admiral FISKE in planning the torpedoplane. Lieut. Col. DOUGLAS HYDE THOMPSON of the Royal Air Force wrote a paper on torpedoplanes in August, 1913, and he joined with Captain M. F. SUETER in applying for a patent in March, 1914. But the Admiralty did not thaw out to the project until a Turkish troopship, carrying 3,000 men, was sunk in the Sea of Marmora by a British torpedoplane in 1915. Then the experiments at Calshot and Southampton Water were resumed. Later there was feverish bubbling of torpedoplanes (mystery airplanes.) The Italians also experimented, Captain ALESSANDRO GUIDONI of the navy frequently hitting a target from a distance of 3,000 yards; and there is no reason to doubt that the British steamship Gena was sunk on March 1, 1917, by a torpedo discharged from a German seaplane.

Doubtless torpedo attacks from airplanes occurred to several inventors in different countries at about the same time, but Admiral FISKE's patent seems to have been the first recorded. The British, the Germans, and the Italians equipped planes with torpedoes, the British in a businesslike way and on a large scale. But the Americans, who might have been ready with flotillas of torpedoplanes when they entered the war, were indifferent to the potentialities of their own countryman's invention and spent no time in experimenting—the old, old story!

THE STAMP OF INFAMY.

With so many classes and individuals incensed against Mr. BURLESON, it is surprising that it was left to the President of the New Jersey League of Republican Clubs to discover an unheard-of infamy. The new three-cent stamp, already sufficiently condemned by friends of art, is now denounced by this vigilant watchdog of the people's liberties because it bears the flags of the Allies. "This is Democratic "propaganda for the League of Na"tions." Hence, away with it. Hereafter let all loyal Republicans, or at least all members of the New Jersey League of Republican Clubs, conduct a passive resistance against this betrayal of the nation's birthright by putting none but two-cent stamps, ornamented with the countenance of the founder of this Republic, upon their letters destined to whatever point. This may lead to some delay in delivery, but Mr. BURLESON's Post Office shows no indecorous haste about delivering letters even with full postage paid, so the actual suffering will not be very keen.

But why does the gentleman stop with this one exposure? Why not tell us that when precedents were broken a few years ago to put the countenance of MARTHA WASHINGTON upon a stamp it was a piece of Democratic propaganda in favor of Federal woman suffrage; that the airplane on the stamps provided for the air mail service is symbolic of a sinister purpose to wipe out State lines and centralize our Government at Washington; that the bicycle on the special delivery stamp reveals the utter unprogressiveness of an administration living in a more rapid age? Of a gentleman so observant as the President of the New Jersey League of Republican Clubs, his fellow-citizens have the right to demand that eternal vigilance which, it appears, will alone suffice to keep Mr. BURLESON from fixing the League of Nations upon us by administrative regulation.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Some Day They Will Understand.

Coming just at this time, the removal of EDITH CAVELL's body to England, the impressive services over it in Westminster Abbey, and its burial with further national honors in her home town of Norwich, ought to help the Germans at least a little way toward an understanding of what still so surprises and offends them—the almost worldwide existence of a feeling they describe as hatred of their whole race.

Among the many causes of that feeling, the execution of the death sentence pronounced upon Miss CAVELL was far from the least. The circumstances surrounding that execution, the high character of the victim, the magnificent work done by her through many months for the relief of suffering, including that of German soldiers, the fact that the "crime" of which she was convicted was such only in the eyes of judges who were without the shadow of a right to establish a court of any kind in Belgium, the refusal to hear intercession in her behalf from any quarter, and the hasty infliction of the savage penalty in order to preclude the possibility of a commutation of sentence through some compunction or apprehension on the part of the civil authorities in Berlin—all this combined to make the shooting of this one woman an atrocity that outranked as a cause of universal horror and indignation all the others committed by the Germans except perhaps the sinking of the Lusitania.

Unlike many of the atrocities, too, it was one the memory of which has not faded with the passage of time. It remains clear and vivid in all of the innumerable minds that were shocked by the news of her taking off, and even the Germans, or most of them, long since gave up the hopeless task of defending what soon became, even in their eyes, a colossal blunder—a manifestation of utter unwisdom.

A Murder Wholly Unjustified.

Under international law the putting to death of EDITH CAVELL by the Germans was not even technically permissible. In Belgium they were where they had no right to be, and all their acts there were consequently illegal. More than that, She was not a spy in any ordinary or correct use of that term. That she violated an order issued by the German military authorities is true, but it was in a way that disclosed no German plans and gave "aid and comfort" to the enemies of Germany only indirectly and to an extent hardly measurable.

What she did is what, being the woman she was, she had to do. In it there was no betrayal of confidence won by deception, and it was not for a material gain. She had not stolen disguised within the German lines, nor did she remain there under false pretenses. In brief, she was not a spy at all, and to put her to death as one was simply murder, committed as were numberless others in Belgium as essential to the carrying out of a settled policy of systematic terrorization.

Instead of protecting the lives of German soldiers and helping them to victory, it did not a little to bring about their ultimate defeat and the wrecking of their empire.

An Accident Almost Inevitable.

That two boys were struck and injured, one of them very seriously, by the wildly flying ropes that lashed the air around the C-5 when she broke away from her moorings and drifted out to sea, only makes the far from surprising revelation that Newfoundland boys are just like boys everywhere, only more so. Of course all of them who could get near the airship did so, and while their nearness doubtless was a cause of anxiety to the airship's officers and the other Americans present, they were guests in a far land and would hesitate sternly to enforce such regulations as would have been a matter of course if they had been at home.

Naturally the young Newfoundlanders utilized all the accorded privileges of inspection—and a few besides. The intensity of their interest in the strange craft was entirely creditable to their intelligence, and though, with the knowledge of nautical matters that comes so early to the island youth, they must have been well aware of the danger that lurks in ropes tightly stretched or in rapid motion, that would have been for them a poor reason for keeping at a distance.

One can hope, in spite of an adverse diagnosis, that even the boy most badly hurt will soon recover. The sons of Newfoundland are a sturdy company and hard to kill, else would they all have been dead long ago. The sea is their home as much as the land, or more—and such a sea! Storms are the rule there, rather than the exception, and the climate is always Winter except for a rather brief annual mitigation at the time when it is Summer in lower latitudes. The islanders, in spite of their apparent isolation, are far from unsophisticated, for the men all go to sea and the women go to America, by which they mean Boston.

Of late years the insular dialect, once notable, has been disappearing, but it can still be found in the remoter fishing villages. In them, too, one can pick up more strange and ancient copper and silver coins than are to be found anywhere else on this side of the ocean.

A Dual Responsibility.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We can only secure a real and lasting peace when each and every Government comes to a thorough realization of its dual trust in which it is answerable, first, to its own people and, second, to the world at large. For we are living in a new world, a vastly different one from that of a hundred years ago. We Americans are slow to realize this and it is time that we woke up. Certain policies in our early history were essential to our growth, but always to stick to the past is small and narrow minded. The world has become very closely knit together to the extent that a disturbance in any one spot has far reaching effects. Morally, our Government is responsible to the world for its international policies, and for the sake of our honor we cannot afford to refuse, or even to hesitate. There is a big job ahead of us, a well worth while job, and a job rich in its moral and economic rewards, and it is one that will demand a vision and a mighty effort behind that vision. For the sake of its honor, and for the future peace of the world, America must do its part in helping the small and the weak.

BALKAN ATROCITIES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES of last Sunday there was published a letter by V. K. Sugareff, which among other strange statements contains one in particular which friends of Greece in the United States cannot permit to pass unchallenged. It reads:

"I am aware of the fact that the Bulgarian Government or some Bulgarian officials have been accused of having committed atrocities. I do not question the veracity of the accusation, provided an investigation has been impartially conducted by reliable persons whose standing is of international repute. We have one sad precedent. Bulgaria was condemned by the whole civilized world during the second Balkan war for atrocities. The London Times and the Paris Temps published lurid accounts of atrocities said to have been committed by the Bulgarians, but these same papers, at the time the Carnegie Commission report was published, wrote lengthy editorials retracting everything they had previously said against Bulgaria."

As you see, this casts doubt upon the atrocities committed by the Bulgarians in 1916-18 in the course of the world war, and furthermore maintains that the charges brought against Bulgaria in 1913 were, upon the publication of the Carnegie report, universally recognized as false.

Let us examine these statements. First, it requires a good deal of boldness to deny that in Macedonia the Bulgarians, and not merely some subordinate officials, outdid the Huns and the Turks in cruelty. In Eastern Macedonia the population was decimated in a manner without precedent in all history. Out of 55,000 inhabitants in Cavalla there remained on Oct. 28, 1918, 8,500. In Serres there were found to be left out of 22,000-24,000 only 3,500, and of these more than half had come in from villages round about. In Drama, too, the population was similarly reduced, more than 5,000 having died of inanition. These facts are confirmed not only by the official reports of the Greek Government and by the commission sent out by the University of Athens, but by the English and French military authorities as well.

In addition to this, the American Red Cross is at work in Eastern Macedonia, where many of its members have fallen victims to a virulent form of typhoid fever, which the Greeks returning from Bulgaria brought back with them.

Finally, there has been in Macedonia since the end of the Winter an international Commission of Investigation, made up of representatives of the allied powers.

Why does Mr. Sugareff pretend to be ignorant of the existence of this commission, and ask for the appointment of another under the presidency of Lord Bryce, who is, to be sure, most highly respected, but is now more than 80 years old, and whose experience in Balkan affairs is limited to the fact that he was Chairman of the Balkan Committee of the famous Philo-Bulgarian organization? This new committee, no matter who happens to be its President, could not provide the guarantees already afforded by the commission appointed by the allied powers and would arrive in Macedonia a year after the departure of the Bulgarians, when the wounds will already have begun to heal.

Perhaps, in fact, this healing was not unforeseen by those asking for a new commission. Let us not forget that the Carnegie Commission, too, of which I shall speak below, was not composed of men who had followed with their own eyes the war of 1913.

Second, Mr. Sugareff claims that the statements that appeared in the European press were proved false by the report of the Carnegie Commission.

To this it may be objected that not two, but at least fifteen papers, had correspondents in July, 1913, in Macedonia. Many of these were distinguished journalists, such as Puaux, Bourdon, Gaston Deschamps, Magrini, G. Steevens, C. Price, &c., and all confirmed these Bulgarian outrages. Not one of them was contradicted by his paper either before or after the Carnegie report.

In addition to this, in July an official commission of investigation was appointed by the French Government, consisting of Vicomte d'Halgouet and Colonel Lepidi, the conclusions of which were also published by the Paris Temps. The English papers, too, published declarations of a high officer of the British Navy, Commodore Cardale.

As for the Carnegie Commission, even before it took up its task Serbs and Greeks protested against the personnel of the commission, calling attention to the fact that two of its members who had already interested themselves in the Balkan Peninsula, Messrs. Brailsford and Miliukoff, had for years shown such fanaticism in behalf of Bulgaria that they ought to have been regarded as unsuited for such a delicate mission. The fact that these two gentlemen continued to be philo-Bulgars even after their countries, England and Russia, became involved in war with Bulgaria shows the extent of their philo-Bulgarism.

The rest of the letter of Mr. Sugareff, which has to do with the Serbs, I will leave to be answered by others who may know more about this phase of the question. I cannot help noting, however, that in one place the writer refers to the imperialism of Venizelos in its relation to Bulgarian policies.

Those who remember what sacrifices Venizelos was ready to make in 1912, 1913, and 1915, in order that a Balkan Confederation might be established, and how these came to naught before the insatiate greed of the Bulgarians, will appreciate the unconscious humor of Mr. Sugareff. CARROLL N. BROWN.

MAY THE MAGICIAN.

But a few brief days ago
All the woods were brown and bare—
Hardly leaf or bud appeared,
Just a wild flower here and there.
April should have done more work;
(Though she's such a careless shirk.)

Thirty days were hers to stage
Youthful Spring's real coming out—
P'raps she wearied of the task,
More inclined to weep and pout—
For results were not the kind
Sister May had hoped to find!

Scolding April's heedless moods,
May first waved her wand—and then,
All the naked trees were clothed
In soft, tender green, again,
And the orchards blossomed fair—
Violets were everywhere!

Daisies opened sleepy eyes
Where the shimmering birches swayed,
Breathing ancient lullabies.
And the whole earth shows today

VETOES FIREMEN'S BILL.

Governor Says It Provides Machinery for Overruling City Officials.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 16.—Governor Smith today vetoed the three-platoon system for New York City firemen because the bill provided machinery for "overruling the decision of the duly elected officers on a purely administrative matter by popular vote." The measure would have applied to other first-class cities and provided for a vote of the people to make it locally enforceable.

The Governor held that if the question of inaugurating the three-platoon system in New York City was put to a vote at a special election it would cost the city about $400,000 unnecessarily, because the power to give the firemen relief lies with the city officials. He declared also that he had been informed that the New York City Board of Estimate and Apportionment was working out a two-platoon system.

The Governor left here by automobile this afternoon for New York. There are about sixty bills which were handed to him by the Legislature awaiting his action before the expiration of the thirty-day period Monday. Many of these will be included in his omnibus veto.

Principal among the measures awaiting his approval or disapproval is the bill seeking to increase the salaries of teachers in New York City and the remainder of the State. The Governor has given no indication as to what action he will take on this measure.

T. G. Spellacy, General President of the Association of Fire Fighters, said yesterday that there was not the slightest chance of a strike or a concerted movement to resign among the firemen of New York City because of Governor Smith's veto of the three platoon bill, but that the fight for that system would probably be carried at once to the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. Spellacy attacked Governor Smith on the ground that before and after election he had given assurances that he favored the bill. According to Mr. Spellacy, the Governor told a committee of firemen, before the bill was proposed, that he favored it, but he added: "You haven't a chance of getting it through a Republican Legislature."

Asked if he thought the firemen would accept the proposed solution, said to be under consideration by the City Administration, of having the firemen spend twelve hours at firehouses and then twelve at their homes, he said:

"If this thing is proposed, there will be a rebellion in the Fire Department. I understand that under the plan which has been suggested the firemen would have one day off in a month and that the beds would be removed from the firehouses, so that they would be constantly on duty during the twelve hours. Under this plan, the men would have less time off than they have now."

ALIENS LEAVING AMERICA.

Thousands in Cities Here Returning to Lands Freed by War.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—A widespread exodus of aliens from this country was reported today by the Department of Labor. Inquiries by the department's investigation and inspection service have revealed that already large numbers of foreign-born residents are leaving the country and that even more expect to depart when steamship accommodations and passports can be obtained.

Unemployment and family interests were said to be important factors in stimulating the eastward flow of the human tide which for decades has set only westward.

Ethelbert Stewart, director of the investigation service, said many aliens reported they had not heard from their families since Europe was thrown into war, and that they were going overseas to make a personal investigation.

Another cause of the emigration is the desire of some aliens to participate in the settlement of estates of relatives killed in the war. There also is the desire of many foreign-born to return to lands now freed from German or Austrian domination.

Figures from many cities show that fully 50 per cent. of the aliens of certain races intend to return to Europe, many of them to remain there. In an Indiana city with a large Rumanian population from 40 to 50 per cent. want to return to their homeland. Already 150 Italians and 100 Greeks have left this city.

An investigation by a steel plant showed that 61 per cent. of its alien employes declared their intention to return to Europe, and of this number 91 per cent. said they were going home to stay.

A prominent Hungarian of Chicago estimated that 50 per cent. of the 30,000 unnaturalized Austro-Hungarians in that city would return to Europe. In a Connecticut city with a Polish population of about 6,000, it was said, from 1,500 to 2,000 expect to return.

Among Lithuanians there is a strong feeling that if Lithuania becomes independent there will be a large movement back to that country.

FIND 587 JOBS IN A DAY.

The plan of the Knights of Columbus of paying selected ex-service men $4 a day to find employment for their comrades is meeting with success, according to an announcement yesterday. The canvassers on the first day out found 587 jobs, an average of nearly six jobs for each solicitor.

Jobs were found for 100 men in a sugar refinery, 80 stenographers, 75 salesmen, 60 clerks, 50 bookkeepers, 30 automobile mechanics, 6 electricians, 12 machinists, 10 tailors, 20 pressmen, and 10 linotype operators.

The drive is being conducted by 100 soldiers, sailors, and marines under the direction of Peter W. Collins, the K. of C. employment director. Positions for fifty wounded men to learn the jewelry trade were offered by Joseph Fahys. The men will be given work in the Fahys factory at Sag Harbor, L. I., and be paid $18 a week while they are learning the trade.

The National Catholic War Council, co-operating with the United States Employment Service, has established several employment service stations throughout the city, the principal bureau being located at the Cardinal Farley Club, 15 East Thirtieth Street. Dormitory accommodations, canteen service, and relief bureau are also maintained at this club.

WILSON TO TEXAS WOMEN.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The National American Woman Suffrage Association tonight made public this cable message from President Wilson to Miss Minnie Fisher Cunningham, President of the Texas Woman Suffrage Association:

"I am looking forward with the greatest interest to the referendum of May 24 on woman suffrage, and entertain the confident hope that the men of Texas will by a very great majority render gallant justice to the women of the State. WOODROW WILSON."

TURNING TO SMOOT FOR SENATE ACCORD

WOULD DISPLACE WARREN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Efforts to bring about an engagement on the organization of the incoming Senate were continued today by the Republican leaders, with the Progressives, headed by Senator Borah, still refusing to abandon their fight upon the selection of Senator Penrose as Chairman of the Finance Committee.

The situation was somewhat easier as the result of a persistent report that Senator Reed Smoot of Utah had been assured of the chairmanship of the Appropriations Committee, as a concession to the Progressive element, which had bitterly opposed the proposed selection of Senator Warren of Wyoming. This decision, it was stated, was made after a conference of the leaders, in which Senators Penrose and Warren participated. Senator Smoot, it was stated also, had been advised as to the attitude of the leaders in regard to the party program.

It seemed reasonably certain tonight that this plan would be carried out if it developed that the Progressives would agree not to carry their fight against Senator Penrose to the floor of the Senate.

Senator Warren, according to the plan, would be offered the chairmanship of the Military Affairs Committee. He has asserted that he would not accept that appointment, giving as one reason the fact that General Pershing is his son-in-law.

It was reported that Senator Lodge would not name the Committee on Committees before Monday, the day on which the Senate reconvenes, and in that event it is not likely that this committee will be able to get its slate in shape in time for a Republican caucus before Wednesday.

Shaping Legislative Program.

The Republican legislative program was informally discussed today by the House Steering Committee, which will meet tomorrow and formally prepare a program for action by the Republican caucus tomorrow night.

The program includes:

1. Passage of all appropriation bills which failed of passage in the last session, by July 1.
2. Return of the telephone and telegraph lines immediately.
3. Woman suffrage amendment.
4. Determination of a national shipping policy.
5. Repeal of the semi-luxury tax.
6. Soldiers and sailors land settlement law.
7. Rigid economics and the creation of a budget system.

It is expected that the Republican caucus will ratify the recommendations.

Longworth to Renew Fight.

Mr. Longworth, who has been active in an effort to force a liberalization of the committees and the rules, said that it was the purpose of the insurgents to revive in the caucus tomorrow night the issue for increasing the Steering Committee from five to nine. There is not much chance that the plan will succeed unless the Mann forces decide, for the sake of harmony, to concede to the demands. In that case it is believed that the caucus will not accept the personnel suggested by the Longworth followers, but will merely agree to the enlargement and make its own selections.

There seems to be divided opinion among Republicans as to the desirability of general tariff legislation. Representative Fordney, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, who has not returned, has declared, during the recess, for a tariff bill at the special session. Representative Moore, who ranks next to him on the committee, said that the semi-luxury tax should be repealed, and that the committee should hold hearings of business men to determine whether it is advisable to undertake the writing of an omnibus tariff bill while conditions are abnormal.

Representative Longworth of Ohio, who is an active member of the committee, is against general tariff revision, but says he will introduce a bill to repeal the tax of 1 cent on soda and ice cream sales.

Officials in Five States Named to Carry Out Federal Aid Law.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Appointment of a committee of State highway officials to co-operate with the Federal Bureau of Public Roads in carrying out provisions of the Federal Aid Road act and its amendments was announced here today through the Department of Agriculture.

A. R. Hirst, President of the American Association of State Highway Officials, notified the bureau he had selected the following as members of the committee: George P. Coleman, State Highway Commissioner of Virginia; S. E. Bradt, State Superintendent of Highways of Illinois; Charles J. Bennett, State Highway Commissioner of Connecticut; W. S. Keller, State Highway Engineer of Alabama, and Ira R. Browning, State Road Engineer of Utah.

It also was announced that the Secretary of Agriculture up to May 1 had approved 1,057 project statements for Federal aid roads, involving the improvement of 10,580 miles of highways at an estimated cost of $92,933,000.

COLISEUM PLAN FOR CITY.

Proposed as War Memorial on Grand Union Hotel Site.

A suggestion for the erection of a coliseum, the largest in the world, on the site of the old Grand Union Hotel, Forty-second Street and Fourth Avenue, as a permanent war memorial, was made to the Board of Estimate yesterday by E. P. V. Ritter, who organized the company which built the new Grand Central Palace. Gage E. Tarbell, General George W. Wingate, and others approved the plan. The site now covered by the Manhattan Storage Warehouse and the building owned by the Third Avenue Railway Company would also be used if the plan went through.

In his communication to the board, Mr. Ritter said:

"The money necessary for the acquirement of property not owned by the city, and for the erection of the memorial itself, would be raised by popular subscription and the whole be given in perpetuity to the city, to which would accrue all revenues obtained from the rental of the great hall and the smaller halls into which by a novel arrangement the interior could be easily transformed."

Mayor Hylan and Controller Craig thought the Court House site might be used for such a building, and Borough President Dowling of Manhattan thought well of the scheme, but objected to "going round with the hat." The matter was referred to the Mayor's Committee on Permanent Memorials.

DEMANDS REVISION OF LEAGUE DRAFT

With practically the entire Republican delegation to Congress from this State listening, United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., speaking last night at a dinner given in honor of the United States Senators and Republican Congressmen from New York, announced that he would vote against the League of Nations covenant in its present form. The announcement was greeted with applause, the diners, numbering 300, rising as they gave their approval.

"The covenant will be potential in its control of the destinies of generations of Americans not yet born," said the Senator. "To ask the United States Senate to ratify it in its present form, and compel the people to shoulder this great and momentous undertaking, would be tantamount to asking us to sign a blank check."

Senator Wadsworth and Senator William M. Calder were the principal speakers. Nearly all of the twenty-four Republican Representatives from this State were present as guests. The banquet hall at the Republican Club was jammed with party leaders from different parts of the State, who applauded the speeches warmly. Ex-State Chairman William Barnes, who had not attended a function at the Republican Club for a year or more, was there to hear Senator Wadsworth.

"I believe the German delegates will sign the Peace Treaty," said Senator Wadsworth. "Then it will be submitted to the United States Senate for ratification, and with it will come the now famous covenant of the League of Nations.

"This covenant is so potential in its control of the future policies of the United States and the destinies of generations of Americans yet unborn that the United States Senate in considering it must lay aside all thoughts of partisan advantage and political expediency in order to do the large and the wise thing.

"I especially hope that in the deliberations before we determine whether this country shall surrender its freedom of choice of a future international policy all thought of the next Presidential campaign will be cast aside. I think we shall do better in the Presidential contest if we forget it while this debate lasts. The question must be approached in a spirit of patriotism and pure courage, without jockeying for place or thought for momentary partisan advantage. In the discussion of this question the country will demand of its representatives in the Senate courage and clarity of thought. From what I have observed the people are weary unto death of trimming in public places.

"In deliberating upon the covenant of the League of Nations we must look back over our history, to determine why we are here as a great self-governing free nation and what has made us successful up to the present time, as well as what is safest for our country, not only now but for generations to come.

"My own opinion is that, as written at present, the covenant of the League of Nations is not satisfactory. I would feel more comfortable regarding it and look upon it with infinitely more favor, had the recommendations of Elihu Root been adopted, but an examination of the document in its present form shows that his suggestions have been entirely disregarded in such amendments as have been made.

"I think it can be amended in a parliamentary way and hope that it will be. I wish they had started at the bottom, as Senator Root suggested, and built up a body of international law for the guidance of the nations—so that we could have had a government of laws instead of a government of men to determine the intercourse of nations and safeguard their peace in the future."

Senator Wadsworth expressed the opinion that the Republicans would organize and "run" the United States Senate, beginning on Monday.

"Dangerous experiments have been tried by the present Administration at Washington," said the Senator. "A direct effort can be traced through the last four years to erect a socialistic form of government in this country. I think the people are looking to the incoming Republican Congress to bring the country back to the old concepts. All the brains and all the courage the Republican Party can master will be required to save the country from the grave dangers that are looming."

Senator Wadsworth urged the restoration of the railroads to private ownership under Government regulation "which will not repeat the errors of the old regulatory system and drive the transportation lines to the brink of bankruptcy." He pleaded for the enactment of laws providing for universal military training, "not characterized by Prussianism, but responsive to public sentiment, as expressed through Congress, rather than through the Central Government at Washington."

Charles D. Hilles, President of the Republican Club, was toastmaster. In his opening remarks he urged a revision of the Federal system of taxation and a tariff for revenue and protection both.

"I believe," he said, "that the Peace Treaty and the League of Nations' covenant should be approved by the U. S. Senate. The clouds that overhung the League of Nations question are no longer so threatening, and those who regarded the original draft as fraught with danger see in the suggestion of a sound League a great potentiality for future peace. The insensate horrors of war have brought us to admit our share in the collective responsibility of the civilized peoples of the world, and we are under moral obligation not to inject politics into the discussion of this question."

At the close of a brief address Senator Calder admitted that he had not felt well all evening. He smiled and made light of his illness, but later put his hand to his forehead repeatedly, turned pale, excused himself, and left the room. Downstairs he refused the attention of a physician, but, accompanied by a friend, went home to Brooklyn. According to a member of the club Senator Calder has been greatly worried by the illness of his aged father and has not himself been in the best of health.

THOMPSON ATTACKS LEAGUE

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 16.—The Republican, a weekly publication, credited with being the organ of Mayor William Hale Thompson, today came out against the League of Nations. "The League," it says, "takes from the American people the supreme power of their own Government, and places it in the hands of representatives of a few foreign autocracies, monarchies, near monarchies, and near republics, including the right to decide whether we shall go to war."

PERSHING VISITS DUCHESS.

American Commander Received by Charlotte of Luxemburg.

LUXEMBURG, May 16.—General Pershing, the American Commander in Chief, was received today by Grand Duchess Charlotte. The General was accompanied by several members of his staff.

PARIS, May 16.—General Pershing, according to plans announced today, will leave Paris on May 22 on his trip to London, where he will be the guest of the British Government and will review American and British troops. The American Commander in Chief will cross the Channel on a British destroyer and will go from Folkstone to London on a special train.

The General and his party will return by way of Brussels, where a big celebration will be held on May 29. General Pershing will then go by automobile to the large American battle cemeteries at Beaumont and Romagne to attend services on Memorial Day.

NO TOWNSEND WEDDING.

Illness of Daughter of F. De P. Townsend Announced.

Friends in this city of Miss Marie Jermain Townsend, daughter of Frederick De Peyster Townsend of Cooperstown, N. Y., learned that her marriage to John Elliott Jenkins of 2,625 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, has been indefinitely postponed.

The marriage was originally set for April 26, and Mr. Jenkins's mother and a small party of friends from Chicago came East to attend the nuptial. Three days before the time fixed an announcement was published in Chicago to the effect that the wedding had been postponed on account of the illness of Miss Townsend.

Mr. Jenkins and his mother are at present staying at the Hotel Chatham, this city. From Mrs. Jenkins it was learned last night that no definite arrangements had been made for the wedding.

WED AFTER WAR ROMANCE.

Miss Craig, New York Nurse, and Capt. Lambrichts Married in Paris.

A cable from Paris announces the marriage of Miss Frances C. M. Craig of New York, a cousin of Mrs. Nat Olds of 123 Waverley Place, to François Yvon L. Lambrichts, a surgeon in the Belgian Army. The two met three years ago in service under fire of German guns.

Miss Craig went over in 1916 as one of a unit of volunteer American nurses, with the American Girls Aid, and served with the Belgian Army from her arrival until the armistice was signed. She is a Canadian, and a graduate of the Wylie School for Nurses of this city, and had three years' practice here before going abroad.

SUN MEN HOLD REUNION.

Reminiscences of "the old Sun" were exchanged last night at the fifteenth annual dinner of the Sun Alumni Association at the Hotel Commodore. Former members of The Sun staff to the number of about seventy attended.

Martin Egan, formerly of the Laffan News Bureau and now connected with J. P. Morgan & Co., and George Barry Mallon, President of the association, spoke. Mr. Egan told of his impressions of nine months as a civilian member of the staff of General Pershing. Mr. Mallon told stories of former days in "the old Sun office."

Milnor-McCarthy.

The marriage is announced of Miss Beatrice Coolidge McCarthy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Francis McCarthy, of Ridgewood, N. J., and Joseph Kirkbride Milnor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Milnor, which took place on Thursday evening last in Christ Church, Ridgewood, N. J. Mr. Milnor was a Lieutenant in the Air Service and recently returned from France. He is a grandson of the late Frederick Palmer, former President of the Ridgewood National Bank.

Miss Meacham to Wed T. S. Lewis.

Mrs. Frederick Castle Meacham of 450 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, has announced the proposed marriage of their daughter, Miss Grace Meacham, to Tracy S. Lewis at Wolfboro, N. H., on June 14. Miss Meacham has taken an active part in charitable entertainments. Mr. Lewis lives at Delmonico's, and has a place at Beacon Falls, Conn. He is a graduate of Yale and a member of the Union League Club.

Miss Mabel G. Goodwin Engaged.

Mrs. John Goodwin of 320 Central Park West announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Mabel Glenn Goodwin, to Vincent Seymour Fraser. Miss Goodwin has been active in Red Cross work as a member of the Emergency Canteen Service. Mr. Fraser was with the French Army at the front for more than twenty months, and has been in service also in Belgium and Germany. He was awarded the Croix de Guerre, also divisional and regimental citations. The marriage will take place some time in June.

Mrs. Fletcher Ryer Gives a Dinner.

Mrs. Fletcher Ryer gave a dinner at the Ritz-Carlton last night for Commander Anderson, U. S. N. Among the guests were the Duchess de Chaulnes, Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, Mrs. Benjamin Pratt, Mrs. C. F. Kohl, Mrs. Joseph O. Tobin, Harry S. Black, Robert T. McKeen, Clarence Jones, Captain Gibson, and H. Algara.

PENNELL ASSAILS WAR LOAN POSTERS

WANTS NATIONAL SCHOOL

America needs proper advertising and good schools of the graphic art, Joseph Pennell told the members of the American Federation of Arts at the Metropolitan Museum in an address upon "Pictorial Publicity" yesterday afternoon. Mr. Pennell in his discussion made sharp criticisms of the posters of the diferent Liberty loans. The first were so bad, he said, that a committee of artists was formed and took the matter to Washington. There was an improvement during the second loan, he continued, and the posters for the third and fourth campaigns showed further improvements still.

"As far as I can determine, however," he added, "the Committee on Posters being dissolved, the posters of the last loan were solely a business proposition and a typically manufactured article as a consequence. It was a disgrace that they were allowed to be distributed. Everybody was paid for work on the posters except the artists who designed them, and we were fools enough to do them for nothing. All the posters, after the artists had sent them in, had to be redrawn because none of them knew how to make a poster ready to be reproduced. It is a scandal that there are no technical schools in this country. If America is going to take her place in the great art world that is coming we must have such schools. We are about three laps behind the tail of the procession in such things. Posters in France were designed by men who were trained for the work. There were no middle men to come in and tell them how to do it. It was the same with the English artists. Posters of France, England, Belgium, and Italy have been exhibited here. I regret sincerely that not an American poster has been seen abroad.

"If we want this country to get in the limelight we must employ European methods. It would be well worth while to do so. In its exhibition of war posters in this country the British Government has done more for itself in this country than this country has done for itself.

"There is not one properly equipped technical school in America, there is not one school where you can learn the graphic art. We will soon have to come into competition with other countries—we will come into competition with Germany again. Germany has a wonderful training school under the German Government. It is owing to this school that she has been able to accomplish much that she has done in the past. We must have a training school directed by the Government, a serious Government affair in Washington. You will say that such a school would get into politics and that there would be grafting. There have been two schools under the Government which have proved themselves worthy in this war—Annapolis and West Point. Men were taught there to be soldiers and sailors, and they must be trained in this other school for its special work. You cannot set a certain number of years for the course. It takes a lifetime to study art."

Gerrit A. Beneker, who followed Mr. Pennell, speaking on "Art a Constructive Force," was introduced and applauded as the artist who made the poster for the last Victory Loan showing the working man who is saying: "Sure we'll finish the job." He advocated art in every-day life, in everything for the home. Professor Oscar B. Jacobson of the University of Oklahoma, was another speaker.

Letters from all parts of the world were read, including Africa, Honolulu, China, Japan, Alaska, and Hawaii, asking for traveling exhibitions of arts and crafts. Robert W. de Forest, President of the federation, in an address said that the federation was planning a campaign by which works of art could be sent to small communities in the West and Middle West.

Following the afternoon session delegates and members of the federation visited the art collections of Henry Clay Frick and George Blumenthal. The closing session of the federation will be held this morning.

ASQUITH ASSAILS FRENCH.

Says He Will Disclose Letters Exchanged While He Was Premier.

GLASGOW, May 16.—Herbert H. Asquith, in a speech here today, promised in due course a full disclosure of confidential documents exchanged while he was Premier, including the letters of Field Marshal Viscount French, formerly Commander in Chief of the British Army in the field, relating to the period which Field Marshal French is describing in newspaper articles published in Great Britain and the United States.

Mr. Asquith strongly deprecated the action of Field Marshal French in making alleged ex parted statements and warmly defended Earl Kitchener, who, he said, was sent to France with no idea or superceding Field Marshal French but to convey to the latter important decisions unanimously arrived at by the Cabinet as a result of serious disquietude concerning communications from Field Marshal French regarding his intentions.

Lansings Are Guests of King George

LONDON, May 16.—Robert Lansing, American Secretary of State, and Mrs. Lansing were received in audience today by King George and Queen Mary at Buckingham Palace. Mr. and Mrs. Lansing remained for luncheon.

PLAN $5,000,000 FUND FOR NEW HOUSES

J. P. MORGAN TO BACK MOVE

Concern Will Advance 20 Per Cent., Secured by Mortgage, to Builders.

Abram I. Elkus, Chairman of the State Reconstruction Commission, speaking last night at a dinner attended by leading bankers, real estate men, philanthropists, and labor leaders at the Metropolitan Club, announced his committee's plan for the solution of the housing problem. This was the organization of a semi-philanthropic housing and holding corporation, capitalized at $5,000,000, to build, buy, and sell real estate.

The corporation will advance about 20 per cent. of the amount desired by builders who apply for capital, and it is expected that the builders will furnish an equity of 20 per cent., the remainder being advanced by the big lending corporations.

Announcement was made that J. Pierpont Morgan, Cleveland H. Dodge, Frederick B. Pratt, and others will aid in supplying capital for the organization. The money to be advanced by the corporation will be secured by a second mortgage. The rate of interest to be charged was not disclosed. It is hoped the plan will break the deadlock that has paralyzed building operations recently, leading to a housing famine and consequent profiteering by some landlords.

The plan set forth by the State Commission is diametrically opposed to that of Nathan Hirsch, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, Mayor Hylan and some Municipal Court Justices who have studied the problem. They demand a special session of the State Legislature to pass legislation enabling the issuance of bonds to finance building operations by individuals. On behalf of this plan, it is claimed that it would tend to destroy the tight grip it is alleged a few individuals and organizations hold on the money lending situation.

Alfred E. Marling, a member of the Housing Commission, said that with $5,000,000 houses could be built accommodating from 18,000 to 20,000 persons. He described a new style of tenement that would be built.

The speakers included Governor Smith, W. Fellowes Morgan, President of the Merchants' Association; Dr. George E. Vincent of the Rockefeller Foundation, and Dr. Henry S. Prichett of that institution; Hugh Frayne of the American Federation of Labor, Robert W. de Forest of the Sage Foundation, and R. Fulton Cutting of the City and Suburban Homes Company.

Governor Smith said the Constitution prohibited State aid. He declared that no legislation could make houses grow on empty lots. He saw no relief from the modification of the present tenement house laws, and opposed such modification as a step backward.

Announcement of the plan was made at the Hotel Netherland late last night by Daniel Ryan, a representative of the Governor. Newspaper men were not admitted to the meeting.

Mayor Before State Committee.

The State Legislative Committee investigating housing met yesterday for the first time at the City Hall. Senator C. C. Lockwood presided, and Mayor Hylan and Jonathan Day, Commissioner of Markets, testified. The committee also is empowered to investigate the ice situation, and it was along this line that Mr. Day testified, the Mayor also speaking on the subject.

Concerning most of the questions asked by Senator Lockwood on the housing situation, the Mayor said he had referred all these matters to his Committee on Rent Profiteering. As to a permanent plan, he suggested the remodeling of certain houses so that there would be only one interior room, saying this would help solve the problem. When told that such a solution was opposed by the Charity Organization Society, he said: "Well, the Charity Organization Society is headed by ex-Tenement House Commissioner Murphy and a few other gentlemen. I think Lawson Purdy is connected with it, is he not? Lawson Purdy and a few other reformers oppose all sorts of legislation."

BOY SCOUT REVIEW TODAY.

This afternoon in the sheep meadow at Central Park there will be held the greatest mobilization of Boy Scouts in this country in the history of the organization, according to an announcement from the National Headquarters. In case of rain the gathering will be held in Madison Square Garden. The mobilization is in honor of Lieut. General Sir Robert S. S. Baden-Powell, K. C. B., Chief Scout and founder of the British Boy Scouts. It is expected that about 15,000 scouts will be present.

Among those who will speak are Lieut. Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Former Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, National Scout Commissioner Daniel Carter Beard, and Colin H. Livingstone, President of the Boy Scouts of America.

The National Women's Liberty Loan Committee, with which 1,000,000 women are affiliated, has announced its support of the forthcoming Boy Scouts of America campaign to obtain 1,000,000 associate members. Mrs. William G. McAdoo has been elected Chairman of a women's drive to aid the Scout campaign, to be held from June 8 to 14.

SIMMS DEFIES HIRSCHFIELD.

Magistrate Disputes Authority to Review Judicial Decision.

Magistrate Simms, who was subpoenaed Wednesday by David Hirschfield, the Commissioner of Accounts, to appear at a hearing on a case in which he had found Austin Connelly guilty of disorderly conduct, yesterday gave out a statement declaring that "Mr. Hirschfield or no other administrative officer has the power to review a judicial decision."

A similar denial of the Commissioner's right to interfere with court decisions was expressed by Chief Magistrate McAdoo Thursday in a letter to the Commissioner.

BROTHERHOODS FAVOR GOVERNMENT CONTROL

Convention in Columbus Expected to State Its Views on the Future of the Railroads.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 16.—That the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen will announce that its 186,000 members are opposed to restoration of the railroads to private ownership and management and in favor of Government control was the prediction today among members of the brotherhoods, now in session here.

The probable action is uncertain, leaders say, but sentiment is overwhelmingly against a return to the old régime. It was stated that the men seemed well pleased with their treatment during the war, and felt that the Government, if continued in control of the roads, would give them more satisfactory working conditions.

It was said today that steps would be taken during the present convention, if possible, to seek representation on such boards as would fix wages and working conditions if Government control continued.

Much of the attention of the convention will be directed to formulating a policy respecting future management of the roads.

Sixteen thousand members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen will receive from the organization special war medals for the part they took in the war, it is announced by officers. The organization's service flag contains more than 840 gold stars.

The organization, a report shows, has gained 52,148 members in three years, and in that time has conducted twelve "successful" strikes. It went on record as pleased with the Adamson law as a wartime measure.

SEE MENACE TO MAILS.

Postal Union Says 30 Per Cent. of Workers Have Tuberculosis.

Charges that the conditions under which postal employes work in New York City are so insanitary as to produce a high rate of disease and constitute a menace to the city were made in a report presented by the Post Office Employes' Union to the Central Federated Union last night. The report was referred to a committee for action by the union at a later date. After asserting that ordinary cleanliness is neglected in departments where many men are employed, the report continued:

"Men often work in ill-ventilated basements and cellars in which the air is filled with dust and in which the sweeping, without proper sprinkling, is but a makeshift.

"Thirty per cent. of the employes of the New York Post Office are suffering from tuberculosis in one or another of its many forms, and not only are these men a menace to the members of their families but the mail they handle is a menace to the families of every home into which mail is delivered. Cannot some way be found to bring these conditions to the attention of the authorities in Washington?"

THEODORE DREISER INJURED

Author Was Run Down by Automobile in Columbus Circle.

Theodore Dreiser, author and journalist, was seriously injured Sunday noon when he was run down by an automobile in Columbus Circle, it was learned yesterday. Mr. Dreiser was taken to a private hospital, and it was said at his home, 165 West Tenth Street, last night that his condition was much improved. Mr. Dreiser was hurt about the head and hands, and it is feared that one or two ribs were broken.

WILL J. DAVIS DIES AT 75.

CHICAGO, May 16.—Will J. Davis, theatrical manager, died tonight at his home here of a complication of ailments superinduced by his age, 75 years. At the bedside were the widow, Mrs. Nellie Davis; his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Will J. Davis, Jr., and a group of friends.

Mr. Davis began his theatrical career in the box office of a little variety theatre in this city. In 1876 he became manager of Haverly's Minstrels, and in 1879 managed the American tour of Her Majesty's Opera Company. In 1880 Davis made a tour with Lester Wallack. Then he met Jessie Bartlett, the contralto, and the following Winter she became Mrs. Will J. Davis. Mr. Davis successively became manager of the Haymarket, the Columbia, and the Illinois Theatres in Chicago.

The Iroquois Theatre was built by Will J. Davis and Harry J. Powers in 1903, and was destroyed by fire the following December, with a loss of nearly 600 lives.

Mrs. Jessie Bartlett Davis died May 14, 1905, and on June 12, 1907, Mr. Davis married Miss Nellie Hagan, for fourteen years his private secretary. She and his son survive.

GRANGER FARWELL DEAD.

CHICAGO, May 16.—Granger Farwell, retired banker and broker and twice President of the Chicago Stock Exchange, died suddenly tonight in his apartments at the Virginia Hotel. Death was caused by embolism. Mr. and Mrs. Farwell spent the Winter in California, returning to Chicago four weeks ago.

He was one of Chicago's most prominent men. He was born May 25, 1857. His father was Judge William Farwell.

Mr. Farwell in 1890 resigned a partnership in the lumber firm of James H. Pearson & Co. to join the brokerage firm of Lobdell, Farwell & Co., with which he remained until 1898, when he established the firm of Granger Farwell & Co. He was head of this until 1907, when he became President of the Farwell Trust Company. He was a Director of the Diamond Match Company and other corporations.

Captain Frederick Halbert.

Captain Frederick Halbert, who was until his retirement twenty-five years ago in the British mercantile marine, died of pneumonia yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. W. T. Mason, 516 West 149th Street, whose husband is the New York correspondent of The London Daily Express. Captain Halbert was born at Newcastle-on-Tyne, Jan. 4, 1836, and was one of the few remaining seamen who saw the change from the sailing vessel to the steamships.

Judge Charles E. Rice.

Judge Rice was born at Fairfield, Herkimer County, N. Y., Sept. 15, 1846. He was elected District Attorney of Luzerne County in 1876 as a Republican. Three years later he was elected Law Judge and was re-elected in 1889 and became President Judge.

BENNETT MEMORIAL HOME INCORPORATED

FOR NEEDY NEWSPAPERMEN

Will Be Named for Father of the Testator and Backed by Capital Stock of Papers.

The certificate of incorporation of the James Gordon Bennett Memorial Home for New York Journalists Corporation was filed with the Secretary of State in Albany yesterday. The incorporators are Rodman Wanamaker, Robert W. Candler, Thomas T. Sherman, J. D. Jerrold Kelley, and Josiah K. Ohl. Messrs. Kelley, Candler, and Ohl are Directors of the New York Herald Company.

It has not been announced when the work of acquiring the home provided for in the will of the late James Gordon Bennett will begin. In the articles of incorporation the objects are outlined as follows:

> First—The particular objects for which the corporation is formed are to take, receive, hold, manage, and use the property devised and bequeathed to such corporation by the will of James Gordon Bennett, late of the City of New York, who died on May 14, 1918, which will bears date Nov. 11, 1916, and was admitted to probate by the Surrogate's Court of the County of New York Sept. 27, 1918; and, in accordance with and in fulfillment of the provisions of the twenty-ninth article of said will, to provide, establish, erect, equip, and maintain a suitable and comfortable home, and provide pecuniary aid for persons who shall have been employed for at least ten years upon or by or in connection with any daily newspaper or journal regularly published on or after Nov. 11, 1916, in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, and who shall by reason of old age, accident, or bodily infirmity and through lack of means be unable to care for themselves or need such home or aid.

The full text of the twenty-ninth article is quoted in full. In it, Mr. Bennett said: "It is my long cherished intention and purpose, and it is my will to establish a substantial, appropriate, and permanent memorial to my father, the late James Gordon Bennett, the founder and for many years the proprietor of The New York Herald." To effectuate that purpose, he directed his executors, as soon as possible after his death, to incorporate the home.

It was further stipulated that the beneficiaries of the home are to be nominated and recommended by the proprietors or owners of the publications whose employes are eligible to admittance to it, and that where preference must be shown, it should be exercised for the benefit of employes of The New York Herald or the Paris edition of that paper, and The Evening Telegram, which were owned by Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Bennett further willed that it was desired that the Memorial Home Corporation "shall hold as long as practicable all capital stock of The New York Herald Company and the Société Anonyme Française, which shall belong to me at the time of my death, and form part of my residuary estate and property."

> Second—The name of the said corporation is to be the James Gordon Bennett Memorial Home for New York Journalists Corporation.
>
> Fourth—The city and county in which its principle office is to be located is the City of New York and County of New York, in the State of New York.
> Fifth—The number of its Directors is to be five.
> Sixth—The names and places of residence of the persons to be its Directors until its first annual meeting are as follows: Rodman Wanamaker, 524 Fifth Avenue, New York City; Robert W. Candler, Short Hills, N. J.; Thomas T. Sherman, Rye, N. Y.; J. D. Jerrold Kelley, 25 East Eighty-third Street, New York City; Josiah K. Ohl, 55 East Sixty-fifth Street, New York City.
> The said Rodman Wanamaker is the only one of the two qualified executors of the will of the said James Gordon Bennett, deceased, now in the United States; and the said Robert W. Candler, J. D. Jerrold Kelley, and Josiah K. Ohl are three of the Directors of The New York Herald Company.
> Isaac Bell and James Gordon Douglas mentioned in said Twenty-ninth Article of said will are both still living.
> In witness whereof, we have made, signed, and acknowledged this certificate in duplicate, dated the 10th day of May, nineteen hundred and nineteen.
> THOMAS T. SHERMAN,
> JOSIAH K. OHL.

Mr. Bennett gave to the Memorial Home Corporation the authority to "establish and maintain a suitable building or buildings and grounds and appurtenances" as shall prove necessary in carrying out his desire.

PRESBYTERIANS PLAN FOR SEX EQUALITY

New Program Proposed to Assembly Gives Women Right to Church Offices.

ST. LOUIS, May 16.—Recommendations to grant women sex equality in church affairs, indorsement of the interchurch world movement, and comprehensive plans for a five-year church expansion program were laid before Commissioners of the Presbyterian Church in the United States here today at the second day's session of the 131st General Assembly.

A larger place in church leadership for women was recommended in the expansion program presented to the Commissioners, which provided that women have the right to hold office in the church council, the board of trustees and all committees of the church.

Full co-operation with the interchurch world movement and support of all worthy federated movements to promote the co-operation of all Protestant churches in facing social, religious, and civic problems was also recommended to the assembly. "Out of such a cooperative movement, it is believed, there may be placed upon the nation and the world the impact of united Protestantism, which alone can meet the incoming tide of social and economic unrest," the report declared.

Recommendations that the church launch upon a new five-year expansion program for the spread of Christianity and plans for reorganization upon a budget system were outlined in the new era program. Expenditures of $25,000,000 for individual church budgets, covering equipment and operations, including $1,000,000 for increasing pastors' salaries and $13,000,000 for the new era budget were reported by the committee as a part of the 1919-1920 program. A total of 90 per cent. of the $13,000,000 expansion fund has already been raised, with the entire amount practically assured.

Special attention to the Americanization of immigrants at industrial centres and "fearless application of the principles of Christ" to the solution of economic and social problems were also recommended in resolutions presented to the commissioners.

Among the appropriations reported to the Assembly are one of $500,000 for rendering practical aid to returning soldiers and sailors and their families and the same amount for reconstruction of Protestant churches in France and Belgium.

William Jennings Bryan, who withdrew from the contest for Moderator yesterday, attended the sessions of the Assembly today. Mr. Bryan is urging that the Assembly take some action to establish a financial aid bureau, to be supported by the Church, for loaning money to needy members, to save them from resorting to chattel mortgage money lenders. The establishment in every community of men's clubs as substitutes for the saloons also was advocated by Mr. Bryan.

The work of the Assembly was begun in earnest today, organization having been completed with the election late yesterday of the first layman Moderator, Dr. J. Willis Baer of Pasadena, Cal.

REFUSES TO MARCH WITH POLICE TODAY

REVIVES ROW OVER FUNDS

The Staten Island Regiment of Police Reserves will absent itself from the police parade today, by way of a protest against the failure of the Police Department to deliver uniforms, after repeated promises made to us by higher police at Police Headquarters that the men would be promptly equipped. All officers of the rank of Captain or over have sent their resignations to Rodman Wanamaker, Deputy Commissioner in charge of the Police Reserves, and many of the Lieutenants have followed this example.

The money for the equipment of the Police Reserves was raised at police games at Sheepshead Bay last Summer and by voluntary subscriptions, which were said to have brought the fund to a total of more than $500,000. Requests for an accounting of this fund resulted in a statement on March 17 from Fourth Deputy Police Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis, in charge of the fund, in which he defended the delay in purchasing the uniforms on the ground of war conditions, but stated that uniforms had been ordered for 5,144 active members of the reserve, together with 1,000 overcoats for officers. The report showed the cost of each uniform to be $25.65.

One of the highest officers of the Staten Island organization, which comprises more than 500 men, said last night:

"We resigned because we were in a false position with regard to the men in the reserves here, because, relying on promise made to us by higher police officials, we had assured the men repeatedly that they would soon be equipped. So far about seven men in each company have received equipment. We felt that we could not go on forever repeating assurances which were not made good and that the only course left to us was to resign."

Municipal Court Justice Thomas C. Brown of the First District was the Colonel and the ranking officer of the organization up to the time that he sent in his resignation. Municipal Court Justice Arnold J. B. Wedemeyer was the Lieutenant Colonel. There are eight companies in the organization. A meeting of the rank and file of the Staten Island Reserves has been called for Monday, when the question of disbanding the entire organization will be discussed.

Five thousand uniformed policemen of the regular force, 2,500 police reserves and 1,000 women police reservists will take part in the parade, which will start at 1 o'clock from Twenty-sixth Street and proceed up Fifth Avenue to 110th Street.

At the head of the parade will be carried the new police flag, devised by Deputy Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis, which has five alternating bars of green and red, representing the five boroughs and a rectangular field with twenty-four stars denoting the original towns and villages which now compose the City of New York. The green bars, it was stated, are a compliment to Ireland, which has furnished many stalwart men to the Department. An orange fringe and tassel have been added as emblematic of the Protestant part of Ireland, from which the city has also drawn many of her guardians of order.

Mayor Hylan with his aide, Lieutenant William Kennel, will head the parade, leaving it at Eighty-second Street to take his place in the reviewing stand. Commissioner Enright will follow, his staff coming next. Chief Inspector John Daly and his staff will head the uniformed force. Next comes the Police Department Band, followed by the Honor Battalion, made up of men who have been officially distinguished for feats of heroism.

The main body of the parade follows, made up of the men of the regular force with the following special units: The Hospital Relief Unit, the Machine-gun Company, commanded by Captain Edward J. Bourke; the Motor Cycle Division, headed by Lieutenant Anthony L. Howe, and the Bicycle Division, headed by Lieutenant Frederick J. Mott.

Inspector John F. Dwyer will command the Police Reserve Division which follows. Colonel Adelaide McConnell will command the Women's Police Reserve. Colonel Jefferson de Mont Thompson will command the Aerial Police, the Flying Section being commanded by Major Granville A. Pollock. The Aviation School Unit will be headed by Major Dinshah P. Ghadiali. Major Harry B. Adriance will head the Police Training Corps, composed of veterans of the World War.

Captain Elizabeth A. Schofield will head the Women's Police Training Corps. Other sections of the Women's Police Reserve will be the Women's Motor Corps Detachment, commanded by Major Helen R. Bastedo; the Lafayette Motor Corps, the Motor and Ambulance Corps, the Women's Theatrical Units Motor Corps, the National Women's Army Corps, Pershing Unit and the Brooklyn and Queens Battalion.

The Mounted Police Regiment will bring the parade to a close. Before the parade passes in review Mayor Hylan will present medals to the members of the force for conspicuous bravery during the year.

ROW OVER CITY STOCK ISSUE

The Board of Estimate authorized yesterday the issue of $586,700 in corporate stock, upon the application of the Public Service Commission, to meet the city's obligation in the contract with Terry & Tench for the erection of constructural steel upon the Westchester Avenue portion of the Lexington Avenue subway, but not until Stewart Browne, a representative of real estate interests, had made violent verbal objections, had been ordered to his seat by the Mayor and finally placed there by the Mayor's bodyguard, Lieutenant William Kennel.

When the request was before the Board last week Browne promised to produce a bidder whose bid would be at least $50,000 lower than the one awarded. He did not produce the bidder at a meeting of the Committee on Finance and Budget, to which the matter was referred, but had him present today. The Board refused to entertain his proposition because the bid had been submitted after the sealed bids had been opened. President Moran of the Board of Aldermen told the objector that if his suggestion were followed it would create a dangerous precedent. Still Mr. Browne objected, and at a nod from the Mayor Lieutenant Kennel placed his hand upon Mr. Browne's shoulder and cautioned him to retire. When he refused the Lieutenant thrust him into a nearby seat.

BANKERS HEAR WARFIELD.

CHICAGO, May 16.—S. Davies Warfield, President of the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities, explained the plan of the association for the return of the carriers to their owners to a group of Chicago bankers and business men yesterday at a luncheon given by John J. Mitchell, President of the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank, who is Vice President of the Association.

Chicago bankers in the majority are inclined to accept the Warfield theory, if not the plan in detail, and many have been turned to it by the explanations and indorsement given it by Elihu Root.

"Concerted action is necessary in the opinion of the committees of our association if results are to be obtained through Congress," said Mr. Warfield. "It is everywhere admitted that the return of the railroads in their present condition and without adequate legislation for the protection of all interests, the shippers, the public, the employes, and owners of the securities, would be a calamity. The railroads, if returned under the old order of things, cannot live. This means that business and agricultural enterprise will suffer."

GIRLS IN DANCE RECITAL.

Miss Louise Baylis presented her pupils—two hundred and fifty or so of them—from the Girls' Club of the Bronx Church House in a pantomime ballet and divertissement last night at Carnegie Hall before a large audience. Any onlookers who had come prepared to make allowances for the rugosities and lack of rhythm commonly conspicuous in such dance recitals found such charitable impulse quite unnecessary. The maidens and children who took part, major or minor, in the performance gave such evidence of careful and skillful training that no sign of training was visible. The dancing, the posing and the facial expressions were alike natural, graceful, and attractive.

Chloridia, a Greek pantomime ballet, opened and an Oriental ballet closed the performance, with a score or so of divertissements forming the connecting links. The little ones who rendered the "Romance of the French Doll" charmed the audience, Fredericka Miller, as the Tin Soldier, and Helen Snyder, as the French Doll, doing particularly attractive work. The Misses Marie Otto, Irene Roberts, Gertrude Gossen, Laura Foster, Caroline Doran, and Gertrude Adams made a most pleasing impression in solo work.

MARY PICKFORD SUIT UPSET.

The judgment for $108,839 obtained against Mary Pickford, film actress, by Mrs. Cora C. Wilkening on the ground that Miss Pickford made her her agent in the negotiations by which the actress was engaged by the Famous Players and collected $1,088,339, of which Mrs. Wilkening claimed 10 per cent., was reversed yesterday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court and a new trial was ordered.

The court held that the evidence in behalf of the plaintiff was not of sufficient weight to justify a verdict for the full amount claimed, and expressed some doubt as to the plaintiff's testimony on all points. Justice Merrell, writing the opinion, remarked that Miss Pickford was guided at all times by the advice of an attorney, a business manager and by her mother, "a woman of sound business judgment and experience," while Miss Pickford herself had shown rare business ability. For this reason the court expressed doubt that she would make the oral contract on which she was sued.

LUXURY FOR TAXES DEFINED

Experts Agree as to Indispensables Taxed as Underwear.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Experts of the Internal Revenue Bureau having for weeks pondered definitions of underwear and other articles subject to the so-called luxury taxes which went into effect May 1, in preparation for regulations governing the administration of the tax, and having heard the arguments made on one side and the other, finally developed today this definition of underwear:

The tax is 10 per cent. of the selling price in excess of $5 per garment.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN DECIDE ON PROGRAM

NO EFFORT TO BIND PARTY

But Pledges Every Energy to Obtain Enactment of Progressive Legislation.

New York State women entered formally and seriously into politics yesterday when the Republican Women's State Executive Committee, of which Mrs. A. L. Livermore is Chairman, held its first meeting, with a luncheon, at the Republican Club. State Republican Chairman Glynn and Mrs. Medill McCormick, Chairman of the National Women's Executive Committee, were among the guests.

The meeting in one way was an answer to the call made recently at a women's meeting at the house of Mrs. Vincent Astor, when Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw asked the Republican women present to get members of the Republican Party to let it be known whether they approved holding in committee bills in the interest of women workers sponsored by the Women's Joint Legislative Committee.

A committee of three, Mrs. E. S. Knapp, Onondaga County, Chairman; Miss Mary Garrett Hays, and Mrs. William Ives, was appointed yesterday to draw up a resolution expressing the interest of the State Republicans in industrial legislation for women and the intention of Republican women to further such legislation. The resolution, which was unanimously adopted, follows:

> Whereas, The Executive Committee of the Republican State Committee, believing that it voices the sentiment of the entire State Committee, has been consistently in favor of a forward step in legislation for women in industry, as carrying out the platform adopted at Saratoga in July, 1918;
> Whereas, Republican Legislatures have enacted nearly all the welfare legislation upon the statute books; therefore be it
> Resolved, That the Republican Woman's State Executive Committee is in favor of progressive legislation for the protection of women in industry;
> Resolved, That we do not consider it a proper method of procedure to secure an explicit promise for support from the Republican State Committee for these measures in 1920, because we believe that the constituents of an Assemblyman or Senator are those persons who have the right to request them to support the measures they desire;
> Resolved, That we, the Republican Women's State Executive Committee, do assume a responsibility to use our utmost endeavor to secure such forward-looking legislation in the next Legislature.

Mrs. McCormick, in an address, urged that women begin work all over the country, holding schools for speakers, engage in house-to-house canvasses, and catalogue every man and woman voter. Through the women's Executive Committees, she said, the men would obtain advice in regard to women leaders whom they do not know. She urged the women to get out a big Republican vote in 1920.

"It is a shame that only 18,500,000 votes were cast for President in 1916," said Mrs. McCormick. "It shows the men do not vote. In 1920 the women will vote in twenty-nine States, and there will be 15,500,000 women voters. It will be the work of the women to get out not only the women but the men. We are enfranchised as workers, not loafers. The only way we can produce results is by industry and intensive organization. Forget the sex line. There is no sex in politics.

"Most men are working for their families. They have not time to think of politics. It is up to the women, if they are to be good wives, mothers, and citizens, to inform themselves about political issues. When women can talk politics to their husbands they will do away with the stigma attached to the word 'politician.'

"Men who go into politics deserve a medal. Women do not want jobs, but they want good men in office. They have come into politics with their knitting to stay."

Miss Mary Garrett Hay, whose name has been associated with the League of Women Voters, was another speaker. "Woman's place" she said, "is in the great political parties, not outside. The League of Women Voters has been much misunderstood. It is not political; it is legislative. As for parties, I think the Republican is good enough for the women."

She urged that all the 6,000 election districts in the State be organized to insure the election of the right kind of an Assembly, and that preparations be made for the election in 1920.

Herbert Parsons was a speaker. Mrs. Luther Mott of Oswego and Mrs. A. H. Glynn of New York were present. Members of the committee who attended were Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, Mrs. William Boyce Thompson, Westchester; Mrs. Eli T. Hosmer, Erie; Miss Mary Chahoon, Clinton; Mrs. Ruth Litt, Suffolk; Mrs. Frank Moroson, Yates; Mrs. Anna G. De Witt, Kings; Mrs. H. G. Danforth, Monroe.

STATE INCOME TAX HITS NONRESIDENTS

They Will Have 2 Per Cent. of Salary Deducted, State Retaining Half.

ALBANY, May 16.—Details of the Administration of the State Income Tax law, signed yesterday by Governor Smith, are being worked out in the office of the State Controller, which is to have charge of the collection of the $45,000,000 additional revenue which the tax is expected to yield.

The tax must be paid between Jan. 1 and March 15. It is the intention of the Controller to have representatives of his department stationed at each county seat during January, February, and March, to give assistance to taxpayers who need it.

The law provides that incomes up to $10,000 a year shall be taxable at 1 per cent.; incomes from $10,000 to $50,000 at 2 per cent., and incomes in excess of $50,000 shall be taxed 3 per cent. Exemption up to $1,000 is provided in the case of an unmarried man, and up to $2,000 for a married man.

The tax will hit the non-resident harder than it hits the resident. The law provides that "any person, firm, or corporation in the State who pays to any person for personal service, (salary, wages, fees, compensation,) must retain 2 per cent. of the amount paid, if for the year it exceeds $1,000, unless the recipient of the income files a certificate showing that he is a resident of the State."

This means that the New Jersey resident employed in New York will have 2 per cent. of his salary deducted by his employer. Half of this deduction will be retained by the State and the other half will be rebated to the recipient of the income. When the income tax bill was first drafted it provided for a flat rate of 2 per cent. on all incomes, but later amendments fixed the sliding rates of 1, 2, and 3 per cent. Through an oversight, no change was made in the provision regarding non-residents.

Non-residents, however, will be allowed exemptions based on income taxes paid in their localities, but there will be no non-resident personal exemptions. For example, the New Jersey employe of a New York firm who is married and receives a salary of $1,800 a year must pay 2 per cent., or $36, of which $18 later will be returned to him. The married man who lives in Brooklyn and receives $1,800 salary will not be taxed at all, because residents of the State who are married are taxed only upon incomes in excess of $2,000.

Gov. Smith Signs the Foley Bill.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 16.—The Foley bill to amend the workmen's compensation law by prohibiting direct settlements except after approval by the Industrial Commission was signed by Governor Smith today. The Governor also signed the Hewitt bill appropriating $25,000 for the employment of prisoners in the construction of State and county highways.

PARIS, Thursday, May 15.—The press of Metz is united in extending an invitation to Premier Clemenceau to offer himself as a candidate for the Chamber of Deputies for Metz at the impending election.

WILSON THANKS TRAINMEN.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—President Wilson has cabled to William G. Lee, President of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, expressing appreciation of a message of loyalty sent to him by Mr. Lee on behalf of the brotherhood, which is holding its annual convention at Columbus, O. The President's cablegram, received at the White House today, said:

"Please express to the trainmen assembled in convention my warm appreciation of the message you have sent me. It has done my heart good and made me feel the fine spirit of such friends in a way to make the work here easier for me. My warmest, best wishes for the success of the convention."

Mr. Lee's message, addressed to Secretary Tumulty, and forwarded by him to the President at Paris last Wednesday, said:

"Had hoped it possible President Wilson could address convention some time during session. Appreciating the importance of the world work now being performed by him for humanity, will it not be possible to extend to him by cable the assurance of loyalty of the more than 186,000 members of the brotherhood who have been, and are, his loyal supporters?"

Sues Victor Talking Machine Co.

A Sherman law suit was begun yesterday in the Federal Court by the Shelton Electric Company against the Victor Talking Machine Company for triple damages aggregating $1,317,937.50, on a complaint charging that the defendant sought to deprive it of the benefits of its business as a dealer in phonograph motors. It is charged in the complaint that the Victor Company compels dealers in its production to sign a contract which provides that no part of the Victor machine shall be taken out and replaced by any device not made by that company. By means of this contract, it is charged, the Victor Company seeks to create a monopoly in electrically driven phonographs.

Walker-Gordon
Natural Milk Clean.

An individual towel for every cow

IN the production of Walker-Gordon Milk we take what may seem to be unusual precautions to insure cleanliness and purity. In the first place we own our cows and farms, and deliver from our own wagons; and this is not usual in the milk business.

Veterinarians constantly watch the health of the milking herd. Each animal is washed before milking and kept standing till milked. And we insist that the milker wash and dry his hands with a clean towel immediately before and after milking each cow. The barns are scrubbed daily.

No wonder that Walker-Gordon Milk tastes so clean and stays sweet for what housekeepers would term "an unusually long time"!

Also cream, buttermilk and modified milk

"I know something that will clear your skin"

"When my complexion was red, rough and irritated, I was so ashamed that I never had any fun. I imagined that people avoided me—perhaps they did! But the regular use of Resinol Soap—with a little Resinol Ointment just at first—has given me back my clear, healthy skin. I wish you'd try it!"

Resinol

Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap also clear away dandruff and keep the hair healthy and attractive. For trial free, write to Dept. 2-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Railroad stocks came into increased favor with buyers in yesterday's market and supplied the dominant influences in one of the broadest sessions since the upward movement began in February. A number of the standard dividend-payers reached new high records for the year and gains extending from 1 to more than 3 points were well scattered throughout the list at the close. The net result of the trading did not reflect the full stimulus supplied to these shares, for the really heavy purchases of the morning hours brought about such quick advances that realizing sales appeared in volume toward the close, lopping off a part of the upturn. Many casual speculators have not been persuaded that the railroad situation in respect to the ultimate destiny of the carriers has been developed sufficiently to permit of a sustained rise, and the action of the stocks in the last fortnight has indicated that whenever moderate profits have accrued on purchases these traders were anxious to seize them. At the same time, the expanding activity of the shares on a gradually rising scale of prices last week and in the early days of the current week disclosed a growing party which is willing to back its judgment of a favorable solution of the transportation question by adding to its holdings. The action of a number of railroad stocks yesterday showed that offerings were rather scarce.

The approach of the Congress session is acting as an excellent advertisement of speculative possibilities in the rail stocks. Reports received from Washington yesterday said that a general deficiency bill was being shaped to include provision for $1,000,000,000 emergency funds for the roads. This increased sum, as compared with the $750,000,000 asked for by the Railroad Administration in the last Congress, would be no more than necessary in view of current and past-due requirements, but the point which the stocks market grasped first of all was the evident desire of Congress leaders to tackle the job as soon as possible, not only the part dealing with the immediate requirements of the roads, but the larger task of returning them to their owners. Strength is added to the expectation that the legislators will devote early attention to the railroad future by the statement issued by the Association of Railroad Executives after their meeting yesterday that the country was in such general agreement as to the basic principles of remedial railroad legislation that "the work of Congress ought to be comparatively easy."

Prominent as they were, the railroad shares by no means monopolized dealings. The copper issues, some of the steel and oil stocks and numerous specialties displayed strength and were active. The continued advance of these stocks found supporting reasons in the week's review of business and trade conditions. Reports from both manufacturing and distributing organizations noted better buying in the wholesale trades, marked by the special quality of purchases for future delivery. Evidence has been increasing of late that merchants were getting further away from the thought that prices might recede substantially before a stable position was reached in textile, leather, and other lines, and are planning to lay in stocks at going quotations, which speaks for confidence over the outlook.

Call money loaned at 6 per cent. until the heaviest demand had been filled, after which the rate eased to 5 per cent. French exchange again declined to a new low level at 6.36 for cables, and Italian exchange broke rather sharply to a point where a dollar bought more than 8 lire.

Brokerage Accounts Expanding.

It was only natural to expect that with the continuation of trading on such a broad scale as that which has prevailed for several weeks that brokerage loans would show a decided expansion. When the forward movement first started the loan accounts were not much greater, if any, than when the Government restrictions were removed. For a time there was not any pronounced expansion for the market was one of specialties rather than of broad activity. Now, however, it is reported that brokerage loans have reached something approximating $1,000,000,000 or an increase of some $400,000,000 over the supposedly existing volume of loans early in the year. Despite this the increase is not considered as on a par with the great activity of stocks.

Stocks Not Plentiful.

The broadening out of the stock market to include the so-called standard issues has shown that the shares are not by any means as plentiful as might be expected. It is asserted that many of the old-time stocks have been steadily going into investment hands during the last two years. This has been especially true of the rails which, while under the depression of low earnings and Government control, appeared as bargains to those whose vision was not limited by immediate conditions. Industrial shares too are reported to be scarcer than when the war boom of 1916 came to an end.

Copper Price Moving Forward.

The big copper producers yesterday were quoting copper at 16¼ cents a pound. The advance in the price has been gradual during the last week, apparently keeping pace with the increased value of business which the companies are reporting. The demand for the red metal, it is asserted, is better than has been apparent in several months. There was an increase of buying during the latter part of March, but it eased off without having absorbed any very substantial amount of copper. The present activity has been continued for a longer period, and shows signs of being a real buying movement to replenish depleted stocks.

The Bids for Rails.

The impression is quite general that the Railroad Administration will not accept any of the bids for rails, but will resort to requisitioning the steel under the authority of war emergency legislation. This prediction is based on the assumption that the prices quoted to the Railroad Administration will not differ materially from the stabilization figures. The Navy Department set the precedent for this action in rejecting the bids for plates and requisitioning to supply its needs.

Fisher Body Advances.

Fisher Body moved forward some 7 points in yesterday's trading on only a small turnover. This company has been connected by rumor with the probable expansion of General Motors, the belief being expressed that it would be taken over. There has never been any confirmation of such reports. The stock has been climbing steadily during the last few weeks, the action in the opinion of many being a reflection of the greater activity in the automobile industry generally.

New Legislation.

Reports current in financial circles have it that the first act of the new Congress will be the passage of an urgency deficiency bill carrying with it an appropriation of $1,000,000,000 for the railroads and $660,000,000 for the Shipping Board. It has been felt in banking quarters for some time that the incoming Congress could take up the old railroad legislation which was left stranded when the last Congress expired and pass it at once, leaving for some later date the adjustment of the whole railroad situation. As regards the needs of the Shipping Board, it is understood that body has sufficient funds to carry it through July, but after that time it will be in urgent need, and without the resources to banking interests which the railroads have.

Bullish on Bonds.

The new State income tax, as it appeals to bond dealers, supplies a new bull argument on State and municipal offerings put out by communities outside of New York. Under the old scheme, such securities were "personal property," and were liable to the personal property tax, which in New York City recently ranged from $23.30 to $24.30, usually on 50 per cent. valuation. Thus, the tax on a declaration of $100,000 such bonds would be in the neighborhood of $1,200. Now, even under the extreme 3 per cent. income tax on income from such bonds the assessment will hardly go much above $150.

Francs Again Break.

French exchange sold at 6.40 yesterday, even lower than on the previous day, and bankers were as much up in the air as at any time since the present decline started. It was stated absolutely that no French credits were pending, and it was said that none would be until the Peace Treaty was signed and the world knew where it stood. At yesterday's figure, the rate on Paris showed a decline of nearly a full franc in the dollar from the rate prevailing when the French Government and the Bank of France were supporting the market. The percentage of loss from the mint par is something more than 19 per cent., and bankers who do an international business are frankly worried.

Returning Bankers.

Following the news that Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank, is due to arrive in New York on Monday, it was learned yesterday that Henry P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Co. is expected here on Wednesday. Mr. Davison sailed from Europe yesterday. The return of these men, together with many others who have either arrived here recently or are due in the very near future, is expected to mark the beginning of a new era in American finance. It is said that never before have American bankers enjoyed such close contact with world affairs as at present, and this, with the country's very prominent position in finance, is thought to make for the development of some huge financial transactions.

Rail Stocks Strong.

The shares in the railroad group gave evidence early yesterday that buying orders were not confined to investment accounts, and as several large blocks changed hands responded with a general advance, which at the close of the day had netted gains throughout the list of from fractions to more than 2 points. The speculative element considered the news of the day, covering the meeting of railway executives in this city and the crystallizing of legislative forces which will probably frame the railroad bill in Washington, as bullish, and gave attention to stocks which usually lie dormant. In conservative quarters all talk of an immediate settlement of the railroad problem was received without warmth, and a return of the carriers to private control is not expected until late in 1920. Speculators, however, were inclined to interpret recent developments as indicative of a return of the roads, with attendant prosperity, soon after the incoming Congress convenes, and this sentiment was reflected by the majority of the railroad shares.

Ontario & Western Moves Up.

One of the features in the broadened market for railroad shares yesterday was New York, Ontario & Western, which closed with a net gain of 2 points. The turnover was not large, but it was heavier than usual and this low-priced rail found favor with speculation, who spread their commitments over the railroad list quite generally. The stock opened at 22 and sold up to 23, the high and last price.

Tractions Ease Off.

Profit-taking by professionals resulted in a reaction in traction shares in yesterday's market, and before the close most of the issues which have displayed strength in recent sessions lost a fair part of their gains. B. R. T. sold off more than 3 points under pressure, with certificates down more than 4 points, Interborough Consolidated preferred lost more than 2 points, and Third Avenue lost 1⅛. The traction bonds also weakened, and the gains of recent days were cut down from 1 to 3 points.

CHINESE LOAN WILL TOTAL $100,000,000

Payment to be in Four Installments of $25,000,000 Each Over a Period of Years.

FOR NATION'S DEVELOPMENT

Money Will Be Expended Under the Supervision of a Committee Named by Consortium.

The amount of the loan which banking groups of the United States, Great Britain, France, and Japan are to make to the Chinese Government, it was learned yesterday, will probably be in the neighborhood of $100,000,000, to be paid in four installments of $25,000,000 each over a period of years. The money, it was said, will be made available for China, and the spending of it will probably be supervised by a committee to be appointed by the banking consortium. The proceeds of the loan will be used for the building of railroads and for the general economic development of the country. The conclusion of the arrangement whereby this financial assistance is to be given will hardly occur before the peace treaty is signed, and it is thought that some time may elapse before all details of the transaction are completed.

The formation of the Four-Power group, it was explained yesterday, came after a proposal had been made by Japan to advance $15,000,000 to China which would be secured by a first lien on the Chinese Government's tobacco monopoly, and, it was feared, would close the Chinese markets to American and British tobacco manufacturers and producers. This proposal was protested, it was said, by both the American and British Governments, and in order that there should be no misunderstandings and that the Chinese markets should be kept open, the Four-Power group proposal was advanced and ultimately accepted.

The American group of banks will be headed by the four New York institutions which composed the American interest in the old Six-Power group. These institutions were J. P. Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the National City Bank, and the First National Bank. In compliance with a request from Washington, however, the list of American banks has been considerably extended beyond these four, and at the present time it is expected that about thirty banks and banking firms will be included. They will represent all of the geographical divisions of the country.

No official list of the American participants is as yet available. It is learned, however, that there probably will be other New York banks asked to take part in the transaction, and that many cities outside of New York will be represented. A tentative list of the outside banks includes three in Chicago, three in St. Louis, two each in Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and one each in Cleveland, New Orleans, San Francisco, Minneapolis, Atlanta, Kansas City, and Dallas. This arrangement would be following the Federal Reserve divisions and would probably be as representative as could be desired.

CROWN OIL BONDS BOUGHT.

Syndicate Takes 7 Per Cent. Issue to be Offered to Public.

Merrill, Lynch & Co., and Hemphill, Noyes & Co. are heading a syndicate which has purchased $1,150,000 first lien 7 per cent. convertible bonds of the Crown Oil and Refining Company. They run serially from one to three years, with $250,000 to be retired July 1, 1920; $300,000 to be retired July 1, 1921, and the remaining $600,000 July 1, 1922. It has not been announced as yet at what price the bonds will be offered for public subscription.

The Crown Oil Company is the seventh largest producer of petroleum in the Texas fields, the present average being 5,000 barrels a day. A new refinery is now in process of construction for the completion of which part of the money derived from the bond sale will be used. The agreement with the bankers handling the bond issue is that a stock dividend of 100 per cent. be declared by the issuing of $2,000,000 new capitalization. The old stock is selling on the Houston market at $200 a share. The par value of the stock is to be reduced to $25 a share and the bonds are convertible into this for eighteen months at 28¾. The new shares are to be listed in New York.

STEEL INQUIRIES INCREASE.

Domestic Business Gains, but Foreign Demand Is Unchanged.

The steel industry reports domestic inquiries as decidedly more numerous than a few days ago. Foreign business, however, is reported to be showing little change and the belief is expressed that there will be no increase until after the treaty of peac has been signed. The head of one steel manufacturing company said yesterday that things had been at such low ebb that any improvement was perhaps given more weight than it should normally enjoy.

It is the belief that the steel manufacturers see the big business in sight which some of them have been predicting ever since the first of the year. For this reason there was held to be special significance in the fact that Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board, and James A. Farrell, President of the United States Steel Corporation, are now on a tour of inspection. It was also learned yesterday that the chief executives of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation were all at Bethlehem. The latter company has been considering for some time entering upon new fields of activity and an announcement relating to this is expected soon.

PRAIRIE OIL SHOWS GAIN.

Statement Indicates Earnings Equivalent to $112 a Share.

The Prairie Oil and Gas Company in its statement for 1918 indicates earnings of $20,299,983, after providing for tax allowances. This would be the equivalent of $112 a share on the $18,000,000 capital stock, as compared with $88 a share in 1917, and $56 a share in 1916. The balance sheet shows that the profit and loss surplus at the close of 1918 was $70,443,441, as compared with $53,743,458 in the preceding year.

The merchandise item of $27,123,608 shows a falling off of about $7,750,000 from the 1917 figures. The amount due from banks was $22,451,084, as compared with $5,137,988 in the preceding year. A gain is also reported in holdings of securities, the report showing $3,262,500, whereas in 1917 the figures were $712,500.

ST. LOUIS TO GET BANKERS.

Annual Convention of American Association to Meet Sept. 29.

It was announced yesterday that the American Bankers Association has accepted the invitation of the Clearing House Association of St. Louis to hold its annual convention in that city. The week of Sept. 29 has been selected as the time for the meeting.

The invitation, it was said, had been accepted by the Administrative Committee of the Bankers Association after careful consideration of the hotel and other facilities offered.

This coming convention will be the forty-fifth to be held by the Bankers Association and will be the third to be held in St. Louis, the two previous conventions to be held in that city having taken place in 1896 and 1906.

Prairie Pipe Line Statement.

The statement of the Prairie Pipe Line Company for last year shows indicated net earnings of $9,416,856 on the $27,000,000 capital stock, after provision for taxes. This is equivalent to $34.88 a share, as compared with $42.08 in 1917 and $40.50 in 1916. The company distributed $8,100,000, the equivalent of $30 a share, in dividends. The profit and loss surplus was $15,162,607.

ROADS BESPEAK AID IN EQUIPMENT FUND

PLAN TO BE WORKED OUT

The member roads of the Association of Railway Executives, representing about 93 per cent. of the railroad mileage of the United States, met yesterday in the New Haven Board room in the Grand Central Terminal, and, after discussion, announced their willingness to co-operate with the Railroad Administration and the War Finance Corporation, in the financing of a single general issue of equipment trust obligations in the form of a ational car trust, to take care of the $400,000,000 worth of equipment purchased by the Railroad Administration in 1918.

With the Association of Railway Executives favoring the creation of a blanket equipment trust certificate issue, instead of having individual securities offered by each of the roads to meet their needs, it becomes evident that the executives are ready to co-operate with the Administration, as the original proposal for the creation of a national car trust came from Government sources.

Just how financing of such magnitude will be accomplished is one of the problems yet to be settled, but it can be said that the War Finance Corporation, the Railroad Administration, and private bankers will bear their share of the burden. What that share will be, how the blanket financing will be done—whether in the open market or not—and maturity dates and rates, are all matters which will have to be agreed upon in the conferences following yesterday's meeting.

The equipment involved in the discussion yesterday consists of approximately 100,000 cars and 1,430 locomotives ordered by the Railroad Administration from the equipment companies. More than half of the cars have been delivered and less than half of the locomotives. The necessity for the financing came when the Railroad Administration found itself without funds to care for the equipment ordered, and also found itself with equipment due for delivery which many of the carriers refused to accept as allocated by former Director General of Railroads, William G. McAdoo.

While the financing of this equipment is one of the things to be worked out by the railroad executives, the administration and the War Finance Corporation, the allocation of the equipment is a part of the problem that will also be worked out, according to present plans. In brief, the meeting yesterday clinched the co-operation of the three most interested organizations in the reallocation and financing of equipment ordered by the Railroad Administration.

Thomas DeWitt Cuyler, Chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, made the following statement after yesterday's meeting of member roads:

> The railway executives discussed with the members of the Law Committee of the association the various proposals that have been made for the new railroad legislation that it will be necessary to enact before the Government relinquishes control of the carriers. There is undoubtedly a very general demand over the country for an early return of the roads to their owners, but of course, as has been pointed out by the President, by the Director General of Railroads, and by leading members of Congress, it would be disservice to the country to return the roads to their managements without correcting the recognized evils in the system of railway regulation we had prior to the war.
> These mal-adjustments in the old system of regulation were seriously obstructing the free development of transportation facilities, and it is unthinkable that the country would consent to a return of the roads to their owners before insurance had been provided for the future, by a thorough revision of the act to regulate commerce. The country is now in such general agreement as to the basic principles of remedial railroad legislation that the work of Congress ought to be comparatively easy.
> The association also discussed the working out of the problem of allocating and financing the several hundred million dollars worth of new cars and locomotives purchased by the Government for the use of the roads. The proposal has been made that the financing of this large amount of equipment would be greatly simplified by a single general issue of equipment trust obligations, instead of having individual securities issued by each of the roads. Conferences are being held between the association and the Railroad Administration for the equitable working out of this problem, and it is hoped that an agreement will soon be reached.

Before the meeting of member roads yesterday afternoon there was a meeting of the Standing Committee of the association, at which both the questions of legislation and equipment were discussed preparatory to the general conference. The question of the reported framing of the new Railroad bill by Senator Cummins, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, and others, was not discussed, nor was there any discussion of the question of deferred maintenance.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 8,438 packages. Fair trading and a steady to firm market for all grades of creamery. A good deal of the delayed stock is coming in so that the market is better supplied. Renovated firmer, and there is a good market for both ladles and packing stock. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 60½@61c.; extras, 92 score, 60c.; firsts, 88 to 91 score, 58@59½c.; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 55@57½c.; lower grades, 52@54c.; unsalted, higher than extras, 63½@64c.; extras, 62½@63c.; firsts, 60@62c.; seconds, 56@59c.; State dairy tubs, finest, 59@59½c.; good to prime, 56@58c.; common to fair, 48@55c.; renovated, extras, 52½c.; firsts, 51@52½c.; lower grades, 47@50c.; imitation creamery, firsts, 50@51c.; ladles, current make, firsts, 47½@49c; seconds, 46c.; lower grades, 44@45c.; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 45@45½c.; No. 2, 44c.; lower grades, 40@43½c.

EGGS.—17,039 cases, not including 400 cases in transit for export. Arrivals are considerably lighter and the market maintains a generally firm tone, with decided strength on strictly fancy qualities. Some sales of the very highest grades obtainable are reported at slightly better prices, but on the general offerings there is little change in the range of values. Nearby white eggs are coming in a little more freely, but there is still some shortage of strictly fancy qualities, and prices for such rule firm. Occasional selected cases of extra fancy stock have been placed a shade above quotations which represent the general business. Fresh gathered, extras, a dozen, 50½@51c.; storage packed, extra firsts, 49½@50c.; firsts, 48@49c.; gathered, extra firsts, 49@49½c.; firsts, northerly sections, 47@48½c.; southerly sections, 40½@47½c.; seconds and poorer, 43@46c.; dirties, No. 1, 43@44c.; No. 2 and poorer, 39@42½c.; checks, good to choice, dry, 41@42c.; under grades, 35@40c.; State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 54@55c.; ordinary to prime, 49@53c.; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 49@53c.; Pacific Coast, whites, extras, 55c.; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 48@52c.; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 52@53c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 46@51c.

RAISE CAPITAL OF GRAIN CORPORATION

Executive Order Increases the Stock to $500,000,000 and Extends Power to Enforce.

TRADE CONFERENCE IN JUNE

Barnes Will Discuss Plans of Operation with Growers and Hear Suggestions.

Julius H. Barnes, head of the Food Administration Grain Corporation, 42 Broadway, announced yesterday that he had just received a cable from Herbert Hoover saying that President Wilson, by Executive Order dated May 14, had definitely directed Mr. Barnes to exercise certain powers included in the recent Congressional act, such as authority to license the wheat-handling trades, making proper regulations to assure the guaranty price, and other purposes of the act.

The Executive Order also directed, Mr. Barnes said, the Food Administration Grain Corporation to alter its corporate name to be "United States Grain Corporation," after July 1, 1919, and also directed the Grain Corporation to increase its capital stock from $150,000,000 to $500,000,000. All the stock of the corporation will be held by the President of the United States.

Mr. Barnes has been in conference with representatives of the various trades to formulate contracts between the Grain Corporation and the handling agencies of the country, such as mills and grain dealers, including jobbers and bakers, and these plans are taking form, rapidly, he said.

"Early in June," said Mr. Barnes, "a general conference of delegates from interested organizations, including growers' organizations, will be called in New York, to discuss the plan of operation. At that time the officers of the Grain Corporation will listen to suggestions for any modifications proposed in the contracts they are now working out, and by July 1, it is anticipated that the new licenses and the new contracts will be in general use. These contracts are aimed to provide that, throughout the United States, wheat in the berry shall sell always at $2.26 or its proper relation, so that the producer, everywhere, will get the full Government guaranteed price.

"If, thereafter, it becomes necessary, in order to fairly reflect a proper world value of wheat, to the consumers of this country, the readjustment will be made on the manufactured product, through mills, under the safeguards of such contracts; and by contracts with the jobbers and bakers, this readjusted price will be then quickly reflected to the final consumer."

Mr. Barnes said that he did not expect a lower bread price until the new crop begins to move, in about six weeks. He said that it was hoped that there would be no advance in bread prices between now and the new crop, saying that the bakers had promised to maintain the present prices without advance as far as possible.

Following a conference yesterday with L. F. Gates, President of the Chicago Board of Trade, regarding open accounts in contracts for future delivery of corn on the Chicago Board of Trade, Mr. Barnes suggested that the Exchange limit the amount of open trades in corn, for any one interest or individual to 200,000 bushels and that in the case of any accounts now open beyond that quantity the officers of the Exchange make proper efforts to reduce those accounts to that basis in the near future.

Mr. Barnes said, however, that he recognized that accounts of this kind are, without question, in the interest of sound and conservative methods of business. He said that he felt that the officers of the Exchange had made consistent efforts to convince their membership that undue and excessive trading in food commodities was not to be selfishly encouraged in this period of readjustment, yet he considered that present conditions required further guarantees against abuse of trading facilities.

"I think," Mr. Barnes said in conclusion, "I should also lay emphasis on the fact developed in our discussion that the hoarding provisions of the Food Administration law of August, 1917, would run also against purchasers in contracts for future delivery on the exchange, when made in such quantities as to fall within the limitations of that hoarding section, and that this law remain in force and effect until the proclamation of peace."

Houston Oil to Issue New Stock.

Directors of the Houston Oil Company decided yesterday to propose to stockholders at a special meeting shortly that 50,000 shares of new common stock be sold. The offering will be made to shareowners for subscription at $100 per share. The existing stock was quoted on the Curb yesterday at $120 per share. The $5,000,000 to be raised will be used in part to retire about $4,000,000 of the company's timber certificates, and to provide additional working capital for the development of oil properties. The issue, according to announcement, has been underwritten by bankers.

SIX CIGAR FIRMS MERGE.

Announcement of Stock Sale Reveals New Combination.

The Consolidated Cigar Company has been formed through the merger of six corporations owning factories in New York, Philadelphia, New Orleans, Cincinnati, Detroit, Key West, and other cities and towns. Announcement of the new concern in the financial district yesterday was accompanied by information that the $4,000,000 preferred and $9,000,000 common stock had been bought by the Stock Exchange firm of Tucker, Anthony & Co. and would be sold by them and the investment house of Salomon Brothers & Hutzler.

The plants have a capacity of 400,000,000 cigars a year, and will be managed by men of long experience in the tobacco business. The subsidiary companies employ about 12,000 hands. The new corporation will control a number of well-known brands of cigars.

Chino Copper Output Falls.

The Chino Copper Company in its report for the first quarter of this year shows a net operating loss of $173,441. In the December quarter of last year the company earned $66,801, or the equivalent of 7 cents a share, and in the March quarter of 1918 the earnings were $1,124,254, or $1.29 a share on the outstanding captial stock. After the payment of dividends the deficit for the first quarter of this year was $825,926, as compared with a deficit of $180,716 in the March quarter of 1918. The production of copper shows a sharp contraction from that of the final quarter of last year.

NEW HIGH RECORDS REACHED BY COTTON

MARCH UP 63 POINTS

Weather Conditions Over the Belt More Favorable—The Liverpool Market Firm.

There was another sensational rise at the opening of yesterday's cotton market, and after first prices had shown gains ranging from 5 to 21 points the market carried on into fresh high records for the movement and for the present style contract.

Trade buying was on a large scale, and there was some belated speculative buying from out of town as a result of the sensational story circulated here on Thursday that a French buyer had arrived to contract for an excessive amount of cotton and cotton goods. The Liverpool market was very firm, responding to our rise on the previous day at the start and holding its gains well, albeit there was some irregularity at times in the big foreign market.

Weather conditions over the belt were more favorable, and this prompted new selling by Southern spot people. However, this selling was not on a very large scale, nor was it conducted in an aggressive manner, and the buying around the ring more than took care of it until the turn into the afternoon, when some of the local operators became suspicious of the market and started to take profits. At this time there was a good deal of talk of "disguised" trade buying: in other words, of speculative buying through houses which usually act for trade interests, and the ring was inclined to play for a reaction.

The reaction came early in the afternoon, but did not go far, taking prices back about 15 or 20 points from the early tops. After that the market firmed up again and went even higher than it had been, sending October, December, and January up more than 50 points on the day, and March up 63 points, to above 25½ cents.

The close was firm, with prices not far from the best of the day. Local spots were steady and showed a rise of 30 points to 30.05, the first time the present spot contract has been above 30 cents. The spot market at Galveston also went above 30 cents.

Syndicate Buys Power Co. Bonds.

A syndicate headed by E. H. Rollins & Sons, Bonbright & Co. and Lee, Higginson & Co. has bought an issue of $3,000,000 first and refunding mortgage 6 per cent. bonds of the Great Western Power Company of California, due March 1, 1949, according to information obtained in the financial district yesterday. The proceeds are to be used by the company to increase electric power generating facilities. An offering of the bonds is expected shortly.

NO BIDS FOR POOR WOOLENS

Government Withdraws Lower Stocks at Philadelphia Sale.

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—Approximately 57 per cent. of the wool offered at the Government auction today at the Manufacturers' Club was sold. Many poor grades were among the offerings, and bidders were not anxious for this kind of wool. The bidding dragged throughout most of the sale, except where the desirable grades were offered.

Considering the large amount of low grade wool scheduled for today's sale, the Government officials felt that the auction was satisfactory. It offered about 140,000 pounds of Cape wool and 2,000,000 pounds of South American stock. This was divided into 328 lots, of which 153 lots were withdrawn. This, those in attendance say, indicated the poor quality of many of the offerings.

All of the Cape wool was withdrawn. Most of the South American wool which did not sell was that from the West Coast, and considered of poor quality.

Charles J. Webb & Co. were the largest buyers, their purchases amounting to 273,446 pounds of South American wool, of which 3,983 pounds were those from the West Coast. William M. Grundy & Co. bought 269,789 pounds of South American wool. Among the other buyers were Crimmins & Pierce Company, 152,097 pounds; Baker Brothers, 66,800 pounds; William D. Delbermann & Co., 77,700 pounds; F. W. Whitaker & Co., 22,132 pounds, and Balfour, Williamson & Co., 75,300 pounds.

The present series will close tomorrow, when the Government will offer about 10,000 pounds greasy pulled wool and 1,675,000 pounds of South American stock. The next series will begin in Boston on Monday.

SILENT AS TO SALE OF SHIPS

P. A. S. Franklin Refuses to Discuss Negotiations.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 16.—P. A. S. Franklin, head of the International Marine Company, was a passenger on the White Star liner Olympic, which arrived here today from Southampton. Asked if he had completed negotiations for the sale of ships to a British syndicate, Mr. Franklin declined either to confirm or deny the report.

He said he had no statement to make until after he had conferred with other officials of the company in New York. Frank Vanderlip, who accompanied Mr. Franklin, when asked regarding the reported sale of the ships, was also noncommittal.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Despite a manifest disposition to take profits during the final hour of trading on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, a majority of the railway properties showed net gains for the day. Sentiment for more than the first half of the session favored higher prices, this being particularly true of the rails and coppers and a few specialties. Expected appropriation by the Government for railway needs at an early date was made the basis of the upward swing in the railroad group. The traction shares, on realizing, were lower. The copper shares advanced rapidly in the early dealings.

A Season for the Jobbers.

From present prospects in the woolen and silk trades, the jobbers are in for one of the biggest seasons in their history. While some of the manufacturers of fabrics have attempted to cut down on orders from jobbers so that their own customers might get the entire benefit of buying at first hand, the jobbers as a rule seem to have realized the bright prospects and have bought as heavily as it was possible for them to do. In both the men's wear and the women's wear fabric markets, actual shortages of material seem bound to result from the abnormal demand and the curtailed production, and here is where the jobbers expect to reap a harvest.

Dress Goods Not Affected.

Dress goods have not been affected to any extent by the strike in the garment trade. In fact, if there was room for additional business it would be taken now from other branches of the cutting-up trade to which it is thought a larger business might come as a result of the strike. The reason assigned for the confident outlook in the coat and suit trade that prevents cancellations is that the strike will be a very short affair which will scarcely affect production. Meanwhile, the dress makers have tried to put in orders for more fabric in the hope that cancellations might release a certain amount of yardage to them.

Printcloth Prices Running Wild.

Printcloth prices are literally running wild in the local market for gray goods. Advances of half a cent a yard took place in several constructions that were sold yesterday for delivery in May, June and July. Many mills have withdrawn from the market so far as selling goods on long deliveries at present prices is concerned. These sales for nearby shipment were reported yesterday: 39-inch 80-80s, 19 cents; 39-inch 68-72s, 15 cents; 38½-inch 64-60s, 13 cents; 38½-inch 64-56s, 12¾ cents, and 38½-inch 60-48s, 11 cents. Business in fine-yarn cloths is not as active as it has been, but this is due more to the unwillingness of sellers to sell than of buyers to buy.

Fall Silks Sold Up.

Quite a few of the more representative silk houses have practically sold up their Fall production, and from now on will be concerned merely with adjustment of orders received, getting out samples and delivery of merchandise. Many of the larger houses have been extremely careful this season not to take on more business than can be comfortably handled. There are several factors in the manufacturing situation that are causing employers to worry over their ability to produce even their usual quotas. The shortening of hours, wage increases, and the shortage of skilled operatives are all regarded as conditions that will curtail production. Consequently, one of the slogans in the trade is "Be very sure you are right before going ahead."

Opposed to Extreme Styles.

An increased tendency to criticise ultra clothing styles is noted on the part of the more conservative houses, both wholesale and retail, in the clothing trade. While this criticism originated in designing centres and passed on to the manufacturers, there are several retailers who have now taken up the cudgel against the extreme effects. Just at present, conditions vary as between the out-of-town trade and the local houses. The latter do not believe that the men of this big city will prove as a general rule partial to the new designs. From reports received from the road men now out with the Fall lines, however, the cities and towns outside of New York have registered a decided approval of the fanciful models created for the new season.

Local millinery manufacturers are now making use of white feather "fancies" in trimming the hats they turn out. Among the items used are burnt goose in crowns or wide bandings, white magpie breasts, (usually used on the side crown,) and both narrow and wide bandings of feather breasts. All of these have been seen on smart white hats of georgette, chrysanthemum braid, or moiré or satin, as well as on models in black lisere trimmed with some white material. Entire hats, especially turbans, of white feather breast are also shown here.

Small Wares in Active Demand.

Reports from wholesalers of small wares, including fancy goods and notions, make it appear that the trade is in the midst of business conditions that approximate a boom. Not only was an excellent Spring business experienced, with prospects of just as good a Fall season ahead, but there is an active call for several lines of merchandise for immediate delivery. Among these are various kinds of jewelry, bead and cut steel shoe buckles, and a multiplicity of items in which beads are used. Recently the heavy demand for the beads themselves was noted in THE TIMES. Inability to deliver either the beads or beaded articles on time and in full is bringing a storm of complaints from the retail trade. Business, as a whole, is away ahead of last year to date, and some executives say that if things keep up at their present rate a record volume of orders will be booked in 1919.

Holding Back Policy Noted.

Among those who direct the finances of the large commission houses handling textile accounts there is a growing tendency to advise customers to hesitate a little before taking on additional business. This advice, in some particulars, comes a little late for some of the manufacturers owing to the fact that they have practically sold up their production for several months ahead. But with others the commission men believe that it would be wise to adopt a "watchful waiting" policy in order that future possibilities might be better understood. It was pointed out that by adopting such a policy the manufacturers have nothing to lose because they can take on additional business at a later date at better prices.

Heavy Cottons Move Well.

Heavy cottons in the gray moved well in the local market yesterday for deliveries through the next several months. Among the sheetings sales reported for those positions were four-yard 56-60s at 14¼ cents; four-yard 48-48s at 13½ cents; five-yards at 11¾ cents, and 5.50s at 10¾ cents. Heavy drills also were in demand. The difficulties experienced in getting out sateens and twills limited sales of these goods during the day, but had the effect of stiffening prices still further. The result was considerable irregularity in quotations, prices on the same goods varying from a quarter to a half-cent a yard in different parts of the market.

COMMODITIES PRICES

Advances in foodstuffs again featured the wholesale commodities price changes this week, as reflected by Dun's list, although, except in the case of some of the dairy products, the trend of the major foods was not strongly upward. The general list showed 83 changes, including 58 advances, compared with 33 advances in 53 changes last week. Marked strength in textiles, hides, and leather were among the other features.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

One of the features of the local foodstuffs situation was the drop of 25 cents a barrel in the price of Spring patent flour, which, despite the drop, is still $1.50 a barrel above the corresponding 1918 price. The price of Winter patent flour did not change. For the first time in many months the list of major provisions at Chicago was barren of advances. Live hogs, Middle Western lard, and short ribs all declined, but mess pork, live beef, and live sheep were unchanged. Bacon was higher here, but there was no revision in the listed price of hams in this market.

All of the grades of butter shown in the dairy products list were higher than last week, the advances ranging from half a cent a pound on creamery extras to 2 cents a pound on the best renovated stock. Cheese prices were unchanged, but eggs were higher. Fancy near bys went up 2 cents a dozen and the best Westerns advanced 1 cent. The new prices, respectively, are 14 and 12½ cents a dozen higher than those current at this time last year.

The dried fruits in the list contributed only a rise in choice evaporated apples, changes in the fresh ones being missing. Choice red kidney beans went up for the second week in succession, this time 25 cents a hundred pounds. A slight rise in potatoes and a jump of 50 cents a bag in the cost of onions were other features of the week's trading in vegetables. Rice was higher, and there was also an advance in the cost of Grand Banks cod. The tea list was bare of revisions, and advances in mace and white Singapore pepper were the only changes in the spices. In the coffees a rise in No. 4 Santos contrasted with a break in No. 7 Rio.

The changes in the grains consisted of advances in corn and prime timothy hay and declines in oats, rye, malting barley, and long rye straw. Leather continued firm, but with no changes, but in the hides there were advances in No. 1 native packers, No. 1 country steers, No. 1 heavy cows, No. 1 buffs, No. 1 kips, and No. 1 calfskins. The metals contributed 5 advances, which took place in antimony, lake and electrolytic coppers, spelter, and lead. In the combined list for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs, and oils there were 27 changes shown, of which 15 were downward. A feature was a break of $2 a pound in jobbing lots of opium, which placed it at $13, against $23.75 at this time last year. Chip boards advanced in the paper market, but there was a break in ledger writing paper. Turpentine advanced again.

Prices tended upward very strongly during the week in the textile markets. All weights of burlaps closed higher, and there was a general upturn in the price of cottons, in which unfinished goods shared very largely. The repricing of woolen goods to higher levels also was a feature of the week, most of the advances being on goods for Fall delivery.

Hard Coal Production Behind.

Saward's Journal will say today that anthracite producers are engaged in trying to overcome the deficit in supplies of domestic coal resulting from the halftime operations in February and March, in addition to meeting the usual Spring demand. This is a slow process and one that will require many weeks to complete. The curtailment in February and March resulted in a production loss of 5,275,000 tons as compared with the same two months last year, and to this must be added a loss of over 1,100,000 tons in April, caused by the mines working part time early in the month and to labor shortage holding down output later on. The bituminous trade is slowly but surely becoming a buyer's market.

Among the creditors are Thomas J. Bryant, Big Indian, $1,700, and Forsyth & Davis Motor Car Co., Kingston, $320.

Weekly Failure Report.

Bradstreet's reports 116 failures in the United States for the week, against 95 for the previous week, and 178, 289, 302, and 377 for the corresponding weeks of 1918 to 1915. The Middle States had 28, New England 13, Southern 28, Western 21, Northwestern 7, and Far Western 19. Canada had 9, against 5 for the preceding week. About 82 per cent. of the failures had less than $5,000 capital, and 11 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000.

TO SELL DOUGHNUTS AT DOLLAR APIECE

MASS MEETING TOMORROW

As part of the nation-wide drive to raise $13,000,000 for the Home Service Fund of the Salvation Army, which will begin on Monday, a mass meeting will be held at Madison Square Garden tomorrow. One thousand wounded soldiers from nearby hospitals will be guests of honor at the meeting, and Vice President Thomas R. Marshall and Governor Smith will be among the speakers. New York City's quota of the fund is $1,500,000.

Commander Evangeline Booth of the army expressed herself as greatly encouraged at the prospects for the success of the drive because of the innumerable letters and telegrams of encouragement for the army workers from every section of the country. Secretary of War Baker, it was announced, said he would be pleased to speak for the fund, if only to render some return for the service the Salvation Army lassies and officers did for the soldiers on the other side.

In New York City those in charge of the drive have determined to make the matter a real exchange of "dollars for doughnuts." Booths, loaned by the Liberty Loan Committee, will house workers who will make a daily batch of doughnuts, just as was done in huts and shell-ruined barns of France. These doughnuts, instead of being handed out to the hungry doughboy, poilu or Tommy, will be sold to the citizens of New York at a price of $1.00 per doughnut.

Chairman E. F. Albee of the Theatrical, Motion Picture, and Amusement Committee of the drive reports that the theatres of Greater New York have been organized for the campaign, closing next Sunday with a benefit performance at the Hippodrome. The Messrs. Shubert, Klaw & Erlanger, Al H. Woods, Cohan & Harris and other theatre managers have written to Chairman Albee promising their full co-operation in the Salvation Army drive. George M. Cohan sent a characteristic letter, which follows:

"Mr. Harris just spoke to me about the Salvation Army selling doughnuts in the lobbies of the theatres. I think it's a great idea, and I'm sure the 'public' is 'hungry' for something of the kind. Just to show you that we're a couple of regular guys—we'll guarantee to eat the doughnuts if you'll furnish the coffee. Here's a little verse on the subject. If you like the words, I'll set them to music and sing it the next time I play Providence:

Since the war has been won—it's the truth,
Every noble American youth
Has got down on his knees,
And has prayed for Evangeline Booth.

The regular army canvassers will be assisted in the drive by many volunteers, so that the routine work of the organization will not suffer. Mrs. J. Borden Harriman and a group of Junior League girls will appear daily on the steps of the Sub-Treasury at noon, and will sell doughnuts. Commander Booth will make the first address on Monday at the Sub-Treasury.

At the Pennsylvania Station on Monday, Mrs. Cornelius Bliss, Jr., and Miss Tiffany will be in charge; on Tuesday, Mrs. Charles F. Hoffman, and on Wednesday, Mrs. Clifford A. Cochran. The booths at the Grand Central Station will be in charge of Mrs. Alfred Mack on Monday, Mrs. Paulding Fosdick on Tuesday, and Mrs. W. DeLancey Kountze on Wednesday.

OPENS CHALONER CASE.

Counsel Describes Shooting of Farmhand to the Jury.

John Armstrong Chaloner, who, by court decrees, is insane in this State and sane in Virginia, listened all day yesterday to testimony given in his suit against The Evening Post for $100,000 for alleged libel. Federal Judge A. N. Hand hurried the case along so that a jury was obtained by noon.

The suit is based on a comment made by The Post after John Gillard, a farm hand, had been killed in the course of a struggle in which Mr. Chaloner and his household were seeking to protect Gillard's wife. The shooting occurred in Merry Mills, Mr. Chaloner's Virginia home, on March 15, 1909. The comment complained of read: "The latest prominent assassin had the rare foresight to have himself declared insane before he shot his man."

In opening the case for the plaintiff Frederick A. Ware described Gillard as a man of great strength, who had been a bushwhacker in Australia, and who lived with his wife and five children near the Chaloner place. Gillard's wife feared him, said counsel, and Mr. Chaloner, learning of this, told her to come to his house at any time she felt she was in danger. She did so, her husband followed her, and was about to strike her with a heavy pair of tongs, he said, when Mr. Chaloner interfered, the pistol being discharged, and Gillard fell dead. Mr. Ware described Mr. Chaloner as one whose entire life had been marked by philanthropy and high ideals, and said that he was beloved and respected by his neighbors.

John Grady, a negro servant, and Colonel E. G. Money, Mr. Chaloner's business agent, testified in behalf of Mr. Chaloner, and then the case was adjourned until Monday, when Mr. Chaloner will be called to the witness chair.

OBJECTS TO NEGRO COLONY.

Flushing is aroused over a report that negotiations are pending for the sale of a plot on which will be erected a twelve-family brick apartment house in the centre of an exclusive residential community to a syndicate of colored people in Manhattan. Alfred J. Kennedy, Postmaster of Flushing, who owns the property, admitted yesterday that negotiations were pending.

"What if I do?" he said when questioned about the report yesterday. "I want to get rid of the property and they want to buy it, so what is to hinder me? I don't know or recognize any difference in race or creed. The only thing that will prevent the sale would be a failure of the prospective purchasers and myself to come to terms. I would accept their money as readily as I would anybody's."

The property is in what is known as the Murray Hill section, on the east side of Central Avenue between Madison Avenue and the Long Island Railroad tracks.

Jamaica to Tax Traveling Men.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, May 15.—The Legislative Council today passed a bill imposing a tax of $50 on commercial travelers doing business in Jamaica. This follows the levying of a parcel tax on imports, the taxes being imposed for the purpose of assisting in meeting a deficit in the Treasury.

COURT REMOVES REFEREE.

Algernon S. Norton, who has been taking testimony as referee for several years in proceedings involving the estate of Augusta Hyatt Robinson, was removed by the Appellate Division yesterday because he accepted $1,500 as part payment of his fees while the case was pending before him.

The court held that, because one of the parties to the proceeding believed the referee's usefulness was at an end on account of the acceptance of the money, it would be better to appoint another referee.

Mr. Norton said he accepted the money in small installments because he understood that the money came from the estate anyhow, and that it was customary for such payments to be made pending the proceedings.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

For a third time since last February 969 Park Avenue, a twelve-story apartment house held at $1,100,000, changed ownership yesterday.

The latest buyer is Edgar A. Levy, builder and operator, who purchased the property from Max N. Natanson, an operator. The structure, which occupies a plot 139.8 by 100 feet, on the northeast corner of Park Avenue and Eighty-second Street, was erected several years ago by the Randolph Walker Company and contains duplex apartments of nine rooms and three baths to fourteen rooms and four baths. It rents for $140,000 per annum. The seller recently purchased the property from Messrs. Mayer & Mayer, and makes a substantial profit on his very short ownership. This is the second corner on Park Avenue that has been sold within the last few days. Harry B. Cutner negotiated the asle.

Operators Resell East Side Block Front Held at $350,000.

The Realty Construction Corporation, Pincus Glickman President, purchased from Ennis & Sinnott, operators, the block front on the east side of Avenue A, between Sixty-ninth and Seventieth Streets, together with 503-505 East East Sixty-ninth Street and 502-504 East Seventieth Street, consisting of nine six-story new-law houses, containing in all 250 suites of rooms and twenty stores.

The property fronts 200.10 feet on Avenue A and 175 feet on each street, and was held at $350,000. O'Reilly & Dahn, Louis Steinfeld, and Harry H. Newburger were the brokers in the deal, which was for all cash.

Frederick Brown Resells Kensington Court to Investor.

Frederick Brown, operator, has resold to Samuel Kamlet, for investment, Kensington Court, a six-story elevator apartment house, containing forty-five apartments and six stores and returning $45,000 in rentals. The property, held at $350,000, is on a plot 150 by 100, and was acquired by Mr. Brown in March from the Saguenay Realty Company. Max Blau was the broker.

Syndicate Buys Downtown Garage Site.

The Greenwich Associates, Inc., whose specialty is garage construction, have purchased from the Trinity Church Corporation the southeast corner of Spring and Clark Streets, a plot 80 by 125. The purchaser will erect a one-story garage, with retaining walls of sufficient strength to hold two additional floors, from plans by George & Edward Blum. The entire transaction involves $160,000.

The Edwin Bought by an Investor.

The Edwin, a six-story elevator apartment house, on plot 125 by 100, renting for about $47,000 and held at $400,000, at the northeast corner of Broadway and 147th Street, was bought by an investing client of N. A. Berwin & Co.

The Sisters of the Poor of St. Francis have added to their realty holdings abutting St. Francis Hospital, at 605 to 617 East Fifth Street, by the purchase of the group of old tenements at 602 and 604 East Sixth Street, east of Avenue B, from Charles J. Miller. At No. 602 are six old four-story structures, on a plot 29 by 141, extending back from the street frontage, the entrance to which is through an alley to the west of the property. No. 604 is a four-story building, on a lot 25 by 97, making a combined frontage of 54 feet. The Sisters also own 614 to 618, abutting St. Francis Hospital on the east. Their holdings on Sixth Street are separated by four tenements owned by August Wynkoop and others.

8 P. M.—"ONE OF THE MOST DRAMATIC NIGHTS IN THE WORLD'S HISTORY. THE PASSOVER NIGHT IN EGYPT. HAS IT ANY APPLICATION TO SALVATION TODAY; OR, HAS THE TWENTIETH CENTURY OUTGROWN THE DOCTRINE OF THE VICARIOUS DEATH OF CHRIST?"

Dr. Haldeman will discuss whether salvation is by the sacrificial blood of Christ or by the evolution of character. Can the man who has the worst character be saved by claiming the sacrifice of Christ, and will the man who has the best character be damned who rejects it? This is the supreme issue dividing the Christian ministry today.

Friday Night, May 23, 8 o'clock,
"The Song of Moses."

This will be the last Friday Night Dr. Haldeman will be present before he goes away for the Summer. He will be glad to meet all those who believe in his testimony and have found comfort in it.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, May 16.—A storm of considerable intensity was central Friday night over Lower Michigan and moving eastward. It has been attended by showers and thunderstorms in the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys and the region of the Great Lakes. Local showers have also fallen in the North Pacific States. Considerably cooler weather prevails in the upper lake region, the Central Mississippi Valley, the middle plains States, and the North Rocky Mountain region.

The weather is warmer over the north plains States and the interior of the Atlantic and Gulf States. On Saturday there will be showers in the Atlantic and East Gulf States and clearing weather in the region of the Great Lakes, the Ohio Valley, and Tennessee. On Sunday the weather will be generally fair east of the Mississippi River.

The temperature will rise Saturday along the Middle Atlantic and New England Coast and Sunday in the region of the Great Lakes and the Ohio Valley.

Winds for Saturday and Sunday: North Atlantic, fresh south and overcast, foggy weather and showers; Middle Atlantic, fresh south and southwest, cloudy and showers; South Atlantic and East Gulf, moderate variable, local showers; West Gulf, moderate south and southeast and generally fair.

FORECASTS FOR TODAY AND SUNDAY.

Northern New England and Southern New England — Showers Saturday; somewhat warmer on the coast. Sunday, clearing.

On motion of Controller Craig, the Board of Estimate yesterday appropriated $58,338 to pay the salaries of numerous employes of the Board of Education. This is a matter in which President Prall has been greatly interested and for which he has earnestly worked.

The next opening meeting of the Board of Education will be held on May 28. There will be a meeting of the Committee of the Whole next Wednesday, which will be private. President Prall said yesterday that the reason for holding the meetings of the Committee of the Whole in private was to allow the heads of departments and other employes to state their views freely on questions that affected them. He said that only those matters that were acted upon by the Committee of the Whole would come before the Board of Education at its regular meetings, when such topics would be more fully discussed than has been the practice heretofore.

SAYS K. OF C. WILL EXTEND ACTIVITIES

Major Byrne Predicts That Club Spirit Like That of Y. M. C. A. Will Be Broadened.

GIRLS ALSO TO BE CARED FOR

At a Victory meeting of the League of Catholic Women, held yesterday afternoon at the Maxine Elliott Theatre, it was predicted by Major James Byrne of the American Red Cross Mission in Italy that as a result of what the Knights of Columbus had done for the soldiers and sailors during the war the activities of the organization would now be extended so as to do for Catholic boys what the Y. M. C. A. was already doing in its field. Miss Elisabeth Marbury, Vice President of the league, urged also the extension of work so that many clubs might be formed throughout the city to take care of the Catholic girls in the manner of the Y. W. C. A. The Right Rev. Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle, who presided, told of the $3,000,00 fund which Archbishop Hayes intended raising for the furthering of Catholic charities in New York City. Miss Alma Clayburgh opened the meeting with the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner," and Miss Julia Arthur recited "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." Mgr. Lavelle read a letter from Miss Teresa R. O'Donohue, President of the league, who because of illness was not able to be present.

After pointing out that the Knights of Columbus and other war organizations had in less than two years reached a perfection of functioning which in times of peace it would have taken a quarter of a century to attain, Mr. Byrne emphasized the necessity of working for the democracy for which the American soldiers had fought.

"Now that that is over, it behooves us to make of the world all that orators and statesmen have promised it would be when the work of destruction was over," he said. "Unless there is harmony between our words and acts, there will be something false in our lives. If we call for democracy and in our hearts are not democrats, if we call for liberty and in our hearts reverence the power of wealth, sooner or later we shall be found out and shall stand as hypocrites. Those who are the real believers in democracy will then become the rulers."

Mr. Byrne spoke briefly of the work of the Red Cross in Italy, emphasizing the efficiency of the Italian Government in distributing the numerous refugees throughout the country, and then closed with a tribute to the women of the league.

Miss Marbury mentioned in detail the accomplishments of the league, and concluded with a plea for the use of the power of prayer. "I wish we could become a praying nation," she said, "for if we should spend that time which we ordinarily give to the reading of criticisms of the Government officials in praying upon our bended knees that God might give them help, the benefit to the nation would be far greater than it is."

Did This Ever Happen to You?

EVER go into a hat store and find that just the hat you wanted was just a little more than you wanted to pay?

Ever have a salesman say to you "Now, I have another hat that we sell for just a little more than the one I am showing you"?

Where there is one price in the store there is one thought in the salesman's mind---and that is to find the style that looks best on you, because anything in the store is yours at the same price.

Just remember that every straight brim straw hat in our stores, no matter what the braid, no matter what the style and no matter what the proportion, whether a wide band or a narrow band, they are all priced alike.

Why Should We Keep Silent?

"Well tailored suits even at $25 are an impossibility to-day," is a statement which we shall not let go unchallenged. Here is our answer:

1900 Smart Spring SUITS

That Were Made to Sell at $25—$28—$30

This Big Event Ends Tonight at 9

You've probably read it yourself—the statement that a good suit of clothes can no longer be had for $25. It is probably true for a good many concerns whose overhead is large.

We, however, are an exception to that rule and prove it in this event by offering—not at $25, but at EIGHTEEN-FIFTY—suits that are retailing in the best shops everywhere at $25, $28 and $30. Choose from forty famous makes.

This offer is made for the purpose of demonstrating that we can save you $6.50 to $11.50 on your purchase. Remember we pay only $7,500 a year in rent for a mammoth second floor shop. When we had our three Greater New York stores we paid $65,000 a year and fully $25,000 a year MORE in managerial, light and window-trimming expenses. THIS VAST SAVING NOW GOES INTO OUR CUSTOMERS' POCKETS. Don't miss this opportunity. It ends to-night!

Other Equally Remarkable Values in Suits at $21.50, $26.50, $29.50 Up to $45.00

THE well-dressed man doesn't clap down his money for a suit as he claps it down for a cigar or a subway ticket. It's a matter of importance to him. The well-dressed man never grudges the few minutes' time it takes to have Clemons Custom Clothes measured and tried on. That is why he is a well-dressed man.

Have me measure you for a Journeyman-Custom-Hand-Tailored Suit, $30 to $55. You'll feel better, because you look better, and you'll look better, because you feel better. My body-gracing fit, thoroughbred style, stitched-to-stay needlework and personal attention, from Hand-Clasp to Hand-Tailoring.
